TO THE MEMORY OF

PANDIT GOVIND KAUL

WHOSE SCHOLARSHIP AND FRIENDLY DEVOTION

EVER FURTHERED KASHMIRIAN RESEARCHES

DEDICATED

IN SINCERE AFFECTION AND GRATITUDE.

I should in no way have felt qualified to decide between the conflicting authorities, even if I could have spared time for the close investigation of the differences of detail concerned. But I realized the value which might attach to an unbiassed phonetic record of specimens of the language taken down at this stage from the mouth of speakers wholly unaffected by quasi-literary influences and grammatical theories. In the course of my Kashmīr tours I had been more than once impressed by the clearness of utterance to be met with in the speech of intelligent villagers, very different from the Protean inconstancy which certain phonetic features of Kāshmīrī seemed to present in the mouth of the townsfolk of Śrīnagar, whether Brahmans or Muhammadans. In addition, my interest had been aroused from the first by the rich store of popular lore which Kāshmīrī presents in its folk tales, songs, proverbs, and the like.

So in the course of the second summer season, that of 1896, which I was enabled through a kind dispensation to devote to my Rājataraṅgiṇī labours in the alpine seclusion of my cherished mountain camp, Mohand Marg, high up on a spur of the great Haramukh peaks, I endeavoured to use the chance which had opportunely offered itself for securing specimens both of the language spoken in the Sind Valley below me (the important Lahara tract of old Kashmīr) and of folklore texts. Hātim Til$^{a}$wôñ$^{u}$ had been mentioned to me as a professional story-teller in particular esteem throughout that fertile tract. He was a cultivator settled in the little hamlet of Panzil, at the confluence of the Sind River and the stream draining the eastern Haramukh glaciers, and owed his surname to the possession of an oil press. When he had been induced to climb up to my mountain height and had favoured Pandit Gōvind Kaul and myself with his first recitation, we were both much struck by his intelligence, remarkable memory, and clear enunciation. His répertoire of stories and songs was a large one. Though wholly illiterate, he was able to recite them all at any desired rate of speed which might suit our ears or pens; to articulate each word separate from the context, and to repeat it, if necessary, without any change in pronunciation. Nor did the order of his words or phrases ever vary after however long an interval he might be called upon to recite a certain passage again. The indication of two or three initial words repeated from my written record would be quite sufficient to set the disk moving in this living phonographic machine.

It did not take me long to appreciate fully Hātim's value for the purpose I had in view. He did not at first take kindly to the cold of our airy camping-place nor to its loneliness, being himself of a very sociable disposition, such as befitted his professional calling exercised mostly at weddings and other festive village gatherings. But it was the cultivators' busy season in the rice fields, some 5,000 feet below us, and his ministrations were not needed by them for the time being. So I managed, with appropriate treatment and adequate douceurs, to retain him for over six weeks. Owing to the pressure of my work on Kalhaṇa's Chronicle it was impossible to spare for Hātim more than an hour in the evening, after a climb, usually in his company, had refreshed me from the strain of labours which had begun by daybreak.

Progress was necessarily made slow by the care which I endeavoured to bestow upon the exact phonetic record of Hātim's recitation and the consequent need of having each word where I did not feel sure of it, repeated, eventually several times. Whenever a story was completed I used to read it out to Hātim, who never failed to notice and correct whatever deviation from his text might have crept in through inadvertence or defective hearing. Though able to follow the context in general, I purposely avoided troubling Hātim with queries about particular words or sentences which I could not readily understand. I felt that the object in view would be best served by concentrating my attention upon the functions of a phonographic recorder and discharging them as accurately as the limitations of my ear and phonetic training would permit.

I could not have adopted this safe restriction of my own task, and might well have hesitated about attempting the record of these materials at all, if I had not been assured from the start of Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul's most competent and painstaking collaboration. The intimate knowledge which long years of scholarly work carried on in constant close contact had given me of his methods and standards, enabled me to leave certain essential portions of the work entirely to his share and with fullest confidence in the result. I could feel completely assured that with that rare thoroughness and conscientious precision which distinguished all his work on the lines of the traditional Sanskrit scholar, his record of Hātim's text written down in Devanāgarī characters simultaneously with my own would be as exact as the system, or want of system, of Kāshmīrī spelling current among Śrīnagar Paṇḍits would permit. I was equally certain that he would spare no trouble to make his interpretation of it, both in the form of an interlinear word-for-word version and of an idiomatic Sanskrit translation, as accurate as possible.

Sir George Grierson's remarks upon the advantages which he derived from Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul's labours make it unnecessary for me to explain here the special value attaching to them. It will suffice to state that Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul's text as written down at the time of dictation was always revised simultaneously with my own. The interlinear translation was then added in the course of the following day, after reference to Hātim wherever doubts arose about the meaning of particular words or phrases. The preparation of the fair copy of both, with the idiomatic Sanskrit rendering added, was a task which helped to keep Paṇḍit Govind Kaul occupied during my absence in Europe for part of 1897. During the summer of the next year I enjoyed once more the benefit of his devoted assistance in labours dear to us both, and in the peaceful seclusion of my alpine camp. But my big Rājataraṅgiṇī task, then nearing completion, claimed all my energy and time. Thus the lacuna left in Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul's record of Hātim's last tale, due to the accidental loss of the concluding few pages of his original manuscript, escaped attention at the time.

When it was brought to my notice by Sir George Grierson fully fourteen years later, I was encamped once more at the very spot where we had recorded those stories. But, alas, Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul was no longer among the living to give aid; and, what with years of Central-Asian exploration and long labours on their results intervening, those records seemed to me as if gathered in a former birth. Fortunately, Hātim was still alive and quite equal to the stiff climb which his renewed visit demanded—the photograph reproduced here shows him as he looked then. His recollection of the story was as fresh as ever, though increasing years and prosperity had made him give up his peregrinations as a public story-teller. So it was easy for another old retainer, Paṇḍit Kāśī Rām, to take down from Hātim's dictation the missing end of the story; it ran exactly as my own record showed it.

During the years which followed the completion of my main Kashmīr labours the efforts needed to carry out successive Central-Asian expeditions and to assure the elaboration of their abundant results, kept me from making definite arrangements for the publication of those linguistic materials. They had meanwhile, together with my collection of Sanskrit manuscripts from Kashmīr, found a safe place of deposit in the Indian Institute's Library at Oxford. But it filled me with grateful relief when my old friend Sir George Grierson, after a preliminary examination, kindly agreed in the autumn of 1910 to publish these texts, and thus enabled me to leave them in the hands most competent for the task.

It was the solution I had hoped for all along, and realizing how much more difficult this task was than the original collection of the materials, I feel deep gratification at the fact that a kindly Fate has allowed him to complete it amidst all his great labours. In view of all the progress which Indian linguistic research for more than a generation past owes to Sir George Grierson's exceptional qualifications and powers of critical work, it would be presumption on my part to appraise how much of the value which may be claimed for this publication is derived solely from the wide range and precision of the scholarly knowledge he has brought to bear upon it.

It is the greatness of his own share in the work which makes me feel particularly grateful to Sir George Grierson for his ready consent to its dedication to the memory of Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul. It affords me an appropriate opportunity for recording some data about the life of a cherished friend and helpmate whose memory deserves to be honoured for the nobility of his character quite as much as for his scholarly gifts and labours. The association of Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul during close on ten years with my own efforts bearing on the history and antiquities of Kashmīr has always been appreciated by me as a special favour of Fortune, or—to name the goddess under her own Kashmirian form—of Śāradā, who is the protectress of learning as well as of the alpine land which claims to be her home; for he seemed to embody in his person all the best characteristics of that small but important class among the Brahmans of Kashmīr to which the far-off and secluded mountain territory owes its pre-eminent position in the history of Indian learning and literature.

I cannot attempt to indicate here the evidence to be gathered both from the Sanskrit literary products of Kashmīr and from surviving local tradition, which makes me believe that high scholarly attainments and a special facility of elegant rhetorical or poetic expression were to be found among the truly learned in Kashmīr more frequently combined than elsewhere in India with a keen eye for the realities of life, power of humorous observation, and distinct interest in the practical affairs of the country. Kalhaṇa himself, the author of the Rājataraṅgiṇī, with whose personality, I felt, I was becoming so familiar across the gap of long centuries, seemed aptly to illustrate this typical combination of features.[1] In Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul I found them all again and united with a high sense of honour, a bearing of true innate nobility, and a capacity for faithful attachment which from the first made me cherish him greatly as a friend, not merely as an accomplished mentor in most things appertaining to Kashmīr and its traditional past. A brief account of his descent and early associations will best explain the growth of these strongly-marked characteristics.[2]

Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul was born in 1846 as the eldest son of Paṇḍit Balabhadra Kaul (1819–96), who, by reason of his personal qualities, great scholarly attainments, and social position, was universally respected among the Brahman community of Śrīnagar. Paṇḍit Balabhadra's own father, Paṇḍit Taba Kaul, had been a Sanskrit scholar of great reputation in the closing period of Afghān rule in Kashmīr. Being connected as hereditary 'Guru' with the important Brahman family of the Dars he had enjoyed a substantial Jāgīr, and this was allowed to continue when Mahārāja Raṇjit Singh's conquest in 1819 established Sikh dominion over Kashmīr. Paṇḍit Bīrbal Dar, his patron, had held an influential administrative position already under the Afghān régime. But he incurred the suspicion of 'Aẓīm Khān, the last governor from Kābul, and persecuted by him, he was obliged to flee from Kashmīr to the Panjāb. Of the adventurous escape which he made with his young son Paṇḍit Rājakāk, in mid-winter 1818–19, across the snow-covered mountains, and of the cruel treatment endured by those of his family he was obliged to leave behind, Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul told me interesting traditions. The experienced advice which Paṇḍit Bīrbal supplied to Mahārāja Raṇjit Singh is believed to have contributed greatly to the success of the campaign, which, in the following summer, placed Kashmīr in the power of the great Sikh ruler.[1]

[1] Cf. the sketch I have given of the information to be gathered from the Rājataraṅgiṇī about the personal character of its author in the Introduction to my translation, i, pp. 21 sqq.

[2] For the account here presented I have been able to utilize a series of notes which Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul's son, Paṇḍit Nīlakaṇṭh, collected at my request among the elder members of his family and also among the surviving representatives of the Dar family, their hereditary patrons. In addition my recollection of data verbally communicated to me by Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul has proved useful.

The high administrative posts which Paṇḍit Bīrbal, and after his death his equally capable son Paṇḍit Rājakāk, held during the period of Sikh rule in Kashmīr (1819–46), necessarily assured a prominent social position and relative affluence also for Paṇḍit Taba Kaul and his son Paṇḍit Balabhadra Kaul. The latter was thus enabled to devote himself during his youth solely to Sanskrit studies, and to lay the foundations of a scholarly renown which made him, from an early date, a prominent figure among the Paṇḍits of Kashmīr. But the far-reaching political changes which followed the accession of Mahārāja Gulāb Singh of Jammu to the rule of Kashmīr at the close of the First Sikh War, in 1846, led to the loss of the family's Jāgīr and threw a heavy strain upon Paṇḍit Balabhadra's resources. Though restricted to what income his functions as hereditary Guru and as a teacher of Śāstras could secure, and maintaining throughout his long life a dignified retirement,[2] Paṇḍit Balabhadra succeeded not only in giving his

[1] Paṇḍit Bīrbal is said to have been personally present at the fight on the Divᵉsar Karēwa in which the Afghāns were finally defeated by Diwān Chand Misar and Sardār Hari Singh, Raṇjit Singh's generals, and to have decided the issue by pointing out Jabar Khān, 'Aẓīm Khān's brother and ablest commander, as the chief objective for the attack. I may mention as an interesting relic connected with this event that in the palace-like mansion of the Dar family, a monument of departed glory, I found a number of fine Persian carpets and elaborate felt rugs which according to family tradition Paṇḍit Bīrbal had been allowed to appropriate from the defeated Afghān governor's camp in recognition of the help he had rendered towards the Sikh success on that field of battle.

[2] During the latter half of his life he never left the house he occupied within the precincts of the Dar family mansion, though receiving frequent visitors from among those whom office or intellectual attainments placed high in the social world of Śrīnagar.

three sons an excellent education, but in accumulating also an important collection of Sanskrit manuscripts.

His tasks were, no doubt, facilitated by the support he derived from his close connexion with the remarkably able men who succeeded Paṇḍit Bīrbal as heads of the Dar family. Paṇḍit Rājakāk, the latter's son (1805–66), had distinguished himself as an administrator already during the troubled times of the closing Sikh régime, and quelled a rebellion in the hill tract of Drāva. When conditions had become more settled under the Dogrā rule he rose high in Mahārāja Gulāb Singh's favour by greatly developing the shawl industry of Kashmīr, then a monopoly and financial mainstay of the State. Endowed with a genuine love of knowledge and with that intellectual adaptability which has distinguished the best brains of Kashmīr through successive historical periods, he had taken care to secure for his son, Paṇḍit Rāmjīv Dar (circ. 1850–83), not only a sound training in Persian and Sanskrit, but also some familiarity with English and with Western ways. It was no easy departure in days when close relations with Europeans were apt to be looked at askance as infringing upon the traditional policy of seclusion and the security it was meant to assure.

It was in intimate association with Paṇḍit Rāmjīv Dar that Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul spent most of his early manhood. The experience he thus gained of the world of affairs, of rulers and ruled alike, did much to widen the horizon of his thoughts and interests beyond that of the traditional student of Śāstras. Paṇḍit Rāmjīv seems to have been a man of an unusually active mind and of considerable practical energy. During his short but fruitful life he had the good fortune to serve a ruler so well qualified as the late Mahārāja Raṇbīr Singh to appreciate his varied mental gifts and activities. It was the cherished aim of the late Mahārāja to combine the preservation of inherited systems of Indian thought and knowledge with the development of his country's economic resources along the lines of modern Western progress. Having proved his ability as an administrator of Kashmīr districts, Paṇḍit Rāmjīv gradually became the Mahārāja's trusted adviser in a variety of departments which were created to further that policy, including those of education, agriculture, sericulture, etc. The manifold administrative duties entrusted to Paṇḍit Rāmjīv did not divert his attention from scholarly interests, and consequently he kept Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul as much as possible by his side wherever his tours of inspection, etc., took him. Thus, Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul was able to acquire a great deal of first-hand knowledge of Kashmīr and the neighbouring territories in all their varied aspects.

Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul had, from his earliest youth, received a very thorough literary training in Sanskrit under his father's direct guidance. In accordance with the traditions of Kashmīr learning he had devoted particular efforts to the study of the Alaṁkāra-śāstra and the poetic literature which is bound up with it. His stock of quotations from the latter seemed inexhaustible. He was thoroughly at home also in Vyākaraṇa, Nyāya and the Śaiva-śāstra, and he read widely in the Epics and Purāṇas. As far as Sanskrit literary qualifications were concerned, he was well equipped for the charge of the "Translation Department", to which he was appointed in 1874. By creating it together with a State Press it was the Mahārāja's intention to diffuse a knowledge of Sanskrit works on law, philosophy, etc., among wider classes of his subjects through the medium of Hindī. Other branches of the same department were intended to secure the same object with regard to selected works in English and Persian. It is needless to discuss here the practical utility of the scheme or the causes which, owing to the lingering illness of the Mahārāja, hampered its execution during the closing years of his reign. It is enough to remember that it provided suitable employments for such highly deserving scholars as Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul and the late Paṇḍit Sahajabhaṭṭa, who was to become another of my Kashmīr assistants, and that among the works undertaken, but never finished, there was also a Hindī translation of the Sanskrit Chronicles of Kashmīr.

In 1883 Paṇḍit Rāmjīv Dar was carried off by a premature death. Soon after, the Translation Department ceased to exist, together with several other institutions which had owed their creation to his stimulating influence. The last years preceding Mahārāja Raṇbīr Singh's death in 1886 and the first of the reign of his son and successor were for Kashmīr a period of transition. Traditional methods of administration and economic conditions bequeathed by long centuries of practical seclusion were giving way without there being the machinery as yet available to effect needful reforms on the lines developed in British India. It was in various ways a trying time for all those representing the intellectual inheritance of the valley, and after a short spell of work as a teacher in the Sanskrit Pāṭhaśālā, maintained by the Darbār at Śrīnagar, on scant pay—and that often in arrears—Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul found himself without official employment.

His learning and sound methods of scholarly work had already, in 1875, attracted the attention of Professor George Bühler, when that great Indologist had paid his memorable visit to Kashmīr in search of Sanskrit MSS. The very commendatory mention which Professor Bühler's report made of Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul's attainments and of the help he had rendered,[1] directed my attention to him from the start. The personal impression gained within the first few days of my arrival at Srīnagar at the close of August, 1888, was quite sufficient to convince me how amply deserved that praise was. I was quick to notice Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul's special interest in antiquarian subjects, such as made me then already form the plan of a critical edition and commentary of Kalhaṇa's Chronicle of Kashmīr. I was equally impressed by his dignified personality, which combined the best qualities of the Indian scholar and gentleman. A short archæological tour which we made in company to sites round the Dal Lake helped to draw us together in mutual sympathy and regard. So it was to me a great source of satisfaction when, before my departure for the plains, Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul, with his revered father's full approval, accepted my offer of personal employment and agreed to follow me to Lahore for the cold weather season.

[1] Cf. Bühler, "Detailed Report of a Tour in search of Sanskrit MSS. made in Kaśmīr, Rajputana, and Central India," Extra Number of the Journal Bombay Branch, R.A.S., 1877, pp. 7, 17, 27. In the last-quoted passage Professor Bühler mentions Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul's shrewd identification of the old local name of Leh (Loḥ in the Rājat.), and rightly states: "His proceeding showed that he was possessed of a truly scientific spirit of enquiry."

It was the beginning of a long period of close association between us in scholarly interests and work. It continued practically unbroken for nearly eleven years, throughout my official employment in the Panjab University at Lahore, and down to Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul's lamented death in June, 1899. Neither my visits on leave to Europe nor an interval in 1892–3, when he was tempted to accept employment at the Court of Jammu on H.H. the Mahārāja's private staff, implied any real interruption. It was, in the first place, my labours concerning the critical publication and elucidation of Kalhaṇa's Chronicle of Kashmīr, for which Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul's multifarious and ever devoted assistance proved of the greatest value. As to the character and extent of this help it is unnecessary here to give details. They have been recorded at length, and with due expression of my gratitude, both in the Introduction to my text edition of the Rājataraṅgiṇī, published in 1892, and in the Preface to the commentated translation of it, with which, in 1900, on the eve of departure for my first Central-Asian expedition, I completed my labours bearing on the early history and antiquities of Kashmīr.[1]

Nor need I give here details regarding the large share taken by Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul in another important if not equally attractive task. I mean the preparation of a classified catalogue of the great collection of Sanskrit MSS., over 5,000 in number, which, through Mahārāja Raṇbīr Singh's enlightened care, had been formed at the Raghunāth Temple Library at Jammu. The support I received from successive British residents in Kashmīr, including the late Colonels R. Parry Nisbet and N. F. Prideaux, and from my old friend the late Rāja Paṇdit Sūraj Kaul, then Member of the Kashmīr State Council, furnished me with the means for organizing the labours by which, in the course of 1889-94, this very valuable collection was saved from the risk of dispersion and rendered accessible to research. They were effected mainly through Paṇdit Gōvind Kaul and our common friend the late Paṇdit Sahajabhaṭṭa. A full acknowledgment of their devoted services will be found in the Introduction to the volume which contains the descriptive catalogue, together with the plentiful and accurate extracts prepared by them from previously unknown or otherwise interesting Sanskrit texts.[1]

[1] Cf. Kalhaṇa's Rājataraṅgiṇī, ed. Stein, p. xvii ; Kalhaṇa's Rājataraṅgiṇī, transl. Stein, i, pp. xvii, xxii sq.

It would have been quite impossible for me, burdened as I was all through my years at Lahore with heavy and exacting official duties, to undertake the big tasks referred to, had not a kindly Fortune provided me in Paṇdit Gōvind Kaul with a coadjutor of exceptional qualities. With a wide range of thorough traditional knowledge of the Śāstras and a keen sense of literary form he combined a standard of accuracy and a capacity for taking pains over details which would have done high credit to any European scholar trained on modern philological lines. Though he was no longer young when he joined me, he adapted himself with instinctive comprehension to the needs of Western critical methods, such as I was bound to apply to all my tasks. With infinite and never-failing care he would record and collate the readings of the manuscripts upon which I depended for the critical constitution of the Rājataraṅgiṇī text, and also those of other Kashmirian works, almost all unpublished, reference to which was constantly needed for its interpretation. Yet I knew that scrupulously careful as he was about the formal correctness of his Sanskrit writing and speech, the exact reproduction of all the blunders, etc., to be met in the work of often ignorant copyists caused him a kind of physical pain.

It was the same with the labours he had to devote to the collection and sifting of all the multifarious materials needed for the elucidation of antiquarian problems. However much wanting in style and other literary attractions the Kashmirian texts such as Māhātmyas, later Chronicles, etc., might be which had to be searched, I could always feel sure that none of their contents which might be of interest by their bearing on the realities of ancient Kashmīr would be allowed by Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul to escape his Index slips. The value of the help he could give me in regard to the latter labours was greatly increased by the familiarity he had gained with most parts of the country and its varied population during the years spent by the side of his old patron Paṇḍit Rāmjīv Dar. Though for various practical reasons I had but little occasion to use Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul in that rôle of travelling camp literatus which made his worthy Chinese epiphany, excellent Chiang Ssŭ-yeh, so invaluable to me during my Central-Asian explorations of 1906–8, he was yet exceptionally well able to visualize topographical and other practical facts bearing on archæological questions.

But, perhaps, the greatest advantage I derived from his long association with my labours was the chance it gave me to study in close contact those peculiarities of traditional Indian thought, belief, and conduct which separate Hindu civilization so deeply both from the West and the East, and which no amount of book knowledge could ever fully reveal to a 'Mleccha'. Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul's personality seemed to embody in a particularly clear fashion some of the most characteristic and puzzling features which constitute the inherited mentality of India, traceable through all changes of the ages. Attached with unquestioning faith to the principles and practices of his Brahman caste, he would make no concessions whatsoever in his own person to altered conditions of life. Yet he was ever ready to explain to me how the slow adaptation in others was reconcilable with traditional tenets. His meticulous observance of religious rites shrank from no personal hardship or sacrifice; he would, e.g., keep the fast days enjoined by the three different systems of worship traditional in his family, even when the chance of the calendar would bring them together in most embarrassing succession. Yet, in the privacy of my study or in the solitude of my mountain camp he was fully prepared to brush aside in my case most of the outward restrictions to which the profanum vulgus might attach importance.

His strongly conservative notions were the clearest reflex of those which have governed the administration of Kashmīr throughout its historical past. Their instinctive application by Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul to the modern conditions of his country helped me greatly in comprehending how limited in reality were the changes undergone by its social fabric in the course of long centuries, notwithstanding all foreign conquests from the north and south. In his unfailing grave politeness and courtly dignity I could recognize, as it were, the patina which generations of influential employment and social distinction have deposited on the best representatives of the true ruling class of Kashmīr. Whenever Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul was by my side, whether in the alpine peace of my beloved Kashmīr mountains or in the dusty toil of our Lahore exile, I always felt in living touch with past ages full of interest for the historical student of India.

A kindly Fate had allowed me, notwithstanding constant struggles for leisure, to carry my labours on the oldest historical records of Kashmīr close to their completion by the time when in the spring of 1899 my appointment to the charge of the Calcutta

Madrasa and the far more encouraging prospect of freedom for my first Central-Asian journey necessitated what seemed merely a temporary change in our personal association. In view of the new field of work which was soon to call me to the 'Sea of Sand' and its ruins far away in the north, I felt anxious to assure to Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul scholarly employment in his own home, worthy of his learning and likely to benefit research. By what appeared at the time a special piece of good fortune, my friend Sir George Grierson was then anxious to avail himself of Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul's methodical help for completing and editing Paṇḍit Īśvara Kaul's great dictionary of Kāshmīrī. It was a philological task of considerable importance, and for more than one reason I rejoiced when, before my departure from Lahore, this collaboration of the best Kashmirian scholar of his time with the leading authority in the field of Indian linguistic research had been satisfactorily arranged for.

But Fate, with that inscrutable irony on which Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul, like another Kalhaṇa,[1] loved to expatiate with appropriate poetic quotations, had decreed otherwise. The farewell I took at Lahore from my ever devoted helpmate was destined to be the last. From a rapid visit to Simla to see Sir George Grierson he brought back an attack of fever which, after his return to Kashmīr, proved to be of a serious type and ultimately was recognized as typhoid. For weeks his strong constitution held out, supported by the loving care of his family and such proper medical attendance as I endeavoured to assure from afar. But in the end he succumbed, and separated by thousands of miles at the time in the strange mountains of Sikkim, I learned early in June, 1899, the grievous news that my best Indian friend had departed beyond all hope of reunion in this janman.

Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul left behind a widow, who, after years of pious devotion to his memory, has since followed him, and a young son, Paṇḍit Nilakaṇṭh Kaul, who, while prevented by indifferent health in early youth from following a scholar's career, has grown up worthily to maintain the family's reputation for high character and unswerving devotion to duty.

The prolonged stays I was subsequently able to make in Kashmīr before and after my successive Central-Asian expeditions had to be spent on work relating to regions far away, and wholly different in character, from what I have come to look upon as my Indian alpine home. But my love for Kashmīr has remained unchanged, and so also my gratitude for the great boon it had given me in Paṇḍit Gōvind Kaul's friendship and help. That I was enabled to prefix a record of his life to this volume and thus to do something to preserve his memory, is a privilege I appreciate greatly. I owe it solely to the scholarly zeal of Sir George Grierson, who has rescued and elaborated the materials which we had collected, in a previous common birth, as it were. For the personal service thus rendered the expression of my warmest thanks is due here in conclusion.

INTRODUCTION

THE stories and songs in the following pages were recited to Sir Aurel Stein in June and July, 1896, at Mōhand Marg, in Kashmīr, by Hātim Tilawôñ[u], of Panzil, in the Sind Valley, a cultivator and professional story-teller. They were taken down at his dictation by Sir Aurel Stein himself, and, simultaneously, by Paṇḍit Gōvinda Kaula, and were read again by Sir Aurel with Hātim in August, 1912. Sir Aurel Stein wrote the text phonetically in the Roman character, as he heard it, and Gōvinda Kaula recorded it in the Nāgarī character, not phonetically, but spelling the words in the manner customary among Kashmīr Paṇḍits of Śrīnagar. While there are necessarily considerable differences in the representation of Hātim's words, the two texts are in verbatim agreement. Only in very rare instances are unimportant words found in one omitted in the other. To the copy made by him from Hātim's dictation Gōvinda Kaula added an interlinear, word for word, translation into Sanskrit, and, from this, he subsequently made a fair copy of the greater part of the text with a translation into idiomatic Sanskrit.

All these materials were handed over to me by Sir Aurel Stein in November, 1910, and a perusal of them at once showed their great importance. They were a first-hand record of a collection of folklore taken straight from the mouth of one to whom they had been handed down with verbal accuracy from generation to generation of professional Rāwīs or reciters, and, in addition, they formed an invaluable example of a little-known language recorded in two ways, viz.: (1) as it sounded to an experienced scholar, and (2) as it was written down in the literary style of spelling. Moreover, Hātim's language was not the literary language of Kāshmīrī Paṇḍits, but was in a village dialect, and Sir Aurel Stein's phonetic record of the patois, placed alongside of the standard spelling of Kāshmīrī Paṇḍits, gives what is perhaps the only opportunity in existence for comparing the literary form of an Oriental speech with the actual pronunciation of a fairly educated villager. I, therefore, gratefully undertook the task of editing these tales with a view to their publication.

As I progressed, various difficulties asserted themselves, and Sir Aurel Stein took advantage of a stay in Kashmīr in August, 1912, to interview Hātim once more, to read through the text with him again, and, by inquiry from the fount of inspiration, to obtain a solution of the puzzles. The result was a remarkable proof of the accuracy of Hātim's memory. As already intimated, he belonged to a family of Rāwīs, and delivered the stories as he had received them. After sixteen years, the text that he recited in 1912 was the same as that which had been copied down in 1896. It even contained one or two words or phrases of which he did not know the meaning. They were "old words" no longer in use, but he still recited them as he had received them from his predecessor.

In the course of my examination of the papers, I found that Gōvinda Kaula's transcript was not quite complete. It extended only to the middle of paragraph 18 of Story xii. In the interval between 1896 and 1912 had occurred the lamented death of that excellent scholar, and his help was no longer available to supply the missing portion. This was, therefore, written down in August, 1912, from Hātim's dictation, and supplied with a Hindī translation by Paṇḍit Kāśī Rāma.

The method employed by me in editing the text is as follows: Sir Aurel Stein's phonetic text is first printed with a free English translation. This is followed by a careful transliteration of Gōvinda Kaula's text, with an interlinear, word for word, translation into English. As this latter text is based on the Paṇḍit's system of spelling, every word is spelt the same way every time that it occurs, and I was able to compile from it, a very full vocabulary, which also served as an Index Verborum. As Hātim's pronunciation, like the pronunciation of all spoken words in any language, varied slightly almost every time that the same word was uttered, Sir Aurel Stein's phonetic transcript has necessarily no fixed system of spelling any particular word, each word being recorded as it sounded on the particular occasion of its being uttered, without reference to its pronunciation on other occasions.[1] Each word, therefore, appears under varying forms, all of which are, of course, of inestimable value for the study of the growth of dialect, but which render the text unsuitable as the basis of a vocabulary. For this reason, as stated above, my vocabulary is based on Gōvinda Kaula's text; but, to make comparison easy, two further indexes have been added. The first is an index of all the words in Sir Aurel's phonetic text, showing in each case the corresponding word in Gōvinda Kaula's text. The second index takes the words in the latter text, but arranges them in the order of their final letters, it being the letters towards the end of a word that are most liable to change in the processes of declension or conjugation. For each word in this text the corresponding word or words in Sir Aurel's text are also given.

The tales and songs are recorded in the order in which they were taken down by Sir Aurel Stein. They include six excellent folk-tales, three songs, and three tales partly in prose and partly in verse. The folk-tales speak for themselves. Of the songs, one (No. i) is a poetical account of an adventure of the famous Sulṭān Maḥmūd of Ghaznī with a fisherman; another (No. iv) purports to give a résumé of the origins of the Musalmān religion; and the third (No. xi) is an amusing account of the turmoil created in Kashmīr by Sir Douglas Forsyth's mission to Yarkand in 1873–4. The tales partly in prose and partly in verse are, first, the well-known story of Yūsuf and Zulaikhā, told by Wahāb Khār[2] (No. vi). The second is the lamentation of a reed, torn from its forest, and tortured by a carpenter till it becomes a flute (No. vii). The author is one Subḥān. The third, which is anonymous, is a curious conversation between a bee and a farmer's wife (No. ix), in which the former complains of tyranny done to it by a bear and by a farmer who robbed it of its honey, while the latter complains of the tyranny done to her by grasping revenue officials.

[1] In regard to this point we may compare Nöldeke's words in a review of Prym & Socin's account of the Dialect of Tūr 'Abdīn (ZDMG. xxxv, 221): "Die ungemeine Genauigkeit in der Wiedergabe der Laute zeigt übrigens wieder besonders deutlich, wie verschieden oft ein und dasselbe Wort sogar im selben Zusammenhange, ja im selben Satze gesprochen wird: ein auch durch sonstige Niederschrift aus dem Volksmunde bestätigtes Resultat, durch welches allein schon das jetzt so beliebte Dogma von der 'unbedingten Wirkung der Lautgesetze' als eine arge Uebertreibung erwiesen wird. Man bedenke, dass diese Texte sämmtlich aus dem Munde eines einzigen, völlig illiteraten Mannes aufgezeichnet sind."

[2] It is, of course, quite different from the long Kāshmīrī Yūsuf Zulaikhā, of Maḥmūd Gāmī, published by K. F. Burkhard in ZDMG. xlix, liii.

Three notes are appended to this Introduction. For the first we are indebted to the kindness of Mr. Crooke. In this note he has placed at the disposal of the readers of the following pages his great experience in the science of comparative folklore, and has discussed the relationships of Hātim's tales to similar stories current in other parts of the world. In the second note I have dealt with the natures of the two texts and with the philological lessons that may be drawn from them. In the third, Sir Aurel Stein discusses the metre of the songs.

ON THE FOLKLORE IN THE STORIES

By Mr. W. CROOKE

This collection of folk-tales and ballads from Kashmīr presents many features of interest. In the following notes I have not attempted to discuss the general question of their value and of the sources from which they may have been derived. I have confined myself to collecting a series of parallels to the motifs and incidents of the stories, largely drawn from oriental sources. For several of these parallels I am indebted to notes prepared by Sir G. Grierson, Dr. E. Sidney Hartland, and Canon J. A. MacCulloch. These have been specially acknowledged.

I. MAḤMŪD OF GHAZNĪ AND THE FISHERMAN

In this story the Sulṭān Maḥmūd, famous for his series of raids in Northern India, like the Khalīfah Hārūn-al-Rashīd, is described as wandering through the city in the disguise of a Faqīr in search of information. The tale, in fact, is possibly a reminiscence of one of the most interesting stories in "The Arabian Nights", "Khalīfah, the Fisherman of Baghdad,"[1] where the Caliph becomes the partner of Khalīfah, the fisherman. In the same collection there is a similar incident in the tale of "Nūr al-Dīn 'Alī and the Damsel Anis al-Jalis", where the Caliph becomes partner of Karīm, the fisherman.[2]

II. THE TALE OF A PARROT

Sir G. Grierson compares with the tale the well-known story of Vikramāditya in the Pancatantra, of which numerous variants have been collected by M. E. Cosquin.[3] Dr. E. Sidney Hartland writes: "In addition to the variants cited by M. E. Cosquin at the reference given, see The History of the Forty Vezirs, translated by Mr. E. J. W. Gibb,[4] in which a king learns a charm from a Darvesh and communicates it to his Wazīr, who practises it upon him at the first opportunity. The king is forced to enter and re-animate a dead parrot, which persuades the gardener to sell it to a courtesan. She claims a thousand sequins as her fee for a visit which she alleges she had paid to a merchant. She had, however, seen this incident only in a dream. The parrot judges between the parties, and is then sold to the king's chief wife. The Wazīr, who has meanwhile succeeded in occupying the vacant body of the king, boasts to the queen of his knowledge of the charm. She persuades him to try it. The parrot, who is present, watching his opportunity, gets possession of his own body and kills the Wazīr." The tale is an illustration of the folk-tale cycle, "The Separable Soul." In a tale from the Panjāb, while a man was asleep, his soul went wandering about. By and by the soul felt thirsty and went into a pitcher of water to get a drink. While it was inside the pitcher someone put on the lid and imprisoned the soul. When the soul of the man did not return he was believed to be dead, and his corpse was carried out for cremation. By chance someone took the lid off the pitcher and released the soul, which at once returned to its proper owner's body. He revived amidst general rejoicings.[1] The parrot in the tale under consideration is what has been called "The Life-Index" of the king.[2]

III. THE TALE OF A MERCHANT

The plot turns on the intrigue of a dissolute woman with a beggarman. Sir G. Grierson quotes a variant from the Linguistic Survey of India.[3] In the Jātaka[4] the Queen Kinnarā falls in love with "a loathsome, misshapen cripple". The king, when she is detected in this intrigue, orders that her hand should be chopped off. But his chaplain dissuades him: "Sire! be not angry with the queen; all women are just the same." In the collection of Sōmadēva, "The Story of the Wife of Śaśin," the lady, in the absence of her husband, visits a man whose hands and feet are eaten away by leprosy; and in another tale from the same collection, "The Story of the Wife of King Simhāksa, and the Wives of his Principal Courtiers," the ladies fall in love with the hump-backed, the blind, and the lame.[5] The stock example of this form of tale, the tragedy of which is admirably enhanced by the contrast between a beautiful woman and her loathsome paramour, is the tale from "The Arabian Nights", "The Tale of the Ensorcelled Prince."[6] Here the vicious wife visits a hideous negro slave, a person who, in oriental tales, is often selected as a paramour by dissolute women. He lives in a hole amidst the rubbish-heaps of the city. "Uncover this basin," he says in a grumbling tone, "and thou shalt find at the bottom the boiled bones of some rats we dined on; pick at these, and then go to the slop-pot, where thou shalt find some leavings of beer which thou mayest drink."

The tale then diverges into the common motif of the love of a mortal for fairies, who live in a world of their own to which there is access by a spring, the moral being that the merchant is no better than his erring wife. In the story of "The Queen of the Fairies", the hero in this way finds Ratnamañjarī, daughter of the king of the Vidhyādharas, marries her by the Gāndharva rite, and loses her in consequence of the violation of a taboo, a common incident in this cycle of stories.[1] With this may be compared Sōmadēva's stories: "The King who married his dependent to the Nereid," and "Yaśaḥ Kētu, the Vidhyādharī Wife, and his Faithful Minister"; and in "The Arabian Nights", "The Second Kalandar's Tale", and "Julnār the Seaborn and her Son, King Badr Bāsim of Persia".[2]

V. THE TALE OF THE GOLDSMITH

This is based on a familiar folk-tale incident — the Language of Signs. In the tale of "The Prince and the Vizier's Son",[3] the princess "pointed to her breast, then to her head, and, lastly, she laid her hand upon a vessel which stood beside her". This is interpreted to mean: When she put her hand on her forehead she showed that she was Cashma Rānī, or "Eye Queen"; when she touched her breast, "my heart shall be thine"; when she touched the bowl, "my home is Lōtā, or the bowl." The closest analogy to the present tale will, however, be found in the tale in "The Arabian Nights" of "'Azīz and 'Azīzah",[4] in which, like the wife in this story, the love-lorn cousin of the contemptible hero interprets for her husband the signs of her rival. In the present tale, when the hero goes to the assignation and falls asleep while he is waiting for the girl, he is advised, when he goes a second time, to cut his finger, so that the pain may keep him awake. A good parallel to this incident occurs in "Gul-i-Bakāwalī", when the prince, who is determined to keep awake in order that he may not fail to meet Bakāwalī, cuts his finger and rubs salt into the wound.[1]

The final test of the faithful wife is that she is ready to risk her honour in order to save that of her faithless husband and his paramour. Sir G. Grierson remarks that another version of the episodes in the garden, of the arrest of the lovers, and of the defeat of the Chief Constable, will be found in J. Hertel, Der Kluge Vizier, ein Kaschmīrischen Volksroman.[2] This episode assumes various forms. In Sōmadēva's "Story of Saktimatī",[3] Samudradatta is arrested with another man's wife in the temple of the Yakṣa, Maṇibhadra, and both are placed in confinement. The wife of Samudragupta, Śaktimatī, exchanges clothes with the paramour of her husband, and allows them to escape. Similar to this is the tale of "Mohammad the Shalabī, and his Minister, and his Wife" in "The Arabian Nights", in which Mohammad takes the Qāẓī's daughter to a place outside the city, where they are caught and imprisoned. Mohammad's wife dresses herself as a youth, enters the prison, and gives her clothes to the girl, who effects her escape. When Mohammad and his wife protest that they have been wrongfully arrested, the king orders that the unfortunate Chief of the Police shall be executed, his house plundered, and his women enslaved.[4]

VI. THE STORY OF YUSUF AND ZULAIKHA

This is the famous tale of Joseph and Potiphar's wife, one of the cycles of great oriental love stories, represented by

"Yūsuf and Zulaiḳha" by Abū'r-Raḥmān Jāmī; "Khusrau and Shīrīn" by Niẓāmu'd-Dīn, who was the author also of "Majnūn and Laila". In the Qur'ān[1] Zulaiḳha is wife of Qiṭfir, or Potiphar, the ultimate source whence this tale and that of the dream of Pharaoh are derived.[2] In the story under consideration we have the familiar incident of the Selection of a New King by an Elephant, for which, as Sir G. Grierson points out, we have several parallels from Kashmīr.[3] In some of the Kashmīr tales the hawk shares the power of selection with the elephant. The fullest discussion of the widespread incident is that by Dr. E. Sidney Hartland.[4] Dr. Hartland adds: "I have also given examples showing that in various places the choice of a king actually depended on omens from animals. Thus, Bāpā, the hero of the Guhilots of Mewār, was selected as heir to the throne by an elephant which put a garland round his neck, not once, but thrice."[5] Selection of the heir by a cobra, which shields the child from the sun by its extended hood, is common. Colonel Tod gives several instances from Rājput traditions.[6] The Nagasiās and Khariās of the Central Provinces tell similar legends.[7] A legend from the French colony of Senegal–Niger tells of a bird, a metamorphosed hero, who decides the succession to the post of Chief Griot by taking up his abode with the Griot who is to obtain promotion.[8] In a Nubian story a blackbird decides the choice of a queen by settling on her head.[9] We have a good example in Sōmadēva: "In that country there was an immemorial custom that an auspicious elephant was driven about by the citizens, and anyone that he took up with his trunk and placed on his back was anointed king."[10]

VII. THE TALE OF THE REED-FLUTE

There is a close resemblance, which we may suppose can hardly be accidental, between this personification of the flute and one of the most poetical passages in the "Arabian Nights" in the tale of "'Alī Nūr-al-Dīn and Miriam, the Girdle Girl".[1] "The girl took the bag from him and opening it shook it, whereupon there fell thereout two-and-thirty pieces of wood, which she fitted one into another, male into female and female into male, till they became a polished lute of Indian workmanship. Then she uncovered her wrists, and laying the lute on her lap bent over it with the bending of mother over babe and swept the strings with her finger-tips, whereupon it moaned and resounded, and after its old home yearned, and it remembered the water that gave it drink, and the earth whence it sprang, and wherein it grew, and it minded the carpenter who cut it and the polisher who polished it, and the merchants who made it their merchandise, and the ship that shipped it; and it cried and called aloud, and moaned and groaned; and it was as if she asked it of all these things, and it answered her with the tongue of the case, reciting these couplets"—for which reference must be made to Sir R. Burton's version, which, though it may be accurate, can retain little of the music of the original poetry.

VIII. THE TALE OF A KING

For the main story Sir G. Grierson refers to the Kashmīr stories of "The Two Brothers" and "The Four Princes".[2] The basis of the story is a moral apologue, enforcing the need of caution, which is a commonplace in folk-tales, as in the cycle of "The Seven Wazīrs", "Haste in killing is a vile thing, for 'tis a grave matter: the quick we can kill, but the killed we cannot quicken, and needs must we look to the end of affairs".[3] "Often procrastination serves to avert an inauspicious measure," says Sōmadēva.[4]

[2] Knowles, op. cit., 166, 423.
[3] Burton, op. cit., ix, 54.
[4] Kathā-Sarit-Sāgara, i, 279.

The tale diverges in various ways.

First, we have the "Potiphar's Wife" cycle, and that of Phædra and Hippolytus, with their numberless variants, in which a vicious woman fabricates a false charge against her continent stepson, or some other equally innocent person who has the ill-luck to come into contact with her. In Buddhist literature this appears in the tale of the love of Asōka's queen for Kunāla, son of her co-queen, Padmāvatī. On his refusal to accept her advances, the queen, to whom her husband, the emperor, had offered any boon she chose, asked to be allowed to assume royal power for seven days. During this time she sent officers to Takṣaśila and had Kunāla blinded. He appeared before his father in the guise of a lute-player, was recognized, and the queen was burnt to death.[1] The same authority refers to the tale of Sārangdhara, who rejected the advances of his stepmother, and when she complained to the king, it was ordered that his limbs should be cut off, and that he should be exposed to wild beasts, a fate from which he was saved only by a miraculous Voice from Heaven.[2]

Then comes the incident of the king who slays his favourite falcon who dashes the cup out of his hand as he is about to drink the poisoned water. Canon J. A. MacCulloch kindly informs me that there is a version in the Persian Bidpai literature, in the Anwār-i-Suheli,[3] the reference to which has been traced by Sir G. Grierson.

Sir G. Grierson also refers to two similar tales from Bengal, one of the tale of a snake in the room of a wedded couple; the other, a full story, with tales of the three guardians, in one of which a horse is substituted for the hawk.[4]

Next, we have the well-known tale of the "Faithful Dog", best known in the story of Beddgelert. Sir G. Grierson notes that it occurs in the Kashmīr tale, "A Lach of Rupees for a Bit of Advice"[1]; and he quotes the following parallel from Baluchistan:[2] "A shrine dedicated to a dog would be a bit of an oddity anywhere, and something more than an oddity in a Musalmān country. Yet such a shrine is to be found in the Kīrthar hills. And this is the pious legend that clings to it. Once upon a time there was a dog that changed masters in a pledge for a loan. Now he had not spent many days with his new master before thieves came at dead of night and took off ever so much treasure. But he slunk after the rogues and never let them out of his sight till he had marked down the spot where they had buried the spoil. And, on the morrow, he barked and he barked and made such a to-do, there was nothing for it but for the master of his house to follow him till he came to the spot where the treasure was buried. Well, the owner was pleased enough to get his goods back, as you may guess. And round the dog's neck he tied a label whereon was writ in plain large letters that the debt was discharged, and with that he sent him packing to his old master. So the dog bounded off home, as pleased as pleased could be. But his master was mighty angry to see him, for he was an honest fellow, and much as he loved his dog, he set more store on being a man of his word. And as a warning to all breakers of pledges he hacked him limb from limb. But when in the end he saw the label round his neck, and heard all that he had done, he was exceedingly sorry. So he gathered up the limbs and buried them in a grave. Had the limbs been the limbs of a true believer, and not the limbs of an unclean beast, he could not have made more pother over the burial. And to the grave of the faithful dog Jhalawān folk resort to this day. And there they sacrifice sheep, and distribute the flesh in alms, in the certain belief that whatsoever they seek, that they will surely find."

In Western folklore the tale assumes various forms, the earliest version appearing in Pausanias.[1] It appears in the Gesta Romanorum, No. 26 (Herrtage, p. 98). In the Book of Sindibād it appears as the story of "The Snake and the Cat", the faithful cat killing the snake in the baby's cradle.[2] In the Pancatantra[3] and Hitopadēśa[4] it is a mungoose which attacks the snake, and in Kalilah and Dimna a weasel. Sōmadēva tells it in the form of the "Story of the Brāhman and the Mungoose".[5]

The account of the shrine erected to the faithful dog in Baluchistān already quoted is not the only instance of worship of this kind in India. In the Central Provinces the tale is told of a Banjārā who, after he killed his dog, "built a temple to the dog's memory, which is called the Kukurra Maṇḍhī. And in this temple is the image of a dog. This temple is in the Drūg District, four miles from Bālōd. A similar story is told of the temple of Kukurra Maṭh in Mandlā."[6] A similar tale has been localized at Rōhisā in Kāṭhīāwār. When his master learned how basely he had treated the faithful animal, "he wept bitterly and caused the Chitrāsar lake to be excavated, and built round at the spot where the dog fell dead, and on the little island in the lake he built a temple in which he placed his dog's image, which is there to this day."[7] The tale has migrated as far west as Ireland and as far east as China.[8]

X. THE TALE OF RĀJĀ VIKRAMĀDITYA

The episode of the princess beset by a serpent is, in a slightly different form, found in the tale in the Book

[1] Pausanias, x, 33, 9, with the note of Sir J. G. Frazer, v, 421 f. See the references in Clouston, The Book of Sindibād, 236–41, 329, 359. But there is a much fuller account in Clouston, Popular Tales and Fictions, ii, 166 ff., 177, n. A complete bibliography of the tale and its analogues will be found in The Seven Sages of Rome, edited by K. Campbell, New York, 1907, pp. lxviii–lxxxii. In the Welsh Fables of Cattwg the Wise the story is given and located at Abergarwan (Iolo MSS., 154, 561). There must, therefore, have apparently been more than one version current in Wales.

of Tobit,[1] in which, by the advice of Raphael, the devil is scared by the stench of the burnt heart and liver of a fish. Sir G. Grierson quotes a story from Bengal in which we have a princess from whose body a snake issues.[2] It is unnecessary to discuss this tale at length, because, as Dr. E. Sidney Hartland reminds me, it has been examined, with a full collection of parallels, by Mr. F. H. Groome.[3]

XII. THE TALE OF THE ĀKHŪN

Sir G. Grierson remarks that there is a somewhat similar story in the Linguistic Survey of India,[4] of which the following is a copy: "There was a Ṭhākur who had nothing to eat in his house, so he said to himself, 'Brother, I'm going to look for service.' There was also a bird of omen, but though he went every day she never gave him one. One day she went out to pick up some food, and before she started she told her children on no account to give an omen to anyone. While she was away the Ṭhākur came as usual, and the chicks gave him the looked-for indication; so he saddled his camel, mounted, and set off.

Back came the omen-bird, and overtook the Ṭhākur on his way. She assumed the form of a woman. 'Who are you?' said he. 'I'm your wife.' 'Come along; one has become two.' So he took her up on his camel. They came to a tank full of water, and he was compelled to descend for a certain purpose. 'I'll be back in a moment,' said he. 'All right,' said she. On the bank of the tank he saw a snake pursuing a frog. 'It's a shame to let the poor thing be killed,' said he. So he took out his pen-knife and cut bits of flesh out of his thigh with which he fed the snake till it could eat no more. Then he got up and went back to his camel. His thigh was all bloody. 'What's happened?' said the omen-bird. 'A snake was going to eat a frog, so I threw it lumps of flesh from my thigh instead.'[5] Straightway, the omen-bird passed her hand over the wound, and it healed as it was before. Then they got up on the camel and went on their way."

Sir G. Grierson remarks: "This is the end of the extract. The entire story, a long one, will be found on pp. 82 ff. of Mr. Macalister's Specimens.[1] The frog takes the form of a barber and overtakes the Ṭhākur. The three then go on. The snake, out of gratitude for his good meal, also joins the company as a Brāhman. The four settle in a city, where the omen-bird gets the Ṭhākur service under the king, on a salary of a lākh of rupees. The king's barber persuades the king to set the Ṭhākur three apparently impossible tasks (to get a snake's jewel, to find a ring thrown into a well, and to get news of his dead and gone ancestors), all of which the Ṭhākur performs with the aid of the snake, the frog, and the omen-bird. To carry out the third task, the omen-bird assumes the form of the Ṭhākur, and gets the king to make a huge funeral pyre, on which she sits. It is lighted, and she flies away in the smoke. She then sends the Ṭhākur to the king with the news that he has come back from the king's ancestors and that they are all well, but want a barber. So the king makes another pyre, and sets his barber on it to go off to his ancestors. The pyre is lighted, and the barber is, of course, burned to death, and the king and the Ṭhākur live happy ever afterwards." The tale belongs to the cycle of Friendly Animals represented in the West by Perraults' famous version of "Puss in Boots". In this cycle the performance of seemingly impossible tasks by the aid of helping animals is common.[2]

The tasks set in the tale now under consideration deserve fuller treatment.

The incident of the ruby with a worm inside it appears in three forms in the "Arabian Nights". In the story of "Ma'arūf the Cobbler and his wife Fātimah", Ma'arūf, when called on to examine a jewel, squeezes it between his thumb and forefinger, and shows that it is "only a bittock of mineral worth a thousand dinars. 'Why dost thou style it a jewel?'"[1] Again, in the "Tale of the King who kenned the Quintessence of Things", the old man examines the jewels brought for sale. He decides that one of them is of small value, and the merchant asks: "How can this, which is bigger of bulk and worthier for water and righter in rondure, be of less value than that?" The Shaikh decides that "in its interior is a teredo, a boring worm; but the other jewel is sound and secure against breakage".[2] Lastly, in the "Story of Three Sharpers", the sharper says, "An thou determine upon the killing of yonder man, first break the gem, and if thou find therein a worm, thou wilt know the wight's word to have been veridical." The king smashes the gem with his mace and finds a worm within it.[3]

Further on, in the episode when the jeweller seizes the garment of one of the girls as she is bathing, we have a version of the Swan Maiden cycle, of which an early form appears in the legend of Kṛishṇa when he takes the garments of the Gōpīs as they are bathing in the Jumna. In many cases of tales of this cycle the Swan Maiden is captured to be eventually married to the hero. Sometimes, as in the present case, she is held to ransom. It is unnecessary to discuss at length a cycle of tales which has been fully investigated by Dr. E. Sidney Hartland and by others.[4] Again, we have the incident of the ruby emitting a brilliant light, a lieu commun in Eastern and Western folk-tales. In one of Sōmadēva's stories, "The Brave King Vikramāditya," the King Hēmaprabha gives his daughter, Ratnaprabhā, to Naravāhanadatta, with "glittering heaps of jewels, gleaming like innumerable wedding fires".[5]

At every word the fairy Lālmāl speaks a ruby drops, or seven rubies fall daily from her mouth. In one of Sōmadēva's tales Marubhūti eats two grains of rice from food in which a child had been cooked, and thus gains the power of spitting gold. On this Mr. Tawney remarks: "In 'Sagas from the Far East' there is a story of a gold-spitting prince. In Gonzenbach's 'Sicilianische Märchen' Quaddaruni's sister drops pearls and precious stones from her hair when she combs it —Dr. Köhler in his note on this tale gives many European parallels. In a Swedish story a gold ring falls from the heroine's mouth whenever she speaks, and in a Norwegian story gold coins. I may add to the parallels quoted by Dr. Köhler, No. 36 in Coelho's 'Contos Portuguezes', in which tale pearls drop from the heroine's mouth."[1]

Lālmāl, the fairy, gave the Lapidary her ring and said: "Go thou again into the spring. Close by the side of it thou wilt find a great rock. Show thou my ring unto that rock, and it will arise and stand upright." We are reminded of the wonder-working ring of Aladdin in the "Arabian Nights". In a Kashmīr tale, "The Charmed Ring," the merchant's son speaks to the ring, and immediately a beautiful house and a lovely woman with golden hair appeared.[2] Sulaimān, or Solomon, entrusts his seal ring, on which his kingdom depends, to his concubine, Amīnah. Sakhr, the Jinnī, transformed into the king's likeness, takes it, after which Sulaimān is reduced to beggary. But after forty days the Jinnī fled, throwing the ring into the sea, where it was swallowed by a fish, and eventually restored to its owner. The tale is Talmudic, and there is a hint of it in the Qur'ān.[3]

In the tale of "Vinītamati who became a Holy Man", in Sōmadēva's Collection, the Yakṣa gives the hero a ring which averts all calamities known as īti, that is to say, excessive rain, drought, locusts, birds, and injury by foreign invaders;[4] and in another tale, "Śrīdatta and Mṛgāṅkavatī," we have a magic ring which counteracts the effects of poison.[1]

The Lady of the Rock turns the Lapidary into a pebble. Then her mother says: "Aha! my girl, I smell the smell of a mortal man"—the "Fee faw fum" of "Jack, the Giant Killer", common in Märchen. The Italian demon, the Orco, has "a demonic acuteness of scent; he can tell, like a sea-monster, the approach of human flesh".[2] The technical phrase in folk-tales from the Indian plains is manush-gandha, "the smell of man's flesh." In a Panjāb story, the tale of "Lāl Bādshāh, the Red King", the ogre cries, "I smell man's flesh, I smell man's blood."[3] In a Bengal story the Rākṣasas cry: "How, mow, khow! A human being I smell," or "Hye, mye, khye!" with the same meaning.[4]

This tale, it may be remarked, contains a version of the Letter of Death. I have discussed this incident in connexion with the story of Bellerophon. In the Homeric version:[5] "To Bellerophon the gods granted beauty and lovely manhood; but Proitos, in his heart, devised evil for him, and being mightier far drove him from the land of the Argives, whom Zeus had made subject to his sceptre. Now Proitos' wife, goodly Anteia, lusted after him, to have converse in secret love, but no whit prevailed she, for the uprightness of his heart, on wise Bellerophon. Then spake she lyingly to King Proitos: 'Die, Proitos, or else slay Bellerophon, that would have converse in love with me against my will.' So spake she, and anger got hold upon the king at that he heard. To slay him he forbare, for his soul had shame at that; but he sent him to Lykia, and gave him tokens of woe, graving in a folded tablet many deadly things, and bade him show these to Anteia's father, that he might be slain." So the king of Lykia imposed tasks upon him, and when he accomplished them the king gave him his daughter in marriage and half of all the honour of his kingdom. Dr. Sidney Hartland writes: "Thucydides gives a similar story of Pausanias, Regent of Sparta. The episode of Uriah the Hittite (2 Samuel xi, 14) is another case. Shakespeare, drawing from Saxo Grammaticus (lib. iii), employs it in 'Hamlet'. Walter Map (De Nugis Curialium, v, 4) recounts it of Count and Earl Godwin, but leaves the tale half told. It may almost be said to be a commonplace of folk-tales. It generally makes its appearance in tales belonging to the cycle of 'The Man born to be a King'." To this some oriental examples may be added. In Sōmadēva's "Story of Śivavarman" the king writes a letter to a neighbouring chief, asking him to slay his minister, Śivavarman. He escapes by announcing that God will not send rain for twelve years on that land in which he is slain.[1] In the Kashmīr story of "The Ogress Queen" the queen writes a letter to her grandmother, a Rākṣasī, telling her to kill the lad, but a faqīr reads it and tears it up.[2] In the Panjāb story of "The Son of Seven Mothers" the queen gives the lad a piece of a broken potsherd, with these words inscribed on it: "Kill the bearer at once, and sprinkle his blood like water." It is read and altered by the hero's wife.[3] In the Bengal story of "The Boy whom Seven Mothers suckled", the Rākṣasī queen sends the boy to her mother with a letter requesting her to devour him the moment he delivers the letter.[4] We have the same incident in "Brave Hīralālbāsē" and in "The Demon and the King's Son" in the collection of Miss Maive Stokes.[5] Similar to this is the action of the Sulṭān in the story of "Ahmed the Orphan".[6] In Arabic folklore such letters are so common that they are known as "the letters of Mutalammis", one of the intended victims of the trick.[7]

Sir G. Grierson reminds me that there is a good version of the "Letter of Death" tale in the Bhakta-māla,[1] in which Dhṛṣṭabuddhi gives a letter to Candrahāsa, saying, "Take thou this to my house and give this letter into the hands of my son Madana, and say unto him, 'Prithee carry out what is written therein.'" But Candrahāsa falls asleep in a garden where comes to sport with her damsels and her fellow-maidens the daughter of Dhṛṣṭabuddhi. "By chance she saw Candrahāsa as he slept, and love for him entered her heart. So she led her companions away, and then leaving them she returned by another path and gazed enraptured at his beauty. In her yearning she saw by him a letter, with her brother's name upon it. She took it up and read it, and therein was written, 'At once give thou poison (viṣa) to the one that beareth this letter. Delay thou not in this, or dread my anger.' When she read these words, wroth was she with her father, and filled with pity was she for the youth. Now the damsel's name was Viṣayā. Ink made she with the collyrium of her eyes, and after the word viṣa, poison, added she but one little syllable yā, so that viṣa became viṣayā." So Viṣayā was married to Candrahāsa, and the plot laid by the vile Dhṛṣṭabuddhi came to naught.

We have here also a version of "Jack and the Beanstalk", fully discussed by Canon J. A. MacCulloch, who points out the connexion between mythology and folklore, where "a primitive mythological way of regarding the universe has suggested and given rise to the chief incident of one of our well-known nursery tales".[2]

On the question of eating the leathern peas, Dr. Sidney Hartland writes: "It may be suspected that the real reason why the hero is forbidden to eat the leathern peas is, not that they are indigestible, but that to do so would be to eat the food of supernatural beings, and so unite himself with them permanently; he might not be able to return; he would become one of them. I have considered elsewhere similar incidents.[3]

A full discussion of the matter would be very lengthy, and would lead to inquiries into the rights of hospitality, magical belief, and so forth."

When the hero marries the lady, she directs him to ask only for the skin mat, known as the Flying Couch. We may compare this with the flying horses of the "Arabian Nights".[1] In the Bengali tales the heroine is carried through the air by two birds, and a club and rope carry people across the ocean.[2]

Brahmā, in the Hindu mythology, gives Kuvēra the great self-moving car, called Puṣpaka.[3] We met with flying chariots and similar magical vehicles in the tales of Sōmadēva.[4] The closest parallel to the incident under consideration is the Flying Carpet of the tale of "Prince Ahmad and the Fairy Peri-Banou" of the "Arabian Nights".[5]

ON THE LANGUAGE USED IN THE TALES

As regards the text of these tales recorded by Gōvinda Kaula, it is, so far as its contents and wording go, in every way worthy of the reputation of that excellent scholar. But the spelling of the words is that customary among Kāshmīrī Paṇḍits, and is based on no fixed system. These persons have no certain rules for representing the broken vowel sounds that form a prominent feature of the language, and Gōvinda Kaula, each time that a word containing one of these sounds recurred, spelt it as the spirit moved him at the time. A few examples will suffice. The word pōda, manifest, is written पेद in ii, 1, and पोद in iii, 8; korun, he made, is written करुन in iv, 6, but कुरुन in vii, 4, although he writes करुन in the very next line; ôsu, he was, is written आसु in ii, 4, but आस and आसु in ii, 5. It is evident that to reproduce such spelling would render this work of little use to any person not perfectly familiar with the language, and would greatly complicate the preparation of any index or vocabulary.

A uniform system of spelling Kāshmīrī in the Nāgarī character was devised by the late Paṇḍit Īśvara Kaula, and was used by him in his Kaśmīraśabdâmṛta, or Kāshmīrī Grammar in the Sanskrit language, which has been published by the Asiatic Society of Bengal. Although not perfect, this system has the merit of being an attempt to represent each sound in the language by one character, and by one character only. With a few minor alterations, it has been followed by me in various works on Kāshmīrī, such as my Essays on Kāçmīrī Grammar, my Manual of the Kāshmīrī Language, and the Kāshmīrī–English Dictionary in course of publication by the Asiatic Society of Bengal, and it is now, I believe, generally accepted by European scholars.

In preparing the transliterated version of Gōvinda Kaula's text I have therefore first copied the latter, spelling the words according to Īśvara Kaula's system, and have then rigidly transliterated that into the Roman character. It must be clearly understood that this process has in no way altered the real text in any way. If Īśvara Kaula were to read out the text written according to his system, and if Govinda Kaula were to read out what he himself had written, the resultant sounds would in every case be identical. The change has been one of spelling, and of nothing else; in other words, it has been merely a change from unsystematic to systematic spelling.

My text in the Roman character can at once be mechanically converted into the Nāgarī character according to Īśvara Kaula's system of spelling by the aid of the following table and appended instructions:—

अ a, आ ā, इ i, ई ī, उ u, ऊ ū, ए ē, ऐ ai, ओ ō, औ au.
क ka, ख kha, ग ga, ङ ṅa.
च ca, छ cha, ज ja. ञ ñă.
च़ tsa, छ़ tsha, ज़ za.
ट ṭa, ठ ṭha, ड ḍa, ण ṇa.
त ta, थ tha, द da, न na.

प pa, फ pha, ब ba, म ma.
य yĕ, र ra, ल la, व va, wa.
श shĕ, स sa, ह ha.

It will be observed that the above agrees with the ordinary system of transliterating Nāgarī, with the following exceptions :—

(1) Kāshmīrī possesses no sonant aspirates.

(2) The letters ङ and ण are each used only as a member of a conjunct consonant before a letter of its own class, as in ङ्क nka, ङ्ख nkha, ङ्ग nga, ण्ट ṇṭa, ण्ठ ṇṭha, ण्ड ṇḍa. Under these circumstances I have not thought it necessary to add in either case a diacritical mark to the n, more especially because, in the Persian character, ङ, ण, and न् are all represented by ں.

(3) After the letters ञ, य, and श, the letter a is always pronounced ĕ. Hence, I have transliterated them ñĕ, yĕ, and shĕ respectively. For श I use shĕ instead of śĕ; as in Kāshmīrī the sound of this letter is the same as that of the Persian ش. The letter not only represents a Persian ش, but also the Indian श and ष, the sound of all three having been conflated into one sound, that of the English sh in "shell". Kāshmīrī possesses no cerebral sibilant, although in Kāshmīrī MSS. we sometimes find the letter ष. This, however, is only Paṇdits' affectation, who pretend that they ought to write पोष्, not पोश, a flower, because there is a ष in the Sanskrit पुष्पम्.

(4) Attention may be called to the affricative letters च *ts*a, छ tsha, and ज़ za. The letter tsha is the aspirate of *ts*a, i.e. it is pronounced as in "cat's head" and not as in "cat-shark".

(5) The short vowels ĕ (except in the cases of ñĕ, yĕ, and shĕ) and ŏ are represented by य and व respectively. They never commence a syllable. In other words, when य and व follow a consonant they are pronounced ĕ and ŏ respectively. Thus क्य is kĕ, not kyĕ, and क्व is kŏ, not kwa. Some Kāshmīrīs, especially Hindūs, always sound ĕ and ē as if there were a half-pronounced y before them, so that in their mouths क्य sounds as kʸĕ and के as kʸē. The vowel ĕ is generally sounded like the e in "met" and the vowel ŏ like the o in "hot".

The various mātrā-vowels are represented as follows. For particulars in regard to them the reader is referred to the present writer's Essays and Manual.

कक् $k^ak$.
कि $k^i$.
कु $k^u$.
कू $k^ū$.
क्यक् $k\check{e}k$.

The vowels $^a$ and $\check{e}$ can never end a syllable.

The various modified, or aprasiddha, vowels are represented and sounded as follows :—

| | | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| $^a$ | written as in | कक् | $k^ak$, | and sounded like a very short a. | | | |

As explained in the Kāshmīrī Manual, the sounds of ĕ and ŏ are not affected by i-mātrā, and hence, in this case, no diacritical marks are given to them in the Roman character, although they are marked as aprasiddha in the Nāgarī character.

As regards Sir Aurel Stein's system of presenting the sounds uttered by Hātim, it is, of course, consistent with itself. Each letter employed by him represents one sound and one sound only, and each sound is represented by one letter and by one letter only. His system, however, is not the same as mine, and he authorized me, in preparing his materials for the press, to alter it to agree with mine, so long as the alteration was consistent. For instance, I was authorized to alter his å to my ó, provided that this was always done, that å was never altered to any other letter, and that no other of his letters was also altered to ó.

His system of arranging consonants presented no difficulty. It is practically the same as mine, and only one or two changes were necessary. These are as follows. The fricative sound resembling that of an English ts is represented in my system by ṯs and in his by ṯs. The sound which corresponds to that of the Persian ش, and which in Nāgarī is written श, is written ṣ by Sir Aurel Stein and sh by me. I have throughout altered his ṯs to ṯs and ṣ to sh. Similarly, the sound represented by the Persian ژ is written ẓ by Sir Aurel Stein, and, for the sake of uniformity, I have altered it to zh, although the sound is not heard in Srīnagar Kāshmīrī or, consequently, found in Gōvinda Kaula's transcript.

The labial semi-vowel in Kāshmīrī is a pure bi-labial, and not a dento-labial. Its sound is neither that of v or that of w, but something between both, sometimes, especially before palatal vowels, tending towards a v-sound, and sometimes, especially before a and before labial vowels, tending towards a w-sound. In my system I use both v and w for its representation, endeavouring so far as was possible to indicate the shade of sound to which, in my experience, it approximates. Sir Aurel Stein represents the labial semi-vowel uniformly by v, without regard to its exact shade of sound. I have not ventured to interfere with this, and have left his v's unchanged throughout.

Possibly his i̯ and u̯ are also semi-vowels, but the matter is doubtful, and will be referred to again under the head of vowels.

It thus follows that, so far as the representation of consonants is concerned, the systems of transcription employed in the printed version of Sir Aurel Stein's copy of Hātim's text and in my copy of Gōvinda Kaula's text are, with the exception of the representation of the labial semi-vowel, identical.

Turning to the representation of vowel-sounds, it might appear that the matter is equally simple. I thought so myself at first, and commenced transcribing his text with the alterations necessary to make it agree with my system. But before long I found that this was an impossible task. The range of vowel-sounds used by Hātim is not the same as that used in the Śrīnagar Kāshmīrī, with which alone I am familiar. Hātim has sounds, such as the a in "cancelled" (Sir Aurel's ạ, my ă), which so far as I am aware occurs only rarely in Śrīnagar Kāshmīrī, and then only in monosyllables ending in an aspirated surd—e.g. in the Hindū pronunciation of krăkh, a noise, but not in the plural kraka. Again, on the other hand, Śrīnagar Kāshmīrī has two short o's—one, the first o in the English word "promote", which I represent by o, and the other the o in "hot", which I represent by ŏ. Sir Aurel Stein's system knows only the latter of these, which he represents by o. There are numerous other differences and cross divisions in the two systems, and a thorough examination of the whole of Hātim's text gives the following results:—

On the one hand, some of Hātim's sounds have their exact equivalent in the Śrīnagar Kāshmīrī known to me. These are the a in "America", the ā in "father", the ai in "aisle", the e in "met", the ē like the a in "vale", the ō in "open", the u in "put", the ū in "rule", the ü in the German "Kürze", and the peculiar Kāshmīrī ǖ, for which, so far as I am aware, there is no equivalent in any European language. In all these our transcriptions agree, except that Sir Aurel represents the e in "met" by e, while I use ĕ. On the other hand, there is the greatest confusion between the two systems in their representation of the broken vowels, which play so important a rôle in Kāshmīrī pronunciation. One example will suffice. There is a modified ā, which Sir Aurel Stein represents by ą̄, and which he says is sounded like the u in "rut" prolonged. In Śrīnagar Kāshmīrī the sound strikes my ear rather as a prolonged German ö, although many Paṇḍits, in certain words, sound it almost like the o in "note",[1] and I represent it by ö. So far the matter is comparatively simple, and it might be possible to solve the problem of the two competing transcriptions; but the case is complicated by the fact that this same modified ā almost equally often has an altogether different sound—that of the aw in "awful"—which Sir Aurel represents by å̄, and which I represent by ó. This may occur in the same word when it occurs more than once. For instance, the word which I always transliterate as pödu, and which means "manifest", was sounded by Hātim as på̄da in ii, 1, and as pą̄da in iii, 8. At other times it was sounded as ō, here following the example of the Paṇḍits to which I have just alluded. Thus my möjᵘ, a mother, is Hātim's mōj in viii, 3, but mą̄j in viii, 1. It is evident that it would be impossible to arrange any system of transcription such as mine, which is based on the Nāgarī spelling of Kāshmīrī Paṇḍits, so as to agree with a pronunciation varying so greatly as in the above examples. I have therefore decided to leave Sir Aurel Stein's representation of the vowel-sounds untouched, and to print it exactly as it stands. This will give rise to inconvenience in comparing the two texts, but it is better that this inconvenience should occur than that any attempted alterations of mine should obscure the niceties of Hātim's pronunciation.

The following is the system employed by Sir Aurel Stein in representing the vowel-sounds used by Hātim :—

List of Vowel-sounds, as used by Sir Aurel Stein in his Transcription a as in "*A*merica".

ᵃ a very short a, but quite audible.
ā as in "l*a*rge".

[1] e.g. most Paṇḍits pronounce the word kömᵘ, work, as if it rhymed with "home".

a as in "*a*ncelled".
ă a very short a, having the quality of the u in "h*u*t".
ā has the sound of the u in "h*u*t", but long.
â as the aw in "*aw*ful".
ai as in "*ai*sle".
āu practically equal to the diphthong au, like the ou in "s*ou*nd", but sometimes heard as ā with a semiliquid v.
e as in "m*e*t".
ē as the a in "v*a*le".
i as in "p*i*n".
ĭ a very short i, but quite audible.
ī as the i in "p*i*que".
o as in "h*o*t".
ō as the o in "*o*pen".
u as in "p*u*t".
ŭ a very short u, but quite audible.
ū as the u in "r*u*le".
ü as in German "Kürze", Hungarian "üres".
ǖ a peculiar long vowel difficult to pronounce. See Kāshmīrī Manual, p. 17 (e).

A few remarks may be made upon the above.

The so-called mātrā-vowels are, as in my system, represented by small letters above the line. Thus $^{a}$, $^{i}$, $^{u}$. Sir Aurel Stein remarks about each of them that it is "very short, but quite audible". As a rule, in Śrīnagar Kāshmīrī, this is true of $^{a}$ and $^{i}$, but to my ear a final $^{u}$ is hardly audible, if audible at all. Paṇḍits tell me that they can hear it, but I have only occasionally been able to do so. This seems also to have been Sir Aurel Stein's experience. It is evident that what is meant by his statement that $^{u}$ is quite audible is that he has written it when it was audible and has not written it when it was not audible. A reference to the index of words arranged according to their final letters will show that there are hundreds of words ending in $^{u}$ in which he did not hear that letter, and consequently did not write it. The cases in which he did hear it are comparatively few. Such are bāguk$^{u}$ (iii, 9) and vot$^{u}$mot (vii, 29). The inaudibility of this letter is well illustrated by words such as my amyuk$^{u}$, which becomes in Hātim's mouth ạmᵘuk or ạmyuk in iii, 4, and aⁱmᵘuk in xii, 17; and my dop$^{u}$, which is represented not only by dop$^{u}$ (ii, 4; xi, 12), but also by dop (v, 9; viii, 1, 13; etc.), dup (xi, 2, 14; xii, 4), and even dup$^{a}$ (xi, 11). It is unnecessary to multiply examples. Many more will be found in the indexes, and it is sufficient to state here that, like me, Sir Aurel Stein has found that u-mātrā is very rarely audible.

Regarding the sound represented by āu̯, Sir Aurel Stein says that it is practically a diphthong au, like the ou in "sound", but is sometimes heard as ā with a semi-liquid v. As it struck me that possibly this u̯ might be the equivalent of my w, I referred the point to Sir Aurel, and he wrote as follows in reply:—

"As regards gau̯, I am now certain that I do not mean w by the special u̯, but merely wished to indicate that the sound was not a usual diphthong. Hātim always keeps the preceding long ā [in āu̯] quite clear of the u̯. This is all I wish to indicate by the marks I employed. It may be the semi-vowel v, but, in that case, it is exceedingly liquid." It will be observed that, as in gau̯ above quoted, the u̯ does not necessarily follow a long ā. Sir Aurel also occasionally writes an i̯, to which the same remarks apply.

The Kāshmīrī of these tales, as recorded by Paṇḍit Gōvinda Kaula, is practically the same as that described by Paṇḍit Īśvara Kaula in his Kāshmīrī grammar entitled the Kaśmīra-śabdāmṛta,[1] and by the present writer in his Essays on Kāçmīrī Grammar and in his Kāshmīrī Manual. There are, however, a few instances in which there occur forms not authorized by any of these works. Some of these are described as "village forms", i.e. as not used in the city of Śrīnagar, and hence by purists banned from literary Kāshmīrī. Others are idioms peculiar to the Musalmān dialect, Hātim, the narrator, being, of course, a follower of Islām; while a few others are additional forms allowed in Śrīnagar, but not recorded by Īśvara Kaula.

[1] Published by the Asiatic Society of Bengal in the Bibliotheca Indica.

As regards vocabulary, there are two unusual words which I have not met elsewhere. One of these is rāṭun, to cause to seize, which is not in Īśvara Kaula's very full Dhātupāṭha. It is the causal of the verb raṭun, which is of frequent occurrence. The other is the word gwāsh, instead of gāsh, the light of dawn, which occurs three times, and is therefore not a slip of the transcriber. The usual negative particle is the standard na, not; but nu occurs once, and a poetical equivalent is nau.

In Persian the words shāh and pādshāh, a king, sometimes appear with the ā of the final syllable shortened, so that we also find shah and pādshah. The same is the case when these words are borrowed in the language of these tales, though, under the ordinary Kāshmīrī rule, a short a after sh becomes ĕ, so that we get both shāh and shĕh (in shāhmār or shĕhmār, a python) and pātashāh and pātashĕh. In the second word it will be observed that, as is frequent in borrowed words, the Paiśācī Prakrit rule of hardening the sonant d to t is followed. On the other hand, Sir Aurel Stein always writes the word pādshāh or pādshah with a d. From this we gather that while Hātim, like a good Musalmān, adhered to the original borrowed form of the word, Gōvinda Kaula wrote the word as he was accustomed to hear it in the standard Hindū Kāshmīrī of Śrīnagar.

As regards the vowel-sounds, Gōvinda Kaula almost always indicates the same sounds as those recorded by Īśvara Kaula. According to the latter there is an important group of nouns ending in $^{a}r$ which indicate professions (iv, 99), such as rang$^{a}$r, a dyer; sŏn$^{a}$r, a goldsmith; man$^{a}$r, a lapidary, and so on. The only noun of this group occurring in the Tales is sŏn$^{a}$r, a goldsmith, and this G.K. persistently writes sŏnar, with a full a. In Kāshmīrī, when the vowel of a monosyllable is a followed by an aspirated surd consonant, the a takes the sound of the a in the English word "hat" (Essays, p. 6). Gōvinda Kaula attempts to represent this sound in the word krakh, outcry, by ē, and writes krēkh. Possibly this represents a real variation of pronunciation. In villages a followed by i-mātrā is often pronounced i. G.K. has reproduced this in one instance in the word panin$^{i}$ (iv, 7), which he here writes panin, and which Sir Aurel Stein represents by pan$^{v}$en. Another instance of village pronunciation recorded by G.K. is the substitution of a for u in tshananāwun for tshunanāwun, to cause to cast (x, 13).

In the Kāshmīrī of Īśvara Kaula the sound represented by ö is changed to ü̃ before i-mātrā, i, or y. Thus from köd, imprisonment, we have kü̃d$^{i}$, a prisoner, with a dative singular kü̃dis. G.K. never indicates this last change. Thus he writes köd$^{i}$, ködis; söty or sötin for sü̃ty or sü̃tin, with; pöntsyum$^{u}$ for pü̃ntsyum$^{u}$, fifth.

As regards consonants we may first note that in the villages the letters ḍ and r are frequently interchanged. This r is a dental letter, as elsewhere on the North-West Frontier. We see this clearly in words like khālun or khārun, to mount; wālun or wārun, to bring down, in which r is in standard Kāshmīrī interchangeable with a dental l. We thus find that in the villages there is free interchange between a cerebral ḍ and a dental r, which could not take place were it not that, as in all Dardic languages, in the common village talk of Kashmīr there is a weak feeling of the difference between cerebrals and dentals. We shall see that in Hātim's pronunciation this want of differentiation between these two classes of sounds is remarkably evident. Gōvinda Kaula's spelling is more influenced by his literary training and familiarity with Sanskrit, but even he reproduces the interchange of ḍ and r in several instances, such as lārun or lāḍun, to pursue; kūr$^{ü}$ or kūḍ$^{ü}$, a daughter; mor$^{u}$ or moḍ$^{u}$, the body; thür$^{ü}$-kani or thüḍ$^{ü}$-kani, backwards; tshāḍun or tshārun, to seek. In all these the standard form sanctioned by Īśvara Kaula is the first of each pair. The examples mor$^{u}$ and moḍ$^{u}$ are very instructive. G.K. gives both forms, and so does Sir Aurel Stein in his transcription, but the two do not always agree. Where G.K. has ḍ Sir Aurel often has r, and vice versa. This illustrates how nearly akin these two letters were as they issued from Hātim's mouth.

The pronunciation of the Persian letter ذ zāl in borrowed words varies. Sometimes we have z as kākaz, paper, and sometimes d as in kākad, paper, and gudarun, to happen.

There are two occurrences of the aspiration of a non-final consonant, viz. bātha for bāta, words (xii, 25), and ṭhôṭhᵘ for ṭôṭhᵘ, beloved (vii, 4). There are no other instances of such aspiration or disaspiration, although Sir Aurel's transcription teems with both. We have a solitary instance of the insertion of w in the word gwāsh for gāsh, already mentioned. It is probably connected with the Sanskrit kāśa-.

In the declension of nouns there are a few examples of departure from the rules laid down by Īśvara Kaula. According to him the suffix of the indefinite article is āh, as in kālāh, a time. Musalmāns drop the h and write kālā. G.K. writes the article in each way with about equal frequency. A list of occurrences will be found in the vocabulary under the article āh, ā. This is, however, rather a matter of spelling than one of pronunciation, as the h of āh is hā-ĕ mukhtafī.

The singular agent of the first declension ends in -an, as in tsūran, by a thief. The word sŏnar (for sŏnᵃr), a goldsmith, belongs to this declension, but in the one instance in which the agent of this word occurs (v, 4) it is sŏnar, i.e. the same as the nominative. Sir Aurel Stein's transcription shows that this is not a slip on the part of Gōvinda Kaula, and there can be no doubt that the mistake (if mistake it be and not a dialectic form) was made by Hātim.

According to the rule laid down by Ī.K. the suffix unᵘ of the genitive can be used only with nouns that are masculine proper names. But in poetry its use is more extended, and hence in xi, 13 we have sapharunᵘ, of a journey. More directly contrary to the rule is the phrase ashᵉkunᵘ tab, the fever of love, in v, 10, a prose passage.

According to Ī.K. the plural agent of the first and fourth declensions ends in -au, and of the second and third declensions in -yau. G.K. very often writes these -av and -iv respectively. In my opinion these are merely two different ways of recording the same sound, one that it is difficult to represent in the Nāgarī character. Elsewhere in Kāshmīrī the diphthong au is at the present day pronounced exactly like ō, and is, in fact, a superfluous letter. But in the plural agent the u of au is almost consonantal. Perhaps w would represent its sound better than u, but aw could not represent the sound of the au. Sir Aurel Stein generally writes this diphthong au̯, and this is probably the best way of representing the sound. In Kāshmīrī the sound of व् is something between a labial (not a dento-labial) v and a labial w, sometimes tending more to one and sometimes tending more to the other, and accordingly I myself sometimes transliterate it v and sometimes w, a confessedly inaccurate, if convenient, method. The following are examples of the use of -av by G.K.: asmānav, dŏyav, khabardārav, malakav, nawav, nazarbāzav, phakīrav, pīrav, satav, ts̲ōrav, ts̲ūrav, yimav, zamīnav. These all belong to the first or fourth declension. For the third declension we have mŏdariv, zaniv. In one instance (x, 1) G.K. gives, in a conversation in the colloquial style, yimōv for what Ī.K. would write as yimau, and this probably represents the pronunciation as nearly as the Nāgarī character (यिमोव्) will permit. The above list is not complete, but on the other hand it must be understood that there are numerous examples of the more usual spelling with au and yau.

The postpositions used are those commonly employed. Reference has already been made to the use of söty and sötin for sūty and sūtin. The word pĕṭh means "on", and pĕṭha "from on", but in x, 3 and x, 10 pĕṭha is exceptionally employed with the meaning of pĕṭh.

As regards pronouns, the proximate demonstrative pronoun yih, this, has a masculine form in the nominative singular, yuh (xii, 5) or yüh (ii, 9, 11; x, 12). In xii, 5 yuh, as masculine, is opposed to yih as feminine. Yih, of course, is also used in the masculine. These masculine forms yuh and yüh are not mentioned by Ī.K. There are a number of emphatic forms, viz. yihōy, yihuy, yuhuy, yŏhay, yuhay (all masc.); yihay (fem.); and various inanimate emphatic forms such as yiy, yīy, and yī. None of these are mentioned by Ī.K.

The defective pronoun nŏth, nŏmis, appears under the form nĕmis for the animate dative singular (v, 9; xii, 15). The other forms used (nŏm, nŏman, nŏmav) all have ŏ. The relative pronoun has its nom. sing. fem. yĕsa instead of Ī.K.'s yŏssa. Similarly the interrogative pronoun has its nom. sing. fem. kusa instead of kŏssa. Its inanimate dative singular is the regular form kath, with a colloquial form kathō (xi, 11).

The indefinite pronoun kẽh, anything, is pronounced kĕh by Musalmāns, and this is followed by Hātim. Similarly we have the Musalmān kĕntshāh for kēntshāh, anything. There is a nom. plur. masc. kẽh[i] which is not given by Ī.K.

The verb substantive is conjugated regularly. In two cases, apparently under the influence of a neighbouring y, u has been changed to ĕ, so that a masculine form appears under a feminine guise. These are chĕyĕy for chuyĕy, if there is to thee (ix, 6), and chĕy for chuy, he is verily (xii, 6). In one case ös[i], they were, is changed to ösī, metri gratia.

In the standard dialect the 2nd person singular of the imperative is the same in form as the root. Thus kar, make thou. But if a pronominal suffix is added, u is inserted as a junction-vowel, as in karu-n, make thou him. The explanation of this is that the 2nd singular imperative originally ended in u (as in karu*), and that this u has been dropped in the modern language. We have a survival of the old form in gatshu, go thou (xi, 11). To this also must be referred the forms khyuh (x, 5) and khyō (x, 12), eat thou. These represent the modern khĕh and an older khĕhu*. The 2nd person plural imperative of trāwun, to let go, is tröviv. In x, 5 we have a variant tröviyuv. This is hardly more than a variation of spelling.

In the past conditional the Hindū Śrīnagar dialect makes the 1st person singular end in hö (e.g. karahö) and the 3rd person singular in hē (karihē). Musalmāns shorten these final syllables to ha and hĕ respectively. G.K.'s transcription generally, but not always, follows the Musalmān idiom. Thus, while we have karahö (viii, 11), we have also wuchaha (viii, 10), I should have seen; māraha-th (ii, 11), I should kill thee; wuchaha-n (ii, 5), I would see it. So, for the 3rd person, we have tsārihĕ (vi, 14), he might pick out; and shūbihĕh (xii, 5), she would have been beautiful. The final h in the last is hā-ĕ mukhtafī.

In the past tenses we have, for the first past, the irregular pūrun, he put on (clothes), from pairun. For the second past and other pasts in ōv there is a strong tendency to weaken the ōv by the substitution of a short vowel. Thus gudariv (v, 9), it happened, for guzaryōv; gav (iii, 1), he went, for gauv; khĕv (ii, 2), eaten, for khyauv; pĕv (viii, 9), he fell, for pyauv. Similarly, for the plural, we have khĕy (x, 2), they were eaten, for khyēy; niy (v, 9), they were taken, for nīy. In h$^{a}$rēyēkh (x, 5), for h$^{a}$ryēyēkh, it (fem.) remained over and above for them, the omission of the first y is merely a matter of spelling, as a long ē is commonly pronounced as if a y preceded it.

There is a similar shortening in the perfect participle, as in gamot$^{u}$ (viii, 1, etc.), gone, for gōmot$^{u}$; mumot$^{u}$ (ii, 4, etc.), dead, for mūmot$^{u}$; pĕmot$^{u}$ (viii, 9), fallen, for pyōmot$^{u}$.

In the extremely village style of story xi we find the suffix of the k$^{u}$ genitive, instead of the usual suffix mot$^{u}$, added to the past participle in order to convert it into an adjective. This is quite common in the Western Pahāṛī language spoken immediately to the south-east. The examples are thövi$^{k}$$^{i}$, stationed, and nyövi$^{k}$$^{i}$, dispatched (both nom. plur. masc.) (xi, 6), for thövi$^{-}$màti and nyövi$^{-}$màti respectively.

There is an irregular form of the conjunctive participle in the same poem. It is kàri$^{th}$an (xi, 10), having made, in place of the standard karith.

There are several variations in the forms of the pronominal suffixes added to verbs. Thus we have mŏkalāwahun (x, 1) for mŏkalāwōn (mŏkalāwaw + n), we shall complete it. The suffix wa of the 2nd person plural very often drops the final a, as in khĕyĕv for khĕyĕwa, it (fem.) was eaten by you (x, 12); karĕmav for karĕm$^{a}$wa, they (fem.) were made by me for you (x, 6). This suffix is sometimes used in a very idiomatic sense, like the corresponding Panjābī singular suffix jē. It adds no meaning directly to the verb, but, as it were, adds the idea of "I say to you" to the whole sentence. Thus bani, it will become, bani-v, (I say to you) it will become (ii, 7); dima-v, (I say to you) I will give (ii, 8); tsali-v, (I say to you) he will escape (ii, 8). Village forms using the suffix of this person in its full form are wanamōwa for wana-wa, I will say to you (x, 1, 2), and wañĕmōwa for wañĕm$^{a}$wa, they (fem.) were said by me to you (x, 1). I am informed that an alternative village form for wanamōwa (wanawa) is wanōwa.

Instead of karukh, make thou them, we have (xii, 19) karuhukh.

Before discussing the details of Hātim's pronunciation as illustrated by Sir Aurel Stein's transcription, it will be well to mention a few general facts.

Words are frequently wrongly divided. Thus the word amis$^{ü}$y—which is amis, to him, combined with the emphatic suffix y, to which ü-mātrā has been added as a junction-vowel—is invariably divided before the s, so that we get am$^{i}$ suy, am$^{i}$ süy, or some such form. So aññĕhas, they brought (aññĕkh) to him (as), is written añye has; the corrupt Arabic aslāma-laikum, may the peace be upon you, is written aslā malaikum; bög$^{a}$rēmay, I divided (bög$^{a}$rēm) verily (ay), is written bāge rēmai; and so on for hundreds of examples. On the other hand, two words are sometimes contracted into one, as in boh$^{a}$sa for bŏh hasa, I, Sir; bebinḍa$^{i}$r$^{i}$ for bĕbi andar$^{ü}$y, within the breastcloth; and chetal for chĕh tal, she is below. In reproducing Sir Aurel Stein's text I have carefully allowed these seeming irregularities to stand. The frequency with which they occur, and the systematic way in which they are recorded, show that they are not slips of the pen, but represent the actual manner in which Hātim, who, of course, knew nothing of Kāshmīrī grammar, pronounced the words. To him amis$^{ü}$y was two words—ami and s$^{ü}$y—and so on for the others. We thus have a valuable illustration of how languages change in the mouths of their speakers, and how dialectic variations and different stages of language take their rise.

Reference may also be made to one particular word—that for "king", which Sir Aurel Stein invariably records as pādshāh, with a d, while Gōvinda Kaula equally invariably records it as pātashāh, with a t. Hātim was a follower of Islām, and apparently pronounced this borrowed Persian word in the form in which it was delivered to his language, while Gōvinda Kaula, a Brāhmaṇ affected by no Musalmān prejudices, wrote the word as it is pronounced in Śrīnagar, with the typical Piśāca change of d to t.

Turning to the vowel a, we find that it is occasionally interchanged with a-mātrā in an unaccented syllable. Thus we have both bē bahā and bēbᵃhā, priceless, and mahaḷ kān and mahᵃḷakhān, for G.K.'s mahalakhān, the harem of a palace. Much more common is the interchange of a and ạ, as in bāgas and bāgạs, G.K. bāgas, to a garden; dalīla and dalīḷạ, G.K. dalīlā, a story; dar and dạr, G.K. dar, in; saudāgar and saudāgạr, G.K. -gar, a merchant; zanāṇạ and zạnāṇạ, G.K. zanāna, a woman; and many others. Very similarly we have the interchange of a or ạ with ạ-mātrā, as in jānạvār and jānᵃvār, G.K. jānāwār, a bird; khabar and khabᵃr, G.K. khabar, news; kāvandas, kāvandạs, kāvạndas, khāvᵃndas, and khāvạndas, G.K. khāwandas, to a husband; halamas and halᵃmas, G.K. halamas, to a skirt; and mārevātạlan and mārạvātᵃlan, to executioners.

The sounds ạ and e seem to be absolutely convertible. Thus we have adᵃ, adạ, adᵉ, and ade for G.K.'s ada, then; āṇạ and ảne for G.K.'s öna, a mirror; chạ and che for G.K.'s chèh, she is; chạs and ches for G.K.'s chĕs, I (fem.) am; dakhe nāvān for G.K.'s ḍakhanāwān, leaning upon; guḍᵃ, guḍᵉ, guḍa, and guḍe for G.K.'s gŏḍa, at first; hasạ and hase for G.K.'s hasa, Sir; hāvᵃnam (G.K. hāwanam), they will show to me, and vāle nam (G.K. wālanam), they will cause me to descend, both in the same line; hazrat, hazrạtⁱ, hazrạⁱtⁱ, hazret, and hazretⁱ, all for G.K.'s hazrat-i, a certain title; jāyạ and jāye, G.K. jāyĕ, in a place, in two consecutive lines, also jai and jāyᵉ; katạ, katha, and kathe, G.K. katha, words; 1st persons singular future, such as paṛa, I shall recite; but behe, I shall sit, kare, I shall do; kal$^{a}$, kaḷa, and kale, G.K. kala, a head; kartạ and karte, G.K. karta, please do; mār$^{a}$vāṭạlan, mār$^{a}$vātelan, māṛạvāṭ$^{a}$lan, mārevāṭ$^{a}$lan, mārevāṭạlan, etc., G.K. mārawātalan, to executioners; peṭạ, pyeṭe, etc., G.K. pĕṭha, from on; yil$^{a}$, yeḷa, and yele, G.K. yĕla, from restraint; and hundreds of others.

When a precedes i it is usually written ạ, as in raṭit, G.K. raṭith, having seized. Sometimes it is written ạ$^{i}$, as in ạm$^{i}$ or ạ$^{i}$m$^{i}$, G.K. ám$^{i}$, by him. It becomes ā$^{i}$ in lā$^{i}$r$^{i}$, G.K. lari, at the side, and in one instance we have o, in maris or moḍis, to a body. The change of a to o, but without a following i, occurs in doh, doha, doḥạ, doh$^{o}$, or doho, G.K. dŏha, on a day.

Other less common changes are the following. We have in one case a lengthened to ā, in khābạrdārau, by the watchmen (elsewhere kha-). Cf. lā$^{i}$r$^{i}$ above. We have unaccented ạ-mātrā becoming i-mātrā in ās$^{a}$nas or ās$^{i}$nas, G.K. āsanas, for being. In the word tuḷạri, for G.K. t$^{a}$l$^{a}$ri, by a bee, a-mātrā appears as u.

In standard Kāshmīrī, after sh, a is pronounced as ĕ, and I have in such a case transliterated it by that letter. Thus the Persian shahr, a city, is in my transliteration of G.K.'s text shown as shĕhar. As a rule Hātim preserves the a, but there are also several instances of the change to e. Thus—

| My transliteration of G.K. | Sir Aurel Stein's transcription of Hātim. |
|---|---|
| shĕh, six, | she, |
| shĕhara, from a city, | shah$^{a}$ṛa and shehera, |
| shĕharāh, a city, | shehra, |
| shĕrīkh, a partner, | sherīk, |

and others. The number would be increased if we included several words that Hātim pronounced with ạ (it being remembered that ạ and e are with him interchangeable), as in shạhạn for G.K. shĕhan, to the six; shạhmāras, G.K. shĕhmāras, to the python.

A final short a is sometimes dropped, as in gar, gar$^{a}$, and garạ, G.K. gara, a house; doh, doha, etc., G.K. dŏha, on a day; sar, sar$^{a}$, sare, and serạ, G.K. sara, investigation.

In standard Kāshmīrī a borrowed word ending in a consonant preceded by a long ā often adds a final short a. Thus jahāz, a ship, becomes jahāza; nishān, a sign, becomes nishāna, and so on. Sir Aurel Stein gives three words of this kind to which G.K. does not add a final a. These are chālāna, G.K. cālān, an invoice; lāl and lāl$^{a}$, G.K. lāl, a ruby; māl$^{a}$, G.K. māl, property. We have also ạ added in dopusạ, G.K. dopus, said to him, and chukạ, G.K. chukh, thou art.

In the standard dialect, when a is followed by ü-mātrā it becomes ü. Sir Aurel Stein usually represents this sound by ạ. A good example is the feminine genitive postposition which G.K. writes sünz$^{ü}$, and which Sir Aurel usually writes sạnz. Occasionally he represents it by u. Thus we have also sunz; åsus, G.K. ös$^{ü}$s, she was to him. For G.K.'s thüḍ$^{ü}$ or thür$^{ü}$, on the back, we have tạḍ, tor, tạr, and tür. The syllable $^{ü}y$ is represented by uy, üy, and ai. Thus G.K.'s tamis$^{ü}y$, to him verily, becomes tạm$^{i}$ suy or tạm$^{i}$ süy, while timan$^{ü}y$, to them verily, becomes tim$^{a}$nai. Another example of the representation of ü by u is G.K.'s wütsh$^{ü}$, she descended, which becomes vuts (iii, 2), and the same word also represents G.K.'s wŏtsh$^{ü}$, she went up (iii, 1, 3).

The letter ā or āh, when final and representing the indefinite article, is usually shortened to a or ạ, as in doha, G.K. dŏhā, a day; dalīla and dalīlạ, G.K. dalīlāh, a story; zālạ and zālā, G.K. zālāh, a net. Similarly, although there is no suffix of the indefinite article, shōrạ ga and shōrạgā, G.K. shōra-gāh, an outcry. Often, however, as, for instance, in some of the above examples, the long ā is retained.

When ā is followed in G.K.'s dialect by ü-mātrā, by i-mātrā, or by i it becomes ö, and this same ö also usually represents the pronunciation of the diphthong ai. Sir Aurel Stein sometimes represents this ö by ạ̄, which according to his phonetic system represents approximately the same sound. Thus—

| G.K. | Hâtim. |
|---|---|
| böy$^{i}$, brothers, | bāy, |
| död$^{i}$laday, suffering, | dā$^{i}$d$^{ve}$ ladai, |
| dön$^{u}$, a pomegranate, | dāṇ, |
| dör$^{i}$, holding, | dāṛ, |
| göj$^{u}$nas, he caused me to waste away, | gāj$^{a}$nas, |
| khöris, for a khār weight, | khāris, |
| kötyäh, how many? | kā$^{i}$t$^{v}$a, |
| möj$^{u}$, a mother, | māj, mōj, |

and others.

For original ai we have—

| | |
|---|---|
| pöda, manifest, | pāda, pâda, |
| göb, hidden, | gāb, |
| köd, imprisonment, | kād, |
| gör, different, | gā$^{i}$ri, gār. |

About equally often this ö is represented by â, corresponding to my ô, and therefore sounded something like the aw in "awful". Thus—

| | |
|---|---|
| ölis, to a nest, | âlis, |
| ör$^{u}$, a shoemaker's awl, | âr, |
| özīz, poor, | âzīz, |
| ös$^{u}$s, she was to him, | âsus, |
| bölbösh$^{u}$, chirping, | bôlbâsh, |
| gum-röyī, losing one's way, | gum$^{a}$râ yiy, |
| āshĕnāv, relations, | âshnāu, âsh$^{i}$ nāv, as if for ösh$^{i}$nāv, |

and others. For original ai we have—

| | |
|---|---|
| öna, a mirror, | âne, āṇa, |
| pöda, manifest, | pâda, pāda, |

and others.

Very often this ö is represented by a simple ā, as in—

| | |
|---|---|
| bŏd$^{i}$hāl, a prison, | bānd$^{i}$hāl, |
| dazön$^{i}$, verily burning, | dazān$^{i}$, |
| gös, they went for him, | gās, |
| judöyi, separation, | zhudāī, |

| G.K. | Hātim. |
|---|---|
| köshir$^{i}$, Kāshmīrīs, | kāshir$^{i}$, |
| zölith, having burnt, | zālit, |

and others. For original ai we have—

| | |
|---|---|
| gör, different, | gār, gā$^{i}$ri, |
| khörāth, alms, | khārāt, |
| sölas, for an excursion, | sāḷas, |

and others.

The word myöñ$^{u}$, mine (fem.), appears in various forms, viz. mēñy, myē, m$^{v}$ēn, myēn, and m$^{v}$ēñy, in all of which the ö is represented by ē; whereas for the corresponding cyöñ$^{u}$, thy (fem.), we have ch$^{i}$ān, ch$^{v}$ān$^{i}$, and ch$^{v}$ān$^{v}$.

We have seen that G.K. usually represents ū by ö, as in köd$^{i}$ for kūd$^{i}$, söty for sūty. Sir Aurel Stein writes for these words kā$^{i}$d, kā$^{i}$d$^{i}$, and kūḍ$^{i}$, and sā$^{i}$t, sā$^{i}$t$^{v}$, etc., respectively.

When ā is followed in G.K.'s dialect by u-mātrā it becomes ô, and Sir Aurel Stein almost always gives for it his sign å, which represents the same sound. Thus—

| G.K. | Hātim. |
|---|---|
| ôkhun, a teacher, | åkhun, ākhun, |
| ôl$^{u}$, a nest, | ål, |
| ôs$^{u}$, he was, | ås, ås$^{u}$, ās, ōs, |
| ôy, he came to thee, | åy, ā̆y, |
| bôwun, he explained, | båvun, |

and many others. It will be seen from the above that ā, ā̆, and ō are also used to represent this sound. So, for khôtūni, to the lady, we have khåtūni and khātūni; for lôyun, he struck, låyun and lā̆yun; for sôruy, all, såruy, sā̆ruy, sō$^{i}$ri, and soirạ; for bôw$^{u}$, manifested, bōu̯. There are many other similar examples, and from the above it will be seen that G.K.'s ö and ô are represented indiscriminately by ā̆, å, and ā.

The vowel e is, we have seen, interchangeable with ạ. It is also liable to be shortened to e-mātrā when final, as in bāye, bāy$^{e}$, or even bai, for G.K.'s bāyĕ, to a wife.

We have already noticed that in Kāshmīrī a after sh becomes ĕ (i.e. Sir Aurel Stein's e). In one instance Hātim has ō for this ĕ, G.K.'s shĕkh, hesitation, being represented by shak or shōk.

It is well known that the average Kāshmīrī is unable to distinguish between the letters e and i, whether long or short. In this way Hātim gives ē instead of G.K.'s ī in the following—

| G.K. | Hātim. |
|---|---|
| bīṭh$^{i}$, seated (m. pl.), | bʷēth$^{i}$, bēth$^{ʷ}$, and bāṭ$^{i}$, |
| grīst$^{i}$-bāy, a farmer's wife, | grēst bāy, |
| phīrith, having returned, | phērith, phē$^{i}$rith, or phīrit, |

and others. It will be observed that, in the case of bāṭ$^{i}$, ī has become ā. Similarly, G.K.'s rīnz$^{i}$, balls, is represented by rīnz, rēnz, or rānz; and his trēsh, thirst, by trēsh or trās. Owing to the confusion of a and e and of i and ĕ (Stein's e), we sometimes have a for i. Thus G.K.'s grīst$^{i}$-bāyĕ, to a farmer's wife, becomes grēst$^{a}$ bāye, grēsta bāye, or grēst bāye. Similarly, G.K.'s dapⁱzihĕkh, thou must say to them, is represented by dabzi hek or dabza hek; G.K.'s wasⁱzi, you should descend, by vazⁱza; and yith, to this, by yet, yath, yat, and yat.

As regards u, we occasionally observe hesitation as to quantity. Thus G.K.'s dop$^{u}$nas, he said to him, is represented by both dop$^{u}$nas and dopunas; and his yūsuph, Joseph, by yūsuf, yusūf, and yūsūf.

Just as in the case of e and i, so ordinary Kāshmīrīs are unable to distinguish between o and u. There are numerous examples of this in Hātim's language. A few will suffice here—

| G.K. | Hātim. |
|---|---|
| borun, he filled, | borun and burun, |
| koḍun, he brought out, | koḍun, kuḍun, |
| kuṭ$^{a}$wālan, by the policeman, | koṭvāḷan, kuṭvālen, |
| noṭ$^{u}$, a pitcher, | nut, |
| byūth$^{u}$, he sat, | byōṭh, byūṭh, |
| pūrun, he put on, | pörun, purun. |

The Persian khūbṣūrat, beautiful, becomes khöbsūrath in G.K., for which Hātim has khōb sūrat and khâb sūrat.

Once or twice we find u interchanged with other vowels. Thus we have che for chuh, he is; and (once each) chiy or chi$^{ʷ}$ for chuy, he is verily. The imperative tshun, cast thou, is represented by tsün, but elsewhere the u of this word is preserved. After y, u or o has a tendency to become ü, as in dʸutuk, dyutuk, dʸütuk, or dʸüthuk, for dyutukh, they gave; hʸütun or hyütun, for hyotun, he began.

An initial u in Kāshmīrī is always pronounced wu. This is not usually the case with an initial ō, but G.K.'s ōra, thence, is represented not only by åraṛ and similar forms, but also by vōḍa.

It is well known that ĕ and ē are usually pronounced in Kāshmīrī with a short y before them. Thus ʸĕ, ʸē. This ʸ is not usually written in G.K.'s transcription, but it is everywhere to be presumed. Sir Aurel Stein as a rule writes this ʸ either as a small letter above the line or as a full y. Examples will be found on every page of his text. A few are given here—

| G.K. | Stein. |
|---|---|
| khĕkh, thou wilt eat, | kyek, |
| khĕwān, eating, | khyavān, khyevān, kʸavān, |
| kĕth, in, | khʸaṭh, khyaṭh, kʸet, kyet, |
| pĕṭha, from, | peṭa, pyeṭe, pʸeṭh, pʸeṭha. |

It will be observed that yaṛ is sometimes used instead of ĕ. Other similar cases are—

| | |
|---|---|
| kĕtha, how? | kyaṭa, kʸeta, kʸeṭa, kʸita, khʸaṭha |
| khŏni, on the haunch, | kunʸaṛ, |
| nēza, railings, | nʸāzaṛ, |
| zēni, he will conquer, | zaⁱni, zʸāni. |

Turning to consonants, we first draw attention to the well-known fact that, as in all Dardic languages, Kāshmīrī possesses no sonant aspirates. Original sonant aspirates are always disaspirated. This is fully borne out by Hātim's pronunciation. There is only one occurrence of an aspirated sonant consonant in the whole of Sir Aurel Stein's transcription. This is in the word ghāsh (viii, 9), for gwāsh or gāsh, light, which Sir Aurel writes elsewhere as gāsh (five times).

But Hātim's pronunciation goes further. The aspiration of surd consonants is most irregular, many such sounds that are written by G.K. and elsewhere as aspirated surds are disaspirated, and many unaspirated surds are aspirated. In some cases this runs uniformly through every occurrence of a word or letter. Thus the verb gatshun, to go, is always written gatsun, and the letter c is almost invariably written ch. In other cases the aspiration or disaspiration is more capricious.

In the Kāshmīrī of Īśvara Kaula and other Hindūs a final surd is always, with a few specified exceptions, aspirated, while Musalmāns retain the unaspirated sound. Thus we have—

| Musalmān. | Hindū. |
|---|---|
| krak, outcry, | krakh. |
| thap, seizing, | thaph. |
| rat, blood, | rath. |
| naṭ, palsy, | naṭh. |
| kāts, glass, | kātsh. |

The transcript of these tales by Gōvinda Kaula follows the Hindū custom and aspirates final surds. With Hātim it is, curiously enough, almost a question of date. The recording of Sir Aurel Stein's transcription commenced on June 16, and continued, with intervals, till July 31, 1896. In the earlier parts of this transcription final surds were not aspirated, but in recording the recitation of July 24, Sir Aurel wrote the word thaph (xii, 11), seizing, previously recorded as thap or tap, and makes a special note on the margin that in this instance the ph is a true aspirate. An examination of the rest of the text recorded on that day and on the following and final recitation of July 31, shows that the final surds are here much more consistently aspirated than had been the case previously. It is out of the question to assume that the non-recording of this aspiration in the earlier tales was due to faulty audition on the part of Sir Aurel Stein. He was, I know, perfectly aware at the time of this distinction between Musalmān and Hindū pronunciation, and had previously corresponded with me on the subject.

The following are examples of Hātim's disaspiration :—

For the letter b we may take the Arabic borrowed word subᶜhan, at dawn, for which H. has suban; but how inconsistent he is in this is shown by the following cognate forms: subu for subuh; subahanas for sub$^{a}$hanas; and subhas for sub$^{a}$has.

We have said that the letter c is almost always aspirated to ch. Similarly, the aspiration of ch (very common in the auxiliary verb chuh, he is) is generally retained. But, in one instance (i, 13), cüy is written for chuy, he is indeed. Another similar case is that of the verb wuchun, to see. In this the ch is usually retained; but we have vucehan (ii, 5) for wuchahan, vucuk (ii, 4) for wuchukh, and vucun (ii, 8) for wuchun.

Of more frequent occurrence is the aspirate kh, and of this disaspiration is frequent. Thus—

Initial.—While the borrowed Persian word khūb, well, always preserves its aspiration, khāb, a dream, becomes kāb and kāv; khabar, news, is spelt kabar, etc., in the first five stories, and khabar, etc., afterwards; and Khŏdā, God, becomes Kudā, etc., in i–vi, and Khudā, etc., afterwards. Similarly—

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| khalat-ĕ-shŏhi, a royal robe, | becomes | kal$^{a}$ti shāhi. |
| khām, unripe, | „ | khām and kām. |
| khumār, languishment, | „ | kumār. |
| khān, N.P., | „ | khān (ii, 1) and kān (ii, 12). |
| khŏni, on the haunch, | „ | kun$^{v}$a. |
| khar, an ass, | „ | khar (iii) and kar (v). |
| khōran, to the feet, | „ | kuran. |
| khash, a cut, | „ | kash. |

The verb khasun, to ascend, retains the aspirate, except in forms derived from the past participle khot$^{u}$, in which the aspiration sometimes persists and is sometimes lost, giving forms such as khot$^{u}$, khut, and kut; khat$^{i}$ and ka$^{i}$ty; katis; khats and kats.

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| khŏta, than, | becomes | khota, khuta, and kuta. |
| khôtūna, a lady, | „ | kōtūna (v) and khâtūn (x, xii). |
| khatith, secretly, | „ | ka$^{i}$tith. |
| khāwand, a husband, | „ | kāvand (i–viii) and khāvand (x–xii). |

The verb khyon$^{u}$, to eat, as a rule has k in the earlier tales and kh in the later, but this is not universal. Thus we have khyāu for khĕv, eaten, in ii, 2. Occasionally also the cognate Shiṇā language disaspirates in this word.

Khazmath or khizmath, service, becomes khismat (ii, 3) and kismat (xii, 3), and so many others.

It will be observed that the disaspiration occurs whether the kh represents the Indian aspirate or whether it represents a Persian خ. It will also be noticed that, generally speaking, but not universally, when there are two forms, one with and the other without the aspiration, the disaspirated forms occur in the earlier stories and the aspirated forms in the later stories. The same is true for the other instances of disaspiration, and I shall not trouble to refer to it again. It will, however, be understood that numerous, though not so numerous, instances of disaspiration occur also in the later stories.

Medial kh is not so common, but we can quote pakạ for pakha, wings; tākhīt (x, 12) and tākīt (xi, 13) for tākhīth, certainly; vutamak$^{i}$ for wŏtamukh$^{i}$, upside down.

Final kh occurs in akh, one, which is represented both by ak and akh in all parts of the tales, though akh occurs only in i, 4, and four times in xii. For phakh, a stink, we have only phak.

Initial ph is preserved in the phak just quoted. For phamb, cotton wool, we have phamb and pamb, both in viii. For phardā, on the morrow, we have parda; while the verb phērun, to regret, loses its aspiration twice and preserves it once in viii.

Medial ph occurs in naphtsas, for the belly, which H. pronounced naptsas (x, 3).

Final ph occurs in the word thaph, grasping. It appears under the forms thaph, thap, and tap.

Although not strictly an aspirate, we may here quote the shh in the borrowed Arabic word mashhūr, celebrated, which H. (xi, 3) pronounced maushūr.

Initial th occurs in the following: in thud (thod$^{u}$), erect, it is preserved. For thür$^{u}$, a shrub, we have tür, and for thür$^{u}$ or thüḍ$^{u}$, on the back, we have taḍ, tar, and tor; thüñ$^{u}$ā, butter, preserves the th; but for thaph, grasping, we have thaph, thap, and tap. The common verb thāwun, to place, generally preserves the th, but we have thāvum and tāvum, and, for thàv$^{i}$taw, tạivtau.

Medial th occurs in the following: atha, a hand, becomes both athạ, etc., and ata, etc., the aspirated forms occurring most frequently in the later tales; buth$^{u}$, a face, is always but; so, for ạth$^{ü}$r$^{il}$, the woodworm, ạtạr; for katha, stories, kathạ, etc., and katạ; nēth$^{a}$r, a wedding, nēth$^{a}$r (xii) and n$^{v}$ētar (viii); pathar, downward, pathar and patar, etc.; woth$^{u}$, descended, vut and vuth, and similarly in derived forms; and similarly wǒth$^{u}$, ascended, also becomes vut or vuth. Other examples are vatạ$^{i}$rith for watharith, having spread out, but this verb fluctuates as regards the aspirate in other forms; wǒthus, arose to him, becomes vothus, etc., or votus; and wǒthith, having arisen, vuthit and vutit. Sāthāh, a moment, becomes sātha or sātạ.

For final th the pronoun ath generally becomes at, except that we have both at and ath in xii. Conjunctive participles, such as wǒthith just cited, almost always end in t, the th-termination being frequent only in xii; the postposition kěth, in, becomes k$^{v}$et, etc., except in xii, where we have kh$^{v}$ạth, etc., with exceptional aspiration of the k. The distributive particle prath always becomes prat. Pronominal datives, such as tath, kath, etc., follow ath in sometimes dropping the aspiration and sometimes (in the later stories) keeping it.

For initial ṭh the only real example is ṭhaharān, awaiting, for which H. has tah$^{a}$rān.

There are more examples of medial ṭh, such as bōnṭha, in front, which always has the dental t, as in bōnt$^{a}$, etc.; byūṭh$^{u}$, seated, and its derivatives also generally disaspirate the ṭh, except in xii, which also retains the aspiration. Kuṭh$^{u}$, a room, also disaspirates except once in x, 7, where we have the dative kuṭhis, while in x, 8 we have kutis and kuṭis; the ablative postposition pěṭha occurs in several forms, peṭạ, pyeṭe, p$^{v}$eṭhạ, p$^{v}$eṭh, and p$^{v}$eṭhạ, the aspirated forms occurring chiefly in the later stories. Similar is the treatment of pǒṭh$^{i}$ or pǒṭhin, like, for which we have pāᵘṭᵘ, etc., and pāᵘṭhᵘ, etc., and pāṭin and pāthin. The common word sĕṭhāh, very, much, appears as seṭā, etc., and seṭhā, etc., it being noted that both forms occur in xii; ṭôṭhᵘ or ṭhôṭhᵘ, beloved, is always ṭōṭ, and zīṭhᵘ, long (m.pl.), becomes zīṭᵘ.

Initial tsh is always disaspirated by H. Thus the word tshunun, to throw, is always tsunun, and so for all others.

As for medial tsh, in the verb gatshun, to go, to be proper, it is always disaspirated by H. The same applies to the indefinite pronoun kĕntshāh, something, which appears under many forms, in none of which does an aspirated tsh appear. Similarly, we have matsa and matsᵛe for matshi, on the shoulder; ratsehᵃna for ratshi-hanā, a little; vuts for wŏtshᵘ, she went up, and also for wütshᵘ, she went down, and others.

Turning now to aspiration, we may commence with the general statement that every c is aspirated by H. The solitary exception is the word cĕshma, an eye (i, 3), which appears as ceshma. Thus we have—

| G.K. | H. |
|---|---|
| cĕnda, a pocket, | chanda. |
| ciṭhᵘ, a letter, | chit. |
| bacĕ, young ones, | bache. |
| bacāwüñᵘ, to be released (fem.), | bachāviny. |
| nayistānücᵘ, of the canebrake, | nayis tān nach. |
| racĕn, she took them (fem.), | rachen. |
| zacĕ, rags, | zache. |

Reference has already been made to the aspiration of g in ghāsh, for gāsh, light.

Examples of the aspiration of k are :—

| G.K. | Hātim. |
|---|---|
| kūrᵘ, a daughter, | kūḍ, khūḍ. |
| kŏmbakas, for help, | khumba khas. |
| kĕtha, how ? | kᵛeta, khᵛaṭha. |
| kĕntshāh, something, | kyẽ tsa, etc., or khyẽ tsa. |
| kāsun, to shave (xii), | khāsun. |
| koṭᵘ, a son (xii), | khuṭh. |

For the aspiration of p, we have put, puth, phot, or phut, for pot$^{u}$, back again. Shiṇā has phot for this word.

For the aspiration of initial t, we have tal or thal, for tal below; tot, tut, or thuth, for tot$^{u}$, thither; and thāu̯ for tāv, exhaustion.

Medial t is also sometimes aspirated. The termination ta of the polite imperative often becomes tha, etc., as in karta or kar the, for karta, please to do; ṭsuntha for ṭshunta, please to throw. So also the termination mot$^{u}$ of the perfect participle becomes muth in on muth, for on$^{u}$mot$^{u}$, brought; vot$^{u}$mut or vōt$^{u}$muth, for wót$^{u}$mot$^{u}$, arrived. The t in dyut$^{u}$, given, is aspirated in dyut or dyuth, for dyut$^{u}$; d$^{v}$ütuk or d$^{v}$üthuk, for dyutukh, they gave; dithin, for ditin, he gave them. Similarly—

| G.K. | Hātim. |
|---|---|
| kyut$^{u}$, for, | kh$^{v}$ut, k$^{v}$ut, kyut, khyuth, kyuth. |
| ratˢna, a jewel (in composition), | rotunˢ, rothunu, roṭhuna. |
| sāta, at a moment, | sātˢ, sātha. |
| söty, with, | sa̤it, sa̤ith, sa̤ith$^{v}$, etc. |
| tot$^{u}$, thither, | tot, tut, thuth. |
| wót$^{u}$, arrived, | vōt, etc., or vōth. |

The above is in no way a complete list of all the instances of disaspiration and aspiration. It is merely a selection of typical examples.

The Dardic languages as a rule have no cerebral letters. Literary Kāshmīrī, however, preserves the distinction between cerebral and dental almost as carefully as is the case in India. There are, nevertheless, a few striking examples to the contrary, as in ḍuṭakh or duṭakh, cutting in two; ḍal or dal, a leaf; and wŏthun, to arise, as compared with the Hindī uṭhnā. But even in the literary language the pronunciation of cerebral letters cannot be so definitely cerebral as in India, for in Kāshmīrī poetry cerebral consonants are permitted to rhyme with dentals, a thing which is impossible in Indian verse. Thus, in the Rāmāvatāracarita, the proper name Yindrazīth, Indrajita, rhymes with ḍīth$^{u}$, seen, in verse 699, and with bīth$^{u}$, seated, in verse 872.

In the village Kāshmīrī of Hātim, the state of affairs is altogether different. Here the utmost confusion exists, dentals being used for cerebrals, and cerebrals for dentals, almost at random. From the numerous examples that follow it is evident that Hātim used an intermediate sound that at one time struck Sir Aurel Stein's ears as cerebral and at another as dental. If Hātim had pronounced real cerebral sounds, it is impossible to suppose that Sir Aurel, with his long familiarity with Indian languages, could have failed to notice them, more especially as some of the words written with dental letters, such as ḍāk, a stage, are words that are in everyday use in India both in colloquial speech and in literature. It might be thought that here and there Sir Aurel may have omitted a subscript dot by a slip of the pen; but the omissions are too frequent and too regular to permit this assumption to be taken as a general explanation, and, moreover, it will not account for those cases in which he has marked as cerebrals, letters which in the corresponding Hindī or Sanskrit are always dental. The following are examples of this confusion. The list is in no way complete:—

A. Dentals where we should expect cerebrals—

This last change occurs only when ḍ is initial or protected by a preceding n. A medial ḍ is interchangeable with a dental r. See below.

B. Cerebrals where we should expect dentals—

| Literary Dialect. | Hātim. |
|---|---|
| ṭ for t. | |
| bata, boiled rice, | bat$^{a}$, baṭa, baṭṭa. |

Compare rothuṇa and roṭhuṇa, for raṭ$^{a}$na, a jewel, above.

| | |
|---|---|
| ḍ for d. | |
| ad$^{a}$la, from justice, | aḍal. |
| mūd$^{u}$, he died, | mōd, mūḍ. |

In Kāshmīrī the letter r is a dental letter, not a cerebral as in the Indian Madhyadēśa. We see this in the frequent interchange with a dental l, as in Hātim's mōl or mōr, for literary môl$^{u}$, father. The same is the case in the North-Western languages, Sindhī and Lahndā. The village confusion between cerebrals and dentals hence explains the frequent interchange in Hātim's dialect, between medial ḍ and medial r. Thus we have—

A. ḍ where we should expect r—

| Literary. | Hātim. |
|---|---|
| ōra, thence, | ār, etc., vōḍa, and even åḍa. |
| garun (G.K. gaḍun), to make. | |

| thür$^{ü}$ | taṛ, tor, tür, taḍ. |
| tōra, thence, | tōr$^{a}$, tōra, tōre, tōḍ$^{a}$. |

B. r where we should expect ḍ—

| Literary. | Hätim. |
|---|---|
| kaḍun (G.K. also karun), to extract. | |
| kàḍ$^{i}$ | ka$^{i}$r$^{v}$. |
| koḍ$^{u}$ | kur. |

| koḍ$^{u}$nas | kurạnas. |
| kaḍith | kạ$^{i}$rit, ka$^{i}$rith. |

|---|---|
| tshāḍun (G.K. also tshārun), to search. | |
| tshāḍān | tsārān. |
| tshāḍav | tsārau. |
| yĕḍāh, a belly, | yerā. |

While Dardic languages show a general tendency to harden sonant consonants, Hātim shows occasional instances of the softening of surds. In every case except one the softened consonant is immediately followed by z. In the one exception, it is s that is softened to z. The examples are—

| G.K. | Hātim. |
|---|---|
| dàpⁱzihĕkh, thou shouldst have said to them, | dabzạ hek, dabzi hek. |
| dàpⁱzĕkh, thou shouldst say to them, | dạbzik. |
| but dàpⁱzĕm, thou shouldst say to me, | dapᵃzim. |
| wàsⁱzi, thou shouldst descend, | vạzⁱzạ. |
| but wàsⁱzi-na, thou shouldst not descend, | vạⁱsⁱ zinạ |
| pēs, they fell on him, | pᵛēz. |

On the other hand, Hātim gives occasional instances of the Dardic hardening of sonants. Such are—

| G.K. | Hātim. |
|---|---|
| tab, fever, | tap. |
| rasad, assembly, | rasat. |
| mōv lāg, do not fix, | maulāk. |
| khazmath, service, | kismat. |
| khizmath, service, | khismat. |

In this connexion we may again refer to G.K.'s pātashāh H.'s pādshāh, a king.

Turning to individual consonants, we note—

(1) We have prothesis of h before y in—

| G.K. | Hātim. |
|---|---|
| yunᵘ, to come, | yün, hᵛün. |
| yuthuy, as verily, | yüthuy, hᵛüthuy. |

(2) kh becomes h in—

| | |
|---|---|
| shĕkhtsā, a certain person, | shahtsa. |

Possibly shahtsa is a slip of the pen, for elsewhere Hātim has shakhtsan, shakhtsas, and so on.

(3) The affricative ts sometimes becomes s, as in—

| G.K. | Hātim. |
|---|---|
| tsŏcĕ, loaves, | suche, su cho, tsuche. |
| tsŏpör$^{i}$, in four directions, | so pā$^{i}$ri, tso pā$^{i}$r$^{i}$. |

It becomes z in—

| | |
|---|---|
| pānts, five, | pānts, pānz. |

The representation of G.K.'s adālüts$^{a}$-pĕṭh, in court, by adālat-p$^{v}$eṭh, is probably a slip of the pen.

With these changes of ts we may compare the interchange of ch and sh in Hātim's māch-tulạr, a bee, with the māsh-tulari of the title of Story IX. Similarly, we have zh for j in zhāma for jāma, a coat.

(4) ny and ñy are interchangeable, as in Hātim's kanye-phul and kañye phul, a pebble. This is hardly more than a variation of spelling.

(5) Hātim usually preserves a Persian f, while G.K. has ph instead. Thus, Hātim fakīr, G.K. phakīr, a mendicant. For "thought" Hātim has both fik$^{a}$r and phikir.

(6) The letter sh is sometimes represented by s. Sir Aurel Stein's MS. represents the sound of sh by ṣ, and the occasional apparent change of sh to s is probably due to the accidental omission of the subscript dot. An example is the word shĕmshēr, a sword, for which we have shamshēr, shamsēr, and samshēr.

(7) Vocalization of the semi-vowels y and v is frequent, as in gai for gay, they went; gau or gaụ for gav, he went; mā$^{i}$ryu for māriwa, (he who) may kill; tsalau for tsaliv, flee ye; dimau for dimav, we shall give; and many others.

(8) An example of metathesis is tsōrasṭa for tsōratsh, a leather-cutter.

(9) H. uses initial v for b in Vikarmājit- for G.K.'s Bikarmājit-, Vikramāditya. Cf. kāb or kāv, for khāb, a dream.

(10) Three miscellaneous words are—

| G.K. | Hātim. |
|---|---|
| bakh$^{a}$cöyish, a present, | bakcāyish, bakhshāyish. |
| jalwa, glory, | jal$^{a}$va. |
| but jĕlōy, even glory, | yala vai. |
| sak$^{a}$th, hard, | sak, sakh. |

The processes of declension and conjugation employed by Hātim are on the whole the same as those employed by Gōvinda Kaula. The principal differences relate to the pronunciation of the forms, and to the representation of that pronunciation by Sir Aurel Stein's transcription. A few additional points may here be noticed.

In the declension of nouns, Gōvinda Kaula, like Īśvara Kaula, makes the dative singular of nouns of the first declension end in as, as in bāgas, to a garden. Hātim sometimes has the termination as, and sometimes ąs. Examples of both will be found on almost every page. As a specimen, it will suffice to quote the two forms bāgas and bāgąs both occurring close together in ii, 1. Similarly, in the genitive of the same declension, H. has sunasand$^{i}$ (v. 3) and sunąsand$^{i}$ (v. 4), both for G.K.'s sŏna-sind$^{i}$, of gold (m. pl.). In these genitives, also, H. sometimes drops the final a of the stem, as in sunąr sąnz, for G.K.'s sŏnara-sünz$^{ü}$, of the goldsmith (fem. sing.) (v. 1); pādshāh sund, for G.K.'s pātashāha-sond$^{u}$, of the king (vi. 11). There is a curious example of a feminine noun declined as if it were masculine in kūḍis-sā$^{i}$th (possibly a slip for kūḍi sā$^{i}$th), for G.K.'s kōrĕ-sūty, with the girl (v. 10); and in xii, 15, we have the masculine form ku$^{i}$niy, used instead of the feminine kuñ$^{ü}$y, only one. Instances like rīnz, rąnz, and rēnz, for rīnz$^{i}$, balls; soirą, sō$^{i}$ri, sąruy, and sârruy for sôruy, all; zą, ze, and z$^{v}$i, for z$^{a}$h, two, belong rather to phonetics than to declension.

Similarly, the variations in pronominal forms are really matters of spelling or pronunciation. Bŏh, I, is represented by bo, bu; for myön$^{i}$, my (m. pl. masc.), we have mẽñ$^{v}$, myẽ, and m$^{v}$ēn, and for the fem. sing. myöñ$^{ü}$ we have mẽñy, myẽ, m$^{v}$ēn, myēn, and m$^{v}$ēñy. For ts$^{a}$h, thou, we have su, ṡa, ṡą, ṡi, and tsu, and for cyôn$^{u}$, thy, chun, ch$^{v}$un, chōn, chōn$^{v}$, chōny, and ch$^{v}$ōn, all with the aspirated ch.

The proximate demonstrative pronoun yih, this, and the relative yih, what, appear under the forms yi and yü, and the emphatic forms yihuy, etc., appear under quite a number of variant spellings. The relative m. sg. nom. yus appears as yis, yus, and yüs, and its fem. yĕsa as yesa (x, 1) and yasi (x, 6). In viii, 1, for yihünz$^{u}$, of these (fem. sg. nom.), we have yihas. As for the remote demonstrative pronoun, its emphatic fem. sg. nom. say or sŏy, she verily, appears as sai, sāi, say, and sāy. The indefinite pronoun kĕh, with its various case-forms, appears under a great variety of spellings. The principal of these have been dealt with under the head of phonetics.

The representation of the various forms of the verb substantive is very irregular. A few examples will suffice.

For chuh, he is, we have che (v. 4); for chuy, he is verily, chi, chī, ch$^{v}$, chiy, and cüy (sic); for chwā, is he ?, cha; for chĕh, she is, cha, che, chu; for chĕy, she is to thee, che and chay; for chiwa, ye are, chu; for chiway, if ye are, chu voi and chu vai; and for chih, they are, che, chi, chu, and ch$^{v}$a.

As regards the conjugation of the active verb, there are numerous departures from G.K.'s spelling, nearly all of which fall under the head of phonetics. Here we may mention the following, which really appear to indicate difference of form :—

| G.K. | Hātim. |
|---|---|
| shōlān, burning, | shōlan. This form of the present participle is old, and nowadays appears only in poetry and dialects. |
| yikh-nā, wilt thou not come, | yihna. |
| dis, give to her, | disa. |
| kadōn, we shall pass over it, | karōn$^{v}$. |

ON THE METRES OF HĀTIM'S SONGS

By SIR AUREL STEIN

On my return to Kashmir at the close of 1917 Sir George Grierson asked me to inquire into the system of metrification followed in certain old Kashmīrī poems of the Bhakti type in which he is interested. I have tried to comply with his request as far as it lay in me, i.e. in full consciousness of the fact that my philological training had never comprised any special study of metrics. After examining portions from a number of these compositions as recited by professional cyat-gārʾ, I arrived at the conclusion that the metre of these poems is based solely on the number of stress accent syllables counted in each line or pāda. No regard is paid to quantity, even where the structure of the verses is apparently modelled on the pattern of Hindī metres dependent on quantity. Pandit Nityânanda Śāstrī, of the Śrī-Pratāp College, Srīnagar, a very competent Kashmīrī scholar, to whom I submitted this view, has endorsed it.

In order to test this conclusion with reference to the metres of Hātim's songs I secured a visit of the old storyteller, now in his 62nd year, in June, 1918, when my summer camp was once more pitched on Mohand Marg. I had him recite again the metrified story of Sultām Maḥmūd Ghaznavī, the one which of those heard from his lips in 1896 I had best in my recollection. He also gave me the benefit of several songs of lyrical contents (ghazal), some of his own composition, which used to be favourite numbers in his répertoire, showing more elaborate versification.

In recording these with special regard to their metre I convinced myself that their verses, whether simple couplets, as in the case of the metrified story just referred to, or built up in more intricate stanzas, have for their constructive principle solely the number of syllables bearing the stress accent of the present colloquial speech. The system is based mainly on the counting of the primary stress accent of each word, but permits also the counting of secondary stress accents for the sake of metrical convenience. This latitude, which reference to the last words in verses 1, 11, 12, 13 of Maḥmūd Ghaznavi's story may help to illustrate, has its parallel in the rudeness of the rhyme. In this, as verses 3 and 8 show, the vowel sounds of the closing syllables need not agree, as long as the final consonant is the same.

The general rule is that throughout a song the lines, usually rhymed, composing a couplet or stanza, should have a certain fixed number of stress-accented syllables, in conformity with the scheme determining the length of each line. But this simple rule is on occasion ignored through "poetical license", i.e. whenever the rustic poet's skill would be taxed too severely by strict adherence to his metrical scheme. The second line of verse 4 in Maḥmūd Ghaznavī's story with its seven accented syllables instead of the regular six is an illustration.

The lilt of the musical air which, as in the case of Indian poetical compositions generally, is an essential concomitant of the recital, helps, no doubt, to smooth over such irregularities for the not very fastidious ears of the village audience. I regret that my total want of musical knowledge has precluded my ever noting down any of these popular Kashmir airs, often far more attractive to the untrained European ear than the melodies of India proper.

In order to illustrate Hātim's metrical system, the stress-accents in the Maḥmūd Ghaznavī story have been indicated by appropriate marks.

I. MAḤMŪD OF GHAZNĪ AND THE FISHERMAN

Sulṭān Maḥmūd of Ghaznī, the king of kings, used himself to watch over the protection of his kingdom.

Disguised as a Faqīr, he used to wander from bazaar to bazaar, to see if any of his subjects were in distress.

In one place were the people making prayers for his welfare, and their eyes were satisfied by his justice.

In another place, he saw a wretched fisherman, brought low by poverty.

5. In his poverty he was uttering sighs and groans. In his poverty even his sense had deserted him.

Even where he skilfully cast his net, even there naught came into it.

Said the King to him, "Make me thy partner, and fling one more cast of the net, keeping firm within thy heart the memory of God."

So he flung one more cast and, behold, within his net he caught a hundred fish, and brought them all before the King.

In exchange for the hundred fish the King gave him wealth of money, rubies and jewels, possessions and pearls in camel-loads.[1]

10. After he had passed the night, the King called for him and said, "Verily thou becamest my partner without hope or expectation of result (and yet thou hast thereby acquired great wealth).

"It is the power of Providence alone that removeth poverty, (and giveth) sunshine and shade, heat and cold, and the new spring.

"Verily I would say to thee, 'Know this, O slave—accept thou (these as coming from the Almighty), for by how much power wouldst thou thyself have been able to remove thy poverty?'"

Concerning this hath a certain teacher uttered this prayer, "The hope of this slave, Aḥmad, is (on Him from whom proceedeth) all the universe."

[1] The King rewarded him because instead of bringing him the worst fifty fish, he brought the whole hundred from which the King might choose his share. As a reward the King bought also the fisherman's share of the hundred for a very high price.

II. THE TALE OF A PARROT

1. This is what my Master told me :—

There was a certain country, the land of Persia, and it was ruled by a king named Bahādur Khān. He had made a garden for his womenfolk, into which no stranger was allowed to enter; but once there came into it a Faqīr. The discerners then discerned him, and the newsmen gave the news to the King. Said they, "A Faqīr has come into the garden." The King heard, and took with him his Vizier. To the garden they went, and there he saw the Faqīr.

2. The Almighty, who hath a hundred thousand names, watcheth over every path.
Hark ye, loyalty is monstrous rare.[1]
"O Faqīr, how didst thou enter?
Where dost thou belong? whence art thou come?"

Quoth the Faqīr :—

I came but for a stroll. What of yours have I eaten?"
Hark ye, loyalty is monstrous rare.

3. It chanced that before the King there was a flowering plant, and at its foot a dead nightingale. As soon as they spoke angrily to the Faqīr, he fell flat, lifeless to the ground, and as he did so the nightingale arose alive. Such magic power did he show the King. The nightingale flew out of the garden, and returned. Then it fell dead and the Faqīr again became alive. He began to depart, but they entreated him, saying :—

"O Faqīr, let me be thy servant!
Cups of the cream of milk will I fill for thee.
Special pilaos and dainties wilt thou not eat?"
Hark ye, loyalty is monstrous rare.

4. So the Faqīr confided the secret of his magic power to the King, and the King confided it to his Vizier.

[1] Literally a phœnix, a rara avis, the Arabic 'anqā. In the original, the imperative "hark ye" is in the singular; I have put it into the plural, as more consonant with English idiom.

The King gave instructions to the Vizier,
And he thus became proficient in the secret.
They went out hunting together.
Hark ye, loyalty is monstrous rare.

In the forest they saw a parrot lying dead.
"O Vizier, how beautiful this must have been.
Put thou, I beseech thee, thy life into it for but a moment."
Hark ye, loyalty is monstrous rare.

Said the Vizier:—
"My King, for long hath it been dead.
A stink cometh from it; who knoweth when it died?
Stay here I cannot; Sir, what am I to do?"
Hark ye, loyalty is monstrous rare.

5. For this did the King make urgent entreaty to the Vizier. "Fain would I see how beautiful the parrot was," but the Vizier refused to listen to him.

And, further, my Master told me:—

In his heart there was treachery. At length the King himself abandoned his own body and entered into the parrot. Up rose the parrot, and flew about. Then the Vizier did a deed: he himself entered into the King's body. That was what had all along been in his heart.

The burden which had been the King's to bear,
That became laid upon the foolish Vizier.
Treachery was watching in him like a petitioner.
Hark ye, loyalty is monstrous rare.

6. The parrot is flying in the air, and the Vizier is in the body of the King. He stood up.

He mounted the (King's) horse and went into the army.

He said to them:—

"The Vizier fell from his horse and is dead."
That was the news that the newsman brought.
Hark ye, loyalty is monstrous rare.

7. When this Vizier had done the deed, and when he had entered into the King's body, in his hand he raised his sword, and into small pieces did he cut his own dead body. Then said he to his army, "Go forth, ye archers, and ye gunmen. Whoever of you killeth a parrot, to him will be given a reward." When the parrot heard this order he fled afar, and went to the Faqīr, who on that day had been in the garden.

He gave the order to the archers,
"Pay ye heed, I pray, to my coaxing."
He gave an order that the parrot should be killed.
Hark ye, loyalty is monstrous rare.

8. Now, as for the real king, he was in the parrot, and had taken refuge with the Faqīr; so that parrot was not killed by anyone. One day the Vizier-King sallied forth to hunt; and when he had reached a certain place he descried a hind. After it they made pursuit. They brought it into the army, and he said to them, "I will cut off the head of him who letteth her escape."

9. And, further, my Master told me:—

But the hind gave a sudden spring and leaped over the head of the Vizier-King himself. They pursued her. Now the parrot-King was with the Faqīr,[1] and that Faqīr was a magician clairvoyant. Quoth he to the parrot-King, "Go forth, your Majesty, to-day wilt thou regain thine own body." Meanwhile the hind had far outdistanced her pursuers.

10. Furthermore, my Master told me:—

There there lay a dead bear. The Vizier-King entered into the bear and pursued the hind, leaving the real King's body lying on the ground.

The news of the Vizier-King's coming was heard by the parrot.
Thither did he run.
He waited, watching from a tree-hole.
He again entered into his own body; wish ye him all good luck!
Hark ye, loyalty is monstrous rare.

11. Down fell the parrot dead, and the King entered his own body, but he who had been the Vizier was now in the bear. The real King mounted his horse, and said to his men, "Shoot ye that bear." They fired with their guns at him, and brake his leg. They seized him and brought him before the King. Said the King, "Treachery was done by thee to me. What can I do but kill thee? Otherwise people will say of me, 'He hath a bear for a Vizier.' Thou hast destroyed thine own body. Now no longer can I keep a bear like thee as a Vizier. Sir, I am about to kill thee."

12. And my Master further said:—

They brought firewood, and they burnt the Vizier to ashes.
A hundred years passed, less or more.
And then came the messenger of Death to Bahādur Khān.
O Wahb, the blacksmith,[1] cry "Allāh, Allāh!"
Hark ye, loyalty is monstrous rare.

III. THE TALE OF A MERCHANT

1. A Merchant once went forth to trade, leaving his wife at home, and she for long became filled with love for a beggarman—a Faqīr. One day the Merchant came home with the chattels he had bought, and to the King came the news that " the Merchant hath returned ". At night the King went forth to wander through the city, and he reached the Merchant's house. While he was standing there, at the end of the first watch of the night, the Merchant's wife got up and went forth carrying a dish of cooked rice upon her head. The King watched her in secret. On ahead went she, and along after her followed the King. They arrived at a certain open space where the beggarman was seated over a little fire. She made salutation to him, and laid the dish of rice before him. Quoth she : " Eat ! " But straightway he raised a cudgel and with it struck the Merchant's wife. He said unto her, " Why hast thou come so late ? " She made reply to him, " My husband came home to-day, and hence was I delayed. Eat now, prithee, this dish of rice." But the beggarman said to her, " I will not eat. First bring me that Merchant's head. Then, and not till then, will I sup." Now all this time the King was watching, and he heard all this talk that passed between them.

2. Furthermore, my Master told me :—

The Merchant's wife went off, and came to her own home. She went upstairs, while the King stayed down below. She cut off her husband's head, and came down with it wrapped in a handkerchief. On ahead went she, and along after her went the King. She came to the beggarman. He raised his stick and struck the Merchant's wife. Said he to her, " Thou wast not true to thine own husband. Now wilt thou be true to me ? "

3. The King departed. He returned to his palace and went to his bed. Morning blossomed forth, and there was raised a cry. They say : " The Merchant came home and thieves have killed him." To the palace came the Merchant's wife. She saith unto the King, " My husband came home to me, and he hath been killed by thieves." The King knoweth well who killed the Merchant, while

4. And, further, my Master said :—

They brought out the Merchant's body and burnt it. The King went forth to the place of cremation and watched everything that should come to pass. There came up the widow, on her way to burn herself upon her husband's pyre. She was saying : " I also will burn my body." She came and prepared to leap into the flames ; but the King went near unto her, and caught her by the hand. He said unto her, " If this, then why that ? If that, then why this ? " Said she to him, " Let me go free, I will burn my body." Again said she to him, " By such and such a spring dwelleth my milk-sister. She will tell thee the meaning of this." So he let her go, and she was burnt beside her husband, and became released from the sorrows of the world. Next day went forth the King, and came to that spring. There saw he a certain woman, and to her he said, " If that, then why this ? If this, then why that ? " The woman made reply, " After eight days will I give to thee the answer."

5. Said my Master :—

Eight days passed, and then the King called to mind the woman's words. He ran to the spring. There saw he her and again asked he of her the meaning of those words. Quoth she, " Go thou, and bring hither a goat and a jar." He brought the goat and the jar, and then said she, " Descend thou into this spring and therein set thou the jar upside-down." And further said she to him, " Lead thou down the goat by the ear, and put its head upon the jar." (He did so), and she cried, " Strike thou it a blow with the sword."

6. And my Master said :—

He struck it a blow with his sword, and on the instant did the King of a sudden disappear.

7. And furthermore my Master told me :—

He found himself in a garden, and there was there spread a bed. On the bed he climbed and lay down and fell asleep. Now there were fairies there. They lifted him up and carried him off into a certain place. There he awoke, and seeth all round him

8. And further saith my Master :—

Departed these fairies and left him all alone, but before they went gave they him a key. Said they to him, "Unlock thou this room. Arise, and go within." He went within, and there he saw a horse ready saddled. He led it without, and stood there holding it by the bridle. Said they to him, "Mount this horse." He mounted it, and, lo! at once he seeth everything that God, the Master, hath made both below the seven earths and above the seven heavens. All that did the King see, and for it did he become smitten with love. Then before him appeared Satan; and Satan asked him saying, "What is it thou dost see?" Quoth the King, "Whatever God, the Master, hath created, that do I see." And Satan said to him in answer, "More than this will I show thee. Behold, here is my key. With it unlock thou this door. Arise and go within." The King went within and there saw he an ass tied. Said Satan to him, "Bring thou it forth, and mount it, and thou shalt see something more even than all that God, the Master, hath created." Thereupon did the King mount that ass.

9. Furthermore said my Master :—

Straightway the ass carried the King back unto his palace. He dismounted and went upstairs, and when he came down again, behold, he saw no ass there. Great longing for that garden of paradise came unto the King, but how was he to reach it? They tell me that he went at once unto the spring and asked the woman, "Tell me, prithee, 'If that, then why this? If this, then why that?'" And that woman said unto him, "Bring thou thine own son, and bring also a pitcher, and also bring thy sword." Said she to him, "Descend thou into this spring, and take down with thee thy son. Cast him down, and upon the pitcher lay thou his head." So the King took the lad by the ear, and drew his sword. With it would he have struck his son had not the woman seized it. Cried she, "This it is that is that; and that it is that is this. Thou becamest smitten with love for the garden, and my sister became smitten with love for the beggarman."

IV. A SONG OF LĀL MALIK

1. He saith :—

O God, supplication make I unto thee. Ah! hear Thou me! For this world is a deluder.

2. First sent He the holy Adam; yea, by the Angels was he made complete. Then Iblis ruined him, and thence (i.e. from Paradise) was he thrust forth. This world is a deluder.

3. From Adam was sprung the holy Noah, and from him the infidels became estranged. A sigh he uttered, and the whole universe was flooded in his tears. This world is a deluder.

4. In no way less than him was the holy Jesus. He was the beloved friend of God, the Master. Seated upon the four heavens did He utter His teaching. This world is a deluder.

5. The holy Moses stepped forward, crying, "I would see the Master with mine own eyes." He gave forth (the ten) words from Mount Sinai. This world is a deluder.

6. In no way less than him was the holy Abraham, who forbad the worship of idols. He it was who established the faith of Muḥammad. This world is a deluder.

7. When I shall die, and my brethren and friends will lower me into the grave, then what can they show to me, Lāl Malik, but that this world is a deluder.

V. THE TALE OF THE GOLDSMITH

1. Now this is what my Master saith :—

In days of yore there was a certain city, wherein there lived a goldsmith. He was head of his guild with twelve hundred guildsmen under him. He used to make articles for the King's daughter, and these his wife would take to her. One day the princess told the goldsmith's wife that in future her husband must himself bring the things, so one day he set out to her with a ring. When the princess saw it she took exception to it. "It is crooked," said she. So he took it back and went home, and there fell sick.

2. The truth was that he had fallen in love with the princess, and she too had become enamoured of him. She cried to her foster-mother :—

"Full of sweet languishment is that son of a goldsmith.
I have seen him, O nurse, and mad is my longing for him."

But the foster-mother replied :—

"Utter not, O daughter, childish talk,
Or thou wilt be caught within the net of love.
Close thine ear, O daughter, to such words,
Or else thou wilt find thyself a mark for blame."

3. The goldsmith lay sick of the fever of love, and his wife was a clever woman. She understood the cause of his pain, and said to him, "Practise thou pitching balls, and make two balls of gold."

4. Saith my Master :—

So he made two balls of gold and went out holding (them and other) balls in his hand. Hither and thither he pitched balls of stone and balls of iron as he went along, till he came below the princess's window, and through it he flung into her lap-cloth the two balls of gold. On this she turned her back towards him and showed him a mirror. Then she threw some water out of the window. Then she threw out a posy of flowers, and again a hair.

Finally she lifted up an iron stiletto and with it scratched the sill of the window. When the goldsmith had seen all this he returned home, and his wife said to him, "Well, dear, what did you do?" Said he to her, "I flung, my dear, the balls to her, and they fell, my dear, into her lap-cloth. Then, my dear, she turned her back to me and showed me a mirror. Then, my dear, she threw some water out of the window. Then she threw out a posy of flowers, and then a hair. Then she made a scratch upon the window-sill with an iron stiletto." Replied she, "When she turned her back and showed the mirror, she meant that someone else was there; when she threw out water, she meant that you must come in by the water-drain; when she threw the posy of flowers, she meant that it was the garden into which you must come; when she showed the stiletto, she meant that you must bring a file, as there are iron railings to be cut through; and when she threw a hair, she meant that she was combing her locks."

5. Moreover the Master said:—

At eventide the goldsmith went forth, and entered the garden. There he found a bed and got up on to it. He was weak from illness, and fell asleep. While he so slept, there came the princess. From the pillow she walked to the foot of the bed, and from the foot back again to the pillow, but he never awoke to welcome her. By that time the dawn began to blossom forth, and the princess ran off home. Thereafter the goldsmith awoke, and returned to his house. Says his wife to him, "What, dear, did you do?" Says he in reply, "She never came to me." Says she to him, "Come here, my dear." He went up to her, and she looked into his pocket, and found there the two golden balls that on the day before he had thrown into the princess's lap-cloth. Says she to him, "She did come to you, but you never stayed awake. Now, when you go again this evening, I will tell you what to do."

6. And the Master further told me:—

She set to work paring the ten nails of his hands, and as she did so, she gave to one of them a deep gash. Cried he, "You've been and killed me!" But she replied, "I was never taught barber's work by my father and mother. When you go to-day, I'll give you a little remedy." So she gave him some red-pepper and salt, saying, "Next time you get up on to that bed and you feel sleepy, apply a little of this medicine to your cut finger and your sleep will become cool."[1]

So the goldsmith went out, taking with him the medicine, and came to the garden, and got up on to the bed. He waited a long time, yet no one ever came. At length he began to feel sleepy, but his hand was too sore, and he caught hold of it (to relieve the pain). He said to himself, "She hasn't come. If I had only put some of that medicine on my sore finger I should have had a cool and refreshing sleep." So he put some of the medicine on the cut, and the smart was like a fiery poison in his heart. He jumped up, nursing his aching hand.

7. And my Master went on to say :—

Just then came the princess, and all his pain was forgotten. He did with her what was proper to the occasion, and they fell asleep in each other's arms. Meantime the dawn began to blossom forth. The chief constable came by on his rounds of inspection, and found there the princess and the goldsmith. He arrested them, making them over to his henchmen, and put them into jail. Just then a man happened to be passing along the road, and they called out to him, "Please, sir, make an outcry in the goldsmiths' market. You must say, 'The King's ass has trespassed in the saffron field, and who knows whether they will cut off its tail or cut its throat.'"

"The King's ass was caught in the saffron field,
And as I went there, my heart became all full of anxiety.
Thou must come at dawn with money to pay the fine,
Otherwise the King will kill it there and then."

The goldsmith's wife heard this outcry. She went out into the market and bought some loaves. She put these into a deep basket, and went off (to the jail), crying :—

"In six prisons have I distributed loaves.
Now, O God, would I enter a seventh."

[1] She means that the desire for sleep would become cool, and he would remain awake. But the silly fellow misunderstands her, and imagines that the medicine would bring him cool and refreshing sleep.

8. And my Master said :—

She went about distributing these loaves, saying, " My husband is sick. And what did holy men and medicants say to me but to distribute loaves in seven jails. If ye have ought to say to me, say it to me as I go in ; but say not ought to me as I go out, for that will risk the fulfilment of my vow." And then she continued, " I wonder if ye have any prisoners herein." They replied, " At the last watch of the night the chief constable brought hither two prisoners. They are in there at the back." So she came up to them, and said to her husband, " How can we now get the princess free ? Have you any plan for releasing her ? " Said he, " If I had any plan, would I now be in prison ? "

9. Said my Master :—

She took off her clothes and put them on the princess, and took off the princess's clothes and put them on herself. Then she turned the basket upside down (over the princess's head, so as to conceal it) and the princess went straight out of the jail, and came home. In the meantime the chief constable reported to the King that the princess and goldsmith had been found in the garden, and, of course, had been put in prison. The King went forth into the judgment hall. They brought the two prisoners before him, and, lo and behold, they were the husband and wife ! The goldsmith's wife respectfully folded her arms and said to the King, " Your Majesty, we had gone to a marriage feast, and on our way back happened to pass through this city of yours. It was then late, so we went into your garden. There we chanced to see a bed, and got on to it and went to sleep. Well, your chief constable came along, and, as you see, arrested us and put us into prison." Then the chief constable got up and said to the King, " Your Majesty, let your Majesty's daughter make oath at the Vigiñāh Nāg.[1] People say that if anyone make a false oath there, he never rises up again, but falls down dead on the spot."

Said the goldsmith's wife to the goldsmith, " Have you any plan for saving the princess ? " Said he to her, " Please tell me how ? "

[1] Vigiñāh or Vigiñ[ā] is the name of the tutelary goddess of the Kāshmīr forests. In the good old times she was often seen as she roamed over the mountains, but nowadays she is always invisible. A Vigiñāh Nāg is a Nāg, or spring, sacred to her.

Said she, "In the first place, pull off all your clothes, and put wooden pattens on your feet. In the second place, rub ashes over your whole body, and pretend to be a mendicant devotee. As soon as they shall bring the princess to the Nāg, you must go up to her and catch hold of her skirt, saying, "First of all, pray give me alms." She can then safely take oath and say, "O holy Vigiñāh Nāg, save and except this mad fellow no one hath ever seized my skirt." [1]

She went down to bathe in the Vigiñāh Nāg.
"I know not why this charge was brought against me.
Only this mad one hath caught the skirt of my garment."
Then what happened to the vile chief constable?
All the folk took their several ways to their homes.
Then what happened to the vile chief constable?

10. So the princess went home in peace, and they took the chief constable and impaled him. The goldsmith and his wife also returned to their own house, and there he fell sick. He was sick with the fever of love for the princess. But the goldsmith's wife was very clever. She made a necklace worth a hundred dīnārs and put it on her husband. She dressed herself as a mendicant ascetic, and him as a dancing girl, and brought him to the King's palace. Said she to the King, "Here is my brother's wife, and I am putting her in thy charge. I must be off to my brother who has gone away on a trading expedition. So here is my dancing girl placed in thy charge until I return. She is yet a virgin and thou must keep her with thine own daughter." Saying this she (left the goldsmith there disguised as the girl and) returned to her own house. Shortly afterwards the goldsmith himself slipped away, and also went home.

11. And again my Master said:—

The goldsmith's wife dresses her husband up as a merchant, and arrives as if from a journey at the King's city. She herself is again made up as the mendicant ascetic. She leaves the pretended

[1] "To seize the skirt" has also a metaphorical meaning, which can be imagined. Hence, the princess was quite safe in saying it.

merchant in the tent, and herself goes to the King. She makes her petition to him. "Give me," said she, "my dancing girl." The King replies with abuse, and throws curses at her eyes, but she reiterates, "Give me my dancing girl":—

"Longing have I been for my girl as the days went by.
The mendicant has come for his dancing girl."

And the King replies to her:—

"O mendicant, fix not the banner of thy claim, tol-lol-lay.
I will give thee another lady in compensation, tol-lol-lay."

But the mendicant answers:—

"An ascetic I am without worldly ties, tol-lol-lay.
In compensation I'll take thine own daughter, tol-lol-lay."

12. And finally said my Master:—

He made a necklace worth a hundred dīnārs, and putting it on his own daughter, made her over to the mendicant ascetic.

Taradiddle, taradiddle, tol-lol-lay,
It is only womenfolk who can act this way.

She took the princess and made her over to her husband. And she said to them, "You must learn, and she must learn."[1]

[1] i.e. learn the truth of the verse just quoted. They two must learn and know the power of women's wiles. There is perhaps an indication that the wiles would continue, and that the life of the husband and of the second wife might not be happy as they expected.

VI. THE STORY OF YŪSUF AND ZULAIKHĀ[1]

1. Wilt thou not hear, O beloved, (the tale of) Yūsuf and Zulaikhā ?

2. (Zulaikhā) " To the feast wilt thou not come ? Dainty meats wilt thou not eat ?
In season or out of season, come thou to me. Wilt thou not hear, O beloved ?

3. "Seven rooms have I in the palace; in my longing for thee have I prepared them.
Sit thou, I pray, for but a moment. Wilt thou not hear, O beloved ? "

4. One by one she herself in the idol-house

(Zulaikhā) " It is my god (that I have veiled). Wilt thou not hear, O beloved ? "

6. (Yūsuf) " There is but one God. Cast from thy mind the belief in dualism.[3]
He is burning bright as a lamp. Wilt thou not hear, O beloved ?

7. " There is but one God, who hath manifested Himself in glory.
What purpose can there be in a stone ? Wilt thou not hear, O beloved ? "

8. The holy Yūsuf fled, and after him ran Zulaikhā.
Yūsuf fleeing, Zulaikhā pursuing.
Cried she, " Is it thus that thou shouldest act ? Wilt thou not hear, O beloved ? "

9. She caught him by the neck. She made an accusation against him.
They went before the King. Wilt thou not hear, O beloved ?

[1] Yūsuf is Joseph, and Zulaikhā is Potiphar's wife.

[2] When Zulaikhā tempts Joseph she puts a veil before the image of her household idol, that it may not become aware of her unchastity. This arouses Joseph's suspicions.

[3] Dōy, duality, is a technical term of Kāshmīrī Śaiva monotheism, and is here borrowed by Musalmān theology.

10. Azīz-ĕ Misr was the King, and he had enmity against Yūsuf.
Yūsuf is in prison, no one heareth his complaint.
But he will be released by the power of God. Wilt thou not hear, O beloved?

11. When Yūsuf was put in prison there were there old prisoners. They each saw a dream. To one he interpreted it, saying, "Of a surety the King will kill thee," and the King did kill him. To the other he made interpretation saying, "Thou wilt become the King's chief clerk. Then, sir, I beseech thee, bear thou me in mind."
The prisoners saw a dream. The interpretation turned out true[1] for them.
On the morrow they were released from jail. Wilt thou not hear, O beloved?

12. King Azīz-ĕ Misr saw a dream.
Azīz-ĕ Misr became terrified by the dream.
He awoke, and there was made proclamation. Wilt thou not hear, O beloved?

13. What was the purport of the proclamation?
Among the priests, among the calendars, among the saints, among the mendicants.
Can there not be found one learned man? Wilt thou not hear, O beloved?

14. Of what science was a learned man required? One who could interpret this dream that had been seen by Azīz-ĕ Misr. His servant said to him, "The holy Yūsuf knoweth how to interpret a dream."
"Mighty is Yūsuf in interpretation of dreams.
Verily he is the remedy of all pains. Wilt thou not hear, O beloved?"

15. They brought the holy Yūsuf, and the King said to him, "I have seen a certain dream. Tell thou me the interpretation thereof." Said Yūsuf, "What didst thou see?" Replied the King, "In the first place saw I seven dry water-springs drinking

16. And my Master said :—

Yūsuf finished telling the interpretation, and as he did so the power of the famine seized the King. He felt hunger, and cried out, " Give me food," although that was not his time for eating. Through the power of the famine he cried to them, " Speedily bring ye it to me." And people say that they hastened forth and brought him food. He ate it, and cried, " Bring ye more ! " They hauled it to him in cauldrons, and he ate it but could not be satisfied. And people say that (for all he ate) he died of starvation. They say that next day the Viziers gave forth this command, " Let all ye citizens descend to-morrow to the ʿĪd-plain, and he to whom the royal elephant will bow, and on whose thumb-ring the royal hawk will alight, shall become King. They say that they went down to the ʿĪd-plain. The elephant came and bowed to Yūsuf, and the hawk came and alighted on his thumb-ring. So Yūsuf became King.

Majesty he displayed, he sent for the elephant.
Yūsuf became King. Wilt thou not hear, O beloved ?

VII. THE TALE OF THE REED-FLUTE

1. Only to him is the burden of woe manifested who suffereth woe himself.
   The reed-flute herself is telling the reed-flute's woe.

2. Quoth the reed-flute, "The Almighty is one and only one.
   God alone is of His own will devoid of wrath."

3. Quoth the reed-flute, "Pure is the Almighty;
   (As He alone is free from imperfection) only towards Himself can he yearn day and night.

4. "Ever go ye giving forth praise to that God,
   In that He created Muḥammad, the Beloved Guest.

5. "The Almighty gave him instruments to be with him.
   Four friends [1] are illustrious as his companions.

6. "By His glory He created Adam,
   And with Adam was created this world." [2]

7. Quoth the reed-flute, "Adam was sent forth into the world all alone,
   And at his wish Eve issued from his side."

8. Quoth the reed-flute, "How excellent was that moment,
   In which the world with all its offspring was created!"

9. Quoth the reed-flute, "Hear ye, I pray, the tale of my woe.
   If ye suffer pain, remain, I pray, a moment by me."

10. Quoth the reed-flute, "At the back of the forest was I hidden, Beautiful with my branches and my leaves."

11. Quoth the reed-flute, "Upright was my youthful form,
    As (in the breeze) I waved the pendants of my golden ears.

12. "I went astray, and thus happened that change of my estate.
    A woodcutter chanced upon me, a doom, a thief of my destiny."

[1] Muḥammad's four friends were Abū Bakr, 'Umar, 'Uthmān, and 'Alī. The last two were his sons-in-law, and the first two his dearest friends.

Lamenting was she, as she made her last farewell.

And when he is come down, he selleth me to a carpenter." [1]
18. Quoth the reed-flute, "He turneth me round and round sideways and inspecteth me.
He standeth apart and giveth me terrible blows with an axe."
19. Quoth the reed-flute, "When he melted my flesh with a saw,
When he set me on his lathe, 'twas as though a wood-worm had attacked me."

20. When she was set on the lathe in that carpenter's shop, the memory of her friends and companions comes to her. She says some words to them. What is it she would say?
Quoth the reed-flute, "Where stayed my friends and companions?
Messages would I send them. Would that I knew if they stayed half way.
21. "I would tell my secret to my friends and neighbours,
I would open my bosom, and display my grief."
22. Quoth the reed-flute, "What hath befallen me! How much do I lament!
In my woe, I pour forth cries and calls for help."

Quoth the reed-flute, "Yearning have I for my canebrake,
For this purpose searched I earth and heaven."

VIII. THE TALE OF A KING

1. Once upon a time there was a certain King, and my Master tells me that every day he used to go out to take the air in the roof summer-house of his palace. Now some birds had built their nests in its thatch, and each day the King and Queen used to listen to the chirping of the chicks, and much joy did the two derive therefrom. One day they heard none, and said the Queen to the King, "Why is there to-day no chirping?" And my Master tells me that they looked into the nest, and that they found therein only two dead chicks. They took them out and full of grief brought them down into the palace. There they summoned all their wise Viziers, and commanded them to inspect the dead chicks, and to say what had happened to them. So the Viziers inspected them, and found that a thorn had been stuck into the throat of each. Then said a very sage among the Viziers, "It is evident that the mother of these chicks died, and that the cock sought another mate and wedded her. She has been giving each of them a thorn to eat for food, and that is why they are dead." Said the King to the Queen, "If I die, thou must not wed again," and said the Queen to the King, "If I die, thou must not wed again." And so they mutually made vow and oath. Now, why was it that they made this vow and oath? "Because," said they, "we have two sons, and who knoweth but a stepmother or a stepfather may do this very thing to them."

2. In the course of time the Queen died, and the King wedded not again, because of the mutual vow and oath that the Queen and he had made. A long time passed, and at length his Viziers came to him and said, "Verily, your Majesty should once more make espousal," but for a long time he paid no heed to them. Then at last his Viziers became urgent, and he took to himself a new Queen.

3. Now, as we have heard, there were two young princes, and they were occupied in their lessons. One day the two brethren took advice of each other and decided to bring a complimentary present to their stepmother. So they filled a tray with rubies and other jewels and offered it to her. She accepted the tray, and as she did so her glance fell upon them. The princes then went off to their lessons, and after that, day by day, they brought her a similar offering. One day, there arose in the heart of the Queen a passionate desire for the two youths, and she made proposals to them for an unlawful intrigue; but they replied, "Thou art our mother! We are thy children! Between thee and us such may not be," and went off again to their lessons. In the evening the King came to the harem, but the Queen locked the door of her room and refused to allow him to enter. Said he, "Why hast thou shut the door?" and she replied to him, "Is it of thee that I am the wife, or am I the wife of thy two sons?" Said the King, "What is it that hath happened?" Replied she, "They came to me and asked of me indecent things. Nor will I open the door to thee till thou give me their two hearts."

4. And my Master saith :—

He gave an order to his Viziers while the boys were studying their lessons in the school. Said he to the Viziers, "Make the princes over to the executioners, and let the executioners kill them." And my Master tells me that a Vizier went to the princes, and became filled with pity for them. Said he to them, "Come ye down from the school." Then he said, "Flee ye from this city." So they fled, and then the Vizier did a deed. He told the executioners to kill two dogs. So they killed two dogs, and tore out their hearts. These they put upon a charger and took to the Queen. Said they to her, "Here are the two hearts of those princes. Open thou the door and take them." So she opened the door and took the two hearts, as they said to her, "Here are they for thee straight from the bodies of the two princes." And thereafter the King lived on with her to sway the sceptre.

5. The two brothers sought refuge with another king, and he said to them, "Ye appear unto me to be princes. Prithee tell ye me how are ye come hither, and what is the cause thereof." So they told him all their happenings, and he thereupon took them into his service. And my Master tells me that they were entered into the King's bodyguard. The King had already two old servants in his bodyguard, and with these two princes they made four. Each had to guard the king during one of the four watches of the night. Now the first watch of the night fell to the elder of the two princes, and my Master tells me that at this time the King and Queen went to their bed.

6. Furthermore, my Master tells me :—

The guard stood by, watching and warding the royal pair, and straight in front of them he saw a great python begin to lower itself from the ceiling. He fixed his eyes upon it, and as it approached the body of the Queen he ran up and struck at it with his sword. He hacked it into little pieces and thrust them under the bed. He then wrapped the blade of his sword in cotton-wool, and some of this he used to wipe the body of the Queen, "For," said he to himself, "haply some of the python's poison may have touched her." This, you must understand, was his sole and only reason for wiping her. But just then the King awoke, and he saw that his guard had come near him with a naked sword in his hand. By this time the period of his watch had passed, and the watch of the second guard was due. He approached, and the King said to him, "O guard, what should be done to the man who is traitor to his lord?" Replied the guard, "Sire, his head should be cut off, and he should be flayed alive. But, your Majesty, I would tell to thee a story. Prithee, lend thou me thine ear."

7. Said the guardsman :—

"Once upon a time there was a King. One day he went a-hunting all alone. He took with him his falcon, and when he had come to a certain spot he fell athirst, but could find no means of alleviation. A length he saw in one place a little moisture (on the face of a cliff). He thrust in his spear to make a hole, and pulled forth a cup from his pocket, which he filled with the water as it trickled forth. As he began to take it up to drink his falcon flew at him and upset it. So he filled the cup again, and was about to drink when again the falcon upset it. Poisonous anger rose in the heart of the King. The third time he filled the cup, holding it with his right hand, leaving his left arm free. Just as he began to drink, again came the falcon and upset it. The King grasped the bird, and holding it under his feet tore off both its wings. As soon as he had killed it he was filled with regret, and could not drink the water. He went to look for the source of the spring, and when he had found it he saw there a huge python lying asleep, and from its mouth spittle was dripping into the streamlet. The water was poisonous." And, added the guard to His Majesty, "If that King had drunk that water he would have died, and if he had only inquired into the matter beforehand he would not have killed the falcon. Sire, that is my story. Thou shouldst scrutinize before deciding."

8. His watch also came to an end, and there came the third watch. The first two sat down to rest themselves, but the King was still wakeful, and he spoke to his third guard, saying, " O guard, what should be done to him who showeth faithlessness to his lord ? " Said he in answer, " He should be stoned to death, but first, sire, investigation should be made. I would tell to thee a story. Lend thou me, sire, thine ear."

9. Said the third guardsman :—

" There was once upon a time a merchant blessed with all prosperity. But evil times befell him, so that he had naught left of his possessions but a dog. Another merchant asked him if he would sell it, and thereto did he agree. ' What is the price ? ' and they fixed it at a hundred rupees. So the second merchant paid the price and took away the dog. Shortly afterwards he went on a journey with some goods to do merchanting, and halted for the night at a certain place. In the night-time there came thieves and took away all his property. The dog watched them, but made no sound. When the morn blossomed forth the merchant awoke, and could not find his goods. While he was wondering what had befallen him, the dog came up and caught hold of his coat and pulled it. The dog led him out, going in front, while the merchant followed along behind. He brought him to a certain plain, and there he saw the spot where the thieves had stored his goods. He recognized them, and brought back to his lodging not only what had been taken from him, but all that these thieves had stolen from other merchants. He was filled with joy, and said to himself, ' That merchant was not able to put the true value on his dog. Hard times had fallen on him, and he had to take what he could get."

10. Moreover my Master said :—

"He put the value of the dog at five hundred rupees, and wrote a note of hand to that amount. This he tied to the dog's neck, and told him to go home with it to his old master. The dog set forth and arrived at his old master's house. The latter saw him and recognized him. He said to his people, 'Here is this dog come back. No doubt he hath done some fault. Moreover, there is an invoice to that effect tied to his neck.' So he became filled with anxiety. 'What,' cried he, 'am I to do? For I have spent the hundred rupees.' So he went and got a gun, fired it at the dog, and killed it. When he had killed it, he felt sorry and went up to look at the paper that was tied to its neck. When he took it off and opened it he saw written on it an order for five hundred rupees. Then, indeed, he felt very sorry. Your Majesty, that is my story. One should always scrutinize. If that merchant had first looked to see what was tied to the dog's neck he would not have killed it."

With that the term of his watch expired.

11. Now came the watch of the fourth guard, and this is his story. The King said to the fourth guard, "O guard, what should be done to the man who is a traitor to his lord?" Replied the guard, "Your Majesty, his head should be cut off, and he should be banished from the city. But, sire, I would tell thee a story. Lend thou me thine ear."

And the fourth guardsman said :—

"Once upon a time there was a King who had two sons. Their mother died, and the King made a second marriage, and thus gave the two princes a stepmother. While they were still at their lessons they brought her a tray filled with rubies and other jewels as a complimentary present. They laid it before her, and then went back to their lessons. They passed each day in this manner, and at length a design was aroused in the Queen. And this was her design. She said to herself, 'I would do sin with these young princes.' One day she said to them, 'Come ye and do sin with

After this the King came home, when he had dismissed his court, and went to the harem; but the Queen locked the door against him and refused to open it. Said he, 'What meaneth this?' Then up and answered she, 'Is it of thee that I am the wife, or am I the wife of thy two sons?' Said the King, 'What is it that hath happened?' Said she, 'They came to me and asked of me indecent things.' Said he, 'What wouldest thou have me to do?' and she replied, 'I must have their two hearts, that I may eat them. Then, and then only, will I open for thee the door.' So the King gave the command to his Vizier, and said to him, 'Make these two princes over to the executioners, that they may tear out both their hearts.' So the Vizier took his leave and came to the school where the princes were doing their lessons. He took one look at them and saw that they were both exceeding fair to behold, and pity filled his soul. He said to them, 'Flee ye far from this city.' So they fled."

12. And moreover my Master said:—

"The Vizier told the executioners to kill two dogs. They did so, and tore out their hearts, which they placed upon a charger and carried to the Queen. Then she opened the door, and the King went in, and there did he sway his sceptre.

13. "The two princes in their flight came to another King, who appointed them to be his bodyguards. The first watch of the night falls to the elder prince. A lamp is burning, and shows the King and Queen asleep upon their bed. Straight in front of them is descending a huge python. The guard draws his sword, and hacks it into little pieces. After this he wraps up the blade of his sword in cotton-wool, and some of this he uses to wipe off the python's poison from the body of the Queen. 'For,' said he to himself, 'haply some of the python's poison may be on her.' While he was still wiping her the King awoke. Said the King to himself, 'he hath

IX. THE TALE OF THE FARMER'S WIFE AND THE HONEY-BEE

1. Saith my Master :—

Here was a farmer's wife who had fled from her home. And why had she done this ? It was because the village overseer and the headman had shown her tyranny, and so she had fled. She reached a forest, and there there came a honey-bee. Behold, speech came to the honey-bee, and she saith to the farmer's wife, " Why hast thou fled ? " And she replied that tyranny had been shown to her. Then answered her the honey-bee, " I also have suffered tyranny, and therefore do I lament. Prithee, lend thou me thine ear." And thus speaketh the honey-bee to the farmer's wife :—

Prithee hither come, my friend. Let us fall at God's feet, and make our prayers to Him.

Lo, I am thy honey-bee, a poor winged creature of the forest.

2. From hill to hill did I collect my flower-nectar, and become possessed of manifold progeny.

May ruin seize that ruthless bear, for he it was that drove me to the forests.

3. He utterly destroyed my little ones. O God, why came there no pity to Thee ?

Lo, I am thy honey-bee, a poor winged creature of the forest.

4. Quoth the honey-bee to the farmer's wife, " Thus and thus was I driven from the forest by the bear, and now I fled. Then alighted I at a farmer's house, and he said unto me, 'I will give thee peace and comfort.' Behold what that farmer did unto me. Prithee, lend thou me thine ear. What shall I say unto thee ? "

He made ready a hive as an abode for me, and rubbed it o'er with fresh butter. It became a prison of death for me.

It was my fate that brought me to the farmer's house, and, of a truth, that fate was humiliation.

5. With a sickle he cut off my honey-combs, and thereby there rose upon him the guilt of countless murders.

Lo, I am thy honey-bee, a poor winged creature of the forest.

Each soul must dree its weird, and there is a place below to which it must descend.

Lo, I am thy farmer's wife. We came not to this world as an abiding place.

7. In the spring the tax-gatherers came to the farmers with soft encouragement.

With sweet words did they fill their bellies, and enclosed them as in a net.

8. In the autumn they forgot all their kindness. They it was who came to beat us.

Lo, I am thy farmer's wife. We came not to this world as an abiding place.

9. Crops sowed I in mother earth, and they it was that sprung up and ripened.

I collected and piled them on the threshing-floor, hundreds of kharwārs [1] in weight.

Lo, I am thy farmer's wife. We came not to this world as an abiding place.

11. How many of the poor and needy, O friend, came as beggars holding out their lap-cloths!

Their skirts I filled and filled, for that giveth an assurance of salvation.

12. The recording angels will write down with their pens the reward of these good actions, so that they may ne'er be shaken.

Lo, I am thy farmer's wife. We came not to this world as an abiding place.

X. THE TALE OF RÂJÂ VIKRAMÂDITYA[1]

1. This is what my Master saith to me :—

Four men were once going along the road, and they came to a wide open plain. As they entered it they began to say to each other, "Come, let us tell a story to while away the journey across the plain." After a time they were joined by another man, and they asked him to tell a story to help the journey along. Said he, "Sirs, I will tell you a story. Moreover, sirs, as a story I will tell you five things,[2] but for the five things you must pay me five hundred rupees." Replied they, "We are four, and will give thee four hundred. The fifth hundred must be paid by thee as the fifth of us. So tell us, prithee, sir, the five things." Said he to them :—

"Money, sirs, is for a journey.
A friend, sirs, is for when there is no money.
A near relation, sirs, is for when there is money.

That makes three things, and, sirs, there are two others :—

Thou canst only call thy wife thine own so long as she be with thee.

And, again, sirs :—

He only will win Rājā Vikramâditya's daughter
Who keepeth awake by night."

When he told them these five things, they say to him, "Now, sir, tell a story." But he replies, "I have told you, sirs, the five things." At this they began to quarrel. Cry they, "You have taken our four hundred rupees; but, sir, you have not told us any story. We have not yet got across the plain." So the four gave him a drubbing. Then he made this proposal, "Come, sirs, to the King of this country, and let us abide by what he says."

[1] The Indian monarch of glorious, pious, and immortal memory. He is throughout entitled "Rājā", as opposed to the Musalman word "Pādshāh" used for the real hero of the story. In translating I retain "Rājā" unchanged, and translate "Pādshāh" by "King".

[2] The whole of the subsequent quarrel depends on the double meaning of the word kath, which like the Hindi bāt means not only "story" but also "statement" and "thing". The four thought they were buying five stories, but the fifth was only selling five statements. I translate kath by "thing", as the nearest English word with a similar indefinite meaning. On the other hand I translate dalīl by "story". Its meaning is not indefinite.

2. Saith my Master :—

They went to the King and the four laid their complaint before him. "This fellow," said they, "hath cheated us to the tune of four hundred rupees, for he promised to tell us five things." The King asked him, "What was it that thou saidst to them?" And he up and replied, "Sire, I will tell thee the five things, but thou must pay me for them rupees five hundred. Then, and only then, can I tell these five things to thee." So the King sent for five hundred rupees, and gave them to him. (After he had told them) he tied up the money in his pouch, and the King did a deed. He doffed his royal garments, and donned those of beggary. Then he tied seven rubies under his arm and went forth to test these five things.

3. Moreover my Master said :—

First of all he went to the city where dwelt his sister. He mounted his horse, and when he arrived there he sent her this message, "I am fallen into poverty; so what else could I do but come to thee." And this was the word which she sent back, "Verily, I shall be put to shame in my father-in-law's house (if thou come to me)." Again he sent her these words in answer, "If it be not possible for me to come to thee, thou shouldst at least send me somewhat wherewith to fill my belly; and if thou send it, fasten thou it up carefully, and set thine own seal upon it." So this sister did a deed. She sent him a little rice in her bowl—it may have been orts, or it may have been fresh food. Upon it she set her own seal, and despatched it to her brother. As soon as he saw his sister's seal he accepted it, and there and then he buried it and hid it in the ground.

4. Then he set forth upon the road to his friend. When he came near he sent a man on to say, "My friend, I am come to thee. I have no more royal state, for I have been struck by the blow of poverty." And when his friend heard this he went forth and came to his friend, and cried, "Ah, my friend! Wherefore hast thou come to show thyself here (so far from my door)?" So together the two walk on. As they walked the friend seeth that the King is clothed in the weeds of poverty, and saith to him, "My friend, prithee present me with this royal robe that thou dost wear, and put on my poor garment instead thereof." For he looked upon the King's garb not as the garb of beggary, but thought of it as a royal robe. And wherefore that? It was because of the love he bare him. They went on and reached the friend's house, and there the friend made him a feast—such a feast as one should lay before a King.

In this way the King had tested two of the things.

5. Then went he forth to the city where dwelt his wife. When he had reached the outskirts he made his lodging in the house of an old woman, and asked of her a sickle that he might cut grass for his horse. So he went out to fetch the fodder, and came to a mead where he began to cut the grass. Now this mead was in the home farm of the king of that land, and the grooms ran up and seized him, and carried him to their officer, the Master of the Horse. They shut him up in prison, and when night fell he seeth a woman coming along with a dish of dainty meats for the Master of the Horse. He was sitting on a bedstead. She laid the dish before him, and they both sat down upon the floor to eat it. A few scraps remained over, and these they gave the prisoner. They called to him, "Ho, thou prisoner, eat thou these scraps and orts of ours." The prisoner accepted them and ate. And while he remained sitting by himself the two clipped and toyed together till the joint of the bedstead broke. Again they called to the prisoner, "Prithee see, the joint of this bed hath broken. Haply thou hast wit enough to mend it." He answered, "Yea, why should I not have wit therefor? My neighbours are carpenters." Said they, "Come hither." So he came, and then the woman recognized him as her own husband; though he had recognized her before when they gave him the scraps of food. So saith she to the Master of the Horse, "What now are we to do? This is my husband, he must be killed this very night of nights." So the Master of the Horse gave his command to the executioners, "Take ye away this prisoner. He must be slain. Bring ye us back his heart." So they led him forth outside the city, and to them made he a petition. "Let me free," quoth he, "that I may wash my hands and face and make my prayers to God before I die. So they loosed his bonds, and he found a little water, wherein he washed his hands and face, and made his prayers to God, the Master. As he thus did his hands fell upon the seven rubies that he had tied beneath his arm when setting forth upon his journey. Then said he to the executioners, "O sirs, let ye me go free. Here be these seven rubies. Keep ye four of them, one for each of you four, and keep the remaining three for me."

6. In this way he had tested four of the things, but the fifth he had forgotten. So he returned home, and asketh the five men, "Sirs, tell ye me what those five things were." Then up and answered that man, "Sire, how many of these things hast thou tested?" Quoth he, "Four." "Which ones?" they asked. Said the King:—

"True is it—a near relation is for when there is money.
True also is it—a friend is for when there is no money.
True also is it—thou canst only call thy wife thine own so long as she be with thee.
True also is it—money is useful on a journey.

These four things that ye told me have I tested. Now tell ye me the fifth." Replied that man to him, "A hundred rupees must thou give me." The King gave it, and he said:—

"He only will win Rājā Vikramâditya's daughter
Who keepeth awake by night."

7. And the King did a deed. He put on the garb of a mendicant faqīr. He went forth and reached Rājā Vikramâditya's palace. The discerners then discerned him, and the newsmen gave the news to the Rājā. Said they, "Your Majesty, there hath appeared a faqīr, and he saith, 'The Rājā's daughter I would win,'" And the Rājā said to them in answer, "Up to to-day, how many princes have gone to their death! Now hath this faqīr committed himself to God, that He may decide whether he live or die. Go ye, and lead ye him up to the chamber." And in the chamber where was the Rājā's daughter, a bed was ready spread. The faqīr climbed up upon it, and gave the lady a push. He conversed with her, and when they had finished conversing he did a deed. He folded his garments into the shape of a man, and went a short way off and sat down to watch. A lamp was burning, and by its light he saw a python issue from the lady's mouth.[1] It entered the garments which he had folded into the shape of a man. It shook them, and bit them over and over again, but when it found that there was no man within them, it retreated and again entered the lady's mouth. In this way did the faqīr satisfy himself by his perscrutation that it was within the lady that there was an evil calamity dwelling, and that there was nought else outside her. Up came the faqīr to the bed. He gave the lady a push, and held converse with her. He made his garments again into the shape of a man, and again went away a short distance to sit and watch. A lamp was burning, and in his hand he held his drawn sword. The python issued from the lady's mouth, and began to enter the garments. He raised his sword and smote it to pieces and slew it. He cut it into gobbets and thrust them under the bed. Then he climbed himself upon the bed, laid the sword beneath the pillow, and fell asleep.

8. The night came to an end, and dawn began to come, and to the executioners said Rājā Vikramâditya, "Go ye. This faqīr is surely dead. Bring him too down, as ye did the others. Up to to-day how many princes have gone to their death, and he, too, must have died!" They went up into the chamber, and saw the faqīr alive and safe and sound. The discerners then discerned him, and the newsmen gave the news to the Rājā. Said they, "Your Majesty, that faqīr is of truth alive." His Majesty, the Rājā, himself ascended to the chamber, and made him gratulations, crying, "O faqīr, tell me, prithee, how thou didst escape." Quoth the faqīr, "By remaining awake. Your Majesty, cast thou a glance below the bed." The Rājā looked, and there saw he the calamity as the faqīr had thrust it after he had killed it. Said the faqīr to the Rājā, "What was the promise made by thee?" And quoth the Rājā, "True it is. There is no God but the one God." Then said the faqīr to him, "Here, sire, is this thy daughter. Sire, give thou me the token (that I may claim her as my wife)." Then gave the Rājā his ring to the faqīr, and took in exchange the faqīr's ring from him.

9. Then departed the faqīr and came to his own city. He put off his mendicant's weeds and clothed himself in royal robes. He gave the command to his army to set forth with him.

10. And my Master said :—

First of all went he to his sister's city. The king, her husband, was one of those that paid him tribute. He had his sister brought to him, and put before her the bowl of food that she had sent to him on that day, and on which she had set her seal. Quoth he to her, "Is this thy seal?" Replied she, "Mine it is." Then said to her the King, "It is I who was the beggar-man of that day. True it is that a near relation is for when there is money."

11. He took the army of that king also with him, and turned his footsteps towards his friend. And the friend made a feast in honour of the royalty of both these kings. The night they passed there, and at dawn they again set forth.

12. He turned his footsteps towards the city of his father-in-law. He sent for that king and said to him, "Prithee, send thou for thy grooms. They have caught a thief in the mead of thy home farm. Where have they put him?" They brought the grooms. Quoth he to them, "Where did ye put that thief whom ye seized in the mead of the home farm?" Said they, "Sire, we made him over into the hands of our officer, the Master of the Horse." They brought before him the Master of the Horse. They said to him, "These grooms made over to thy custody a certain thief. Where hast thou put him?" But he denied that he had seen him. Then the grooms gave testimony, "Sire, of a surety, we did make him over to this man's custody." Then quoth the King—the one who formerly had been dressed as a faqīr—"bring ye the four executioners. They themselves will say what happened."

They brought them, and the King said to them, " Ye have in trust a deposit made by that faqīr, give ye it here and now." Then those executioners did a deed. They brought forth those seven rubies and laid them before the King. He took up four of them, and gave them to them, as he said, " Who gave you these ? " Quoth they, " A certain faqīr." " And for what purpose ? " " This Master of the Horse had made him over to us to be slain." Then said the King to the Master of the Horse, " Dost thou not recognize me ? It is I who am that faqīr whom thou didst imprison. At first came that lady to thee with a dish of dainty meats. Ye ate together, and some scraps and orts remained over and above. You gave a shout and called to me, ' Come, thou prisoner, eat thou these scraps and orts of ours.' So I came and took and ate. After that you clipped and toyed together, till the joint of the bed became broken. You gave a shout and called to me, ' Haply, dost thou know how to mend this bed ? ' and I replied to you, ' Yea, why should I not know ? My neighbours are carpenters.' I mended for you the bed, and my wife saw that it was I. Said she to thee, ' This is my husband, he must be killed this very night of nights.' Thou gavest me into the hands of these executioners, and to them came compassion for me, and they let me go free. I gave them seven rubies. Four gave I, one for each of the four, and three I left with them in deposit for me. Now, here I have these three rubies, and four have I just now given to these four men. There, in their hands, are they also for thee to see." And in this way was his guilt proved against him.

13. And moreover my Master told me :—

He gave the order to his army. He dragged forth the Master of the Horse and his own wife. He had dug a pit and had them both cast into it, and had them stoned with stones until they died. On this subject verily a master of books hath written :—

Treacherous are a knife, a serpent, and the coquetry of a woman.

14. Thenceforth went again the King and came again to Rājā Vikramâditya's palace. Then gave they the news to the Rājā, " A king hath come and asketh for his wife." Then said the Rājā, Quoth the Rājā to him, "What meant the faqīrhood of those days, and what meaneth the royalty of to-day?" Said the King to him, "I had bought five things, and them was I testing, and therefore dressed I myself as a faqīr." Then the Rājā did a deed. He gave the King his wife to be with him. The King went forth and came to his own city, and there he swayed the sceptre of his rule. This is the end, and may peace and honour attend ye all.

XI. THE SONG OF FORSYTH SĀHIB WHEN HE WENT TO CONQUER YĀRKAND.

The Mission of Sir Douglas Forsyth across the Hindūkush to Kashgar took place in 1873–4. It passed through Kashmīr, where people were collected to serve in the camp. Sābir, the author of this poem, describes the events attending the impressment of these camp-followers. He evidently believes that it was a military expedition to conquer Yārkand.

1. What I have seen, to that attend and thou shalt hear. "Yārkand will we conquer for ourselves."

2. First, said the Queen of England, "Who can do this work? A mighty man is Forsyth." To him she gave the order, "Seat thyself upon the throne of Yārkand as its king, and from it levy thou tribute. Yārkand will we conquer for ourselves."

3. They who wielded the sceptre of authority from London unto Yārkand became famous over all the world. First halted they in Sŏnamarg[1] to enjoy the delight of the flower-meads. "Yārkand will we conquer for ourselves."

4. Ahead went the order of the Mahārāj of Kashmīr to Tibet.[2] "Ye Baltīs, advance ye and then hasten ye to Kashmīr bringing passports with ye. Yārkand will we conquer for ourselves."

5. The order for their assembling issued forth on all sides, and at first the people were collected in Marāz.[3] Lamenting were they and crying "Poor ignorant souls, whither are we come?" "Yārkand will we conquer for ourselves."

6. In houses of these Tibetans were Kāshmīrīs quartered, and the brothers of Tibet were sent forward in advance. Horses were stationed for the post, and yaks for collecting and piling grass. "Yārkand will we conquer for ourselves."

[1] A celebrated upland in the Sindh Valley of Kashmīr, famous for the beauty of its wild flowers.

[2] i.e. Little Tibet or Baltistān. The people of this country are excellent carriers. They are represented as being despatched in droves to the rendezvous in Kashmīr. They are furnished with passports or certificates of dispatch.

[3] One of the two divisions—Marāz and Kamrāz—of the Valley of Kashmīr. Marāz is the southern part of the valley, on both sides of the River Vĕth above Śrīnagar.

7. Women were collected to help in distributing straw and firewood. Some of them were fresh from childbed, and others were heavy with child. "Yārkand will we conquer for ourselves."

8. Horses were demanded from villages that had naught but fowls. Their drivers knew not how to say "tchk", and could say only "hår[i] hår[i]," [1] as they urged them along. "Yārkand will we conquer for ourselves."

9. When they harnessed a horse they turned the crupper towards its head, and hung the bridle by its tail. Grass ropes did they use for strong binding-straps.[2] All the appliances that they had were pack-saddles [3] of straw and saddles made of rags. "Yārkand will we conquer for ourselves."

10. Menial cultivators were impressed in proportion to the size of each village, and on the shoulder of each was laid the burden of some special duty. Like bundles of grass were they crowded together, as they carried cooking pots for the potters. "Yārkand will we conquer for ourselves."

11. Said the potter's wife to the potter, "O potter, thou art a fool. What need have we to put pots into the kiln? The business, dear, is a travelling one, and we must leave all uncooked food behind us (and bring with us our food ready cooked)." "Yārkand will we conquer for ourselves."

12. Said the cow-herd to his wife, "Let us both go forth and arrange a place for the cows. If we carry a wisp of grass upon our heads, the cows will follow at a run." "Yārkand will we conquer for ourselves."

13. He went forth, milk-pail on haunch, and carrying his load of pots. The people all were exhausted by their march, and to them the kindly milkman seemed as blessed as a garden-watcher of Paradise. "Yārkand will we conquer for ourselves."

[1] "Tchk" is the click made to encourage a horse, "hår[i] hår[i]" is what is said for the same purpose to a cow. The impressed drivers were unaccustomed to horses, and knew only the bovine expletive.

[3] The ġanḍ[i] is the term used for the Turkistān pack-saddle, which consists of two straw-filled pommels joined in front (Stein).

14. The sweeper said to the sweeper's wife, "I shall never remember what I have to do. They expect me to provide leather and a cobbler's laces. They are sending me off, my dear, with a leather-cutter and a cobbler's awl." "Yārkand will we conquer for ourselves."

15. And she replied, "Thou shouldst have answered them, O pimp of a sweeper.[1] Thou shouldst have said, 'I know not how to use them.'" "I did, my sweeperess, say that to them, but they heard me not at all." "Yārkand will we conquer for ourselves."

16. The roll-call was cried for the artisans, and a demand was made for workers in iron. Each came bearing his anvil on his head, and leaning on his tongs as if they were a stick. "Yārkand will we conquer for ourselves."

17. The blacksmiths grumbled and complained, "Where are we to look for coals? How can we aright arrange our smithy?" But somehow or other the officials made a makeshift for them, and set them a-forging horseshoes. "Yārkand will we conquer for ourselves."

18. Very pleased did I become, and mighty good it seemed to me that last of all they impressed the barber and the carpenter (of my village), and that I saw them running after the others each with a kerchief of food in his hand.[2] "Yārkand will we conquer for ourselves."

19. Their wives are holding a conference with each other. Say they, "Who is, then, now to support the barber's wife and the carpenter's wife? We shall have to earn our livelihood by hiring ourselves out for spinning thread." "Yārkand will we conquer for ourselves."

20. Ṣābir Oilman[3] only so much say, so long as they shall pay heed unto the news. At length came the Sāhib with all his retinue, saying, "Yārkand will we conquer for ourselves."

[1] This is really a term of affection, much as we sometimes use abusive words in an affectionate sense, or talk of a "poor devil" in the language of pity.

[2] A thoroughly Kāshmīrī sentiment, quite in keeping with the villager's indifference to the troubles of others. The author was evidently on bad terms with the barber and carpenter of his village (Stein).

XII. THE TALE OF THE ĀKHŪN.

1. There was once upon a time an Ākhūn,[1] who had four sons. One day he said to them, "I am now grown old, tell me therefore what professions you intend to follow." Said one, "I'll be a prayer-leader in a mosque." Said another, "I'll call the people to prayer." Said another, "I'll preach sermons." But the fourth and youngest said, "I'll be a thief." So one day he went off to the King's palace to steal something. As he stood outside it there came forth the Vizier and the King's daughter. When they saw him standing there he asked them who they were. "And who art thou?" said they. "I'm a thief," said he. "So are we," said they. Now they had brought out with them two horses, and he straightway mounted on one of them, while the princess got on the other. Then the Vizier said to him, "Go ye two in advance, and, sir, pay thou heed to this one piece of instruction—thou shalt not hold any love-talk with the princess. I will join you later on, but go ye two in advance."

2. So they went on, the princess thinking all the time that it was the Vizier, not the young Ākhūn, who was with her. By and by dawn began to blossom forth, and they dismounted by a stream, and to this went the princess and washed her face and hands. Her eye fell on a ruby lying in the stream. She picked it up and took it to the young Ākhūn, whom all the time she thought to be the Vizier, though it was not him at all. Then, as the dawn blossomed forth, the ruby emitted a brilliant light, and she saw for the first time that it was not the Vizier. So she kept the ruby to herself, and went on with him till they came to a certain city. There they found a small hut in which they made their lodging.

3. The young Ākhūn went to the King of that city, and asked him for employment. "What canst thou do?" asked the King. "I know how to look after horses," answered he. Now, even while they were yet speaking, there came a certain jeweller to sell precious stones to the King. He had two rubies with him. Then the young Ākhūn, who now called himself a groom, up and said, "Your Majesty, one of these rubies is beyond price, but the other hath a flaw in it in the shape of a worm." The King asked him how he knew this. Said he in answer, "Sire, of a surety there is a worm inside it. Break it and see. If no worm then come forth from it, do unto me whatsoever your Majesty may please. But if a worm do come forth, I shall deserve a present."

4. Quoth my master:—

They broke the ruby into pieces, and sure enough a worm issued forth from it; and from that time they gave him the title of "Royal Lapidary" instead of that of "Groom". So the Lapidary returned home, and the days passed. By night he stayed at home, and each day he attended court to examine rubies. The King's barber came one day to shave him, and there he saw the princess, who passed as the Lapidary's wife. Now she was very fair to look upon, and the barber went off on his rounds to shave the King's Vizier. "Said he, O Vizier, that Lapidary hath a wife, and she would verily adorn the mansion of a Vizier. Thou shouldst find him guilty of some failure in his duty." Quoth the Vizier, "Willingly, and why not?" and went off to the King's daughter. He told her to tell the King that she wanted another ruby just like the one that the Lapidary had first of all approved as beyond price. So she went to her father and quoth she, "Fain would I have another ruby beyond price, like unto the first." When the Lapidary came that day to the presence the King said to him, "Bring thou me another ruby like unto that one." The Lapidary returned home, and sat down there in silent consternation. Said the woman to him, "Why art thou so anxious?" Replied he, "The King demandeth from me a ruby beyond price, and where am I to find it?" Said she, "Go thou and say to the King, 'If thou wilt give me a month's expenses, I will bring thee the ruby.'" Well, the King gave him expenses sufficient for a month, and he brought the money home. There he stayed eating his food, not going to court or anywhere else. When a month had passed the woman gave him the ruby she had picked up out of the stream, and, taking it to the King, he laid it before him with a bow.

5. The Lapidary then left the court and returned home, where he passed the night. Next morning the barber came to shave him. When he had finished he went off to the Vizier. Said he, "Prithee, do somewhat unto that Lapidary. His wife is very beautiful. She would verily adorn the mansion of a Vizier." So the Vizier went again to the King's daughter and told her to ask the King for a ruby necklace. Quoth she to her father, "Fain would I have a ruby necklace." In due course the Lapidary came to the presence and made his bow. Said the King, "Sir, thou must bring unto me a number of rubies sufficient for a necklace." He went home, and the woman whispered to him, "Why art thou sitting here?" Replied he, "To-day the King demandeth from me a ruby necklace. Whence can I bring one?" Quoth she to him, "Thou needst not be anxious in the least. Go and take three months' expenses from the King." The King gave him the money and he returned to his house.

6. So there he stayed eating and drinking till the three months were passed. Then the woman said to him, "Thou knowest the stream from whence I picked up that ruby. Go thou up it a little way, and thou wilt come to a spring. Thou must dig a pit close to the source of the spring, and hide thyself therein. At first six females will come to bathe in the spring. Do thou nothing unto them; but afterwards thou wilt see coming the eldest sister of these six. She also will go down into the spring to bathe.

She will doff her clothes and leave them on the bank. Thou must then go secretly and carry off her garments."

7. The six females came and did their bathing, but to them said he nothing. Afterwards there came the seventh female. She doffed her clothes, and leaving them on the bank descended into the spring. He came secretly and carried off her garments and hid himself again in the pit. When she had finished her bath she went up again on to the bank, and saw that her garments were no longer there. She uttered a loud cry, saying, "Be thou demon or be thou human being, I make to thee an oath by the God who created thee. Put not thou my secret parts to shame, and whate'er thou ask will I give to thee." He then called to her from the pit, "Swear thou to me by God that thou wilt hear and agree to whatsoe'er I shall demand from thee." When she had sworn by God he gave her her garments, and she put them on. Then quoth she, "What is thy command?" and the Lapidary replied, "Thou must come with me." So they went along, the Lapidary in front, and the fairy following behind.

8. Saith my Master:—

Her name was Lālmāl, the Fairy, and they came to the Lapidary's house.

9. And moreover saith my Master:—

I know not which it was, but either at every word she spoke a ruby dropped, or else seven rubies fell each day from her mouth. The night came to an end and dawn appeared. The Lapidary picked up seven rubies and carried them off to the King. Making his bow he laid the seven rubies before him, and mighty pleased became the King.

10. The Lapidary took his leave from the presence and returned home. In due course came the barber and shaved him. When he had finished the barber went off to the Vizier and shaved him also. Said he, "O Vizier, a second wife hath now appeared for that Lapidary. She is very fair to look upon, much more fair even than the first. Prithee do somewhat to him. One of the wives is fit for a Vizier, and the other would suit me." Replied the Vizier, "I must, sir, again speak to the King's daughter." So he went and said to her, "Thou shouldst ask of thy father a jewelled bracelet." So the princess went to her father and quoth she to him, "Fain would I have a jewelled bracelet." On the morrow came the Lapidary to the presence, and to him said the King, "Bring me, sir, a jewelled bracelet."

11. The Lapidary went forth and came to his home. Said he to the two women, "The King demandeth of me a jewelled bracelet. Whence am I to bring it?" Then up and said to him Lālmāl, the fairy, "Go thou and ask the King for three months' expenses." The King gave the money to him, and he returned with it to his house. Each day passed day by day, and the three months became completed. Then Lālmāl the Fairy took a paper and wrote upon it. Quoth she to the Lapidary, "Go thou to the spring from which thou hast brought me, and therein cast this paper. Then from the spring a hand will rise, and on it will be a jewelled bracelet. Take hold of it, but descend thou not into the spring."

12. So he went off, taking the paper with him. He flung it into the spring, and even as he did so a hand wearing a jewelled bracelet rose from the water. He grasped hold of the hand, but did so with such force that he pulled the forearm off, and went off home with it and with the bracelet. The night came to an end and at dawn he went to the King. Making his bow he laid the bracelet before him, and mighty pleased became the King.

13. The Lapidary took his leave from the presence and returned home. Again came the barber and shaved him. When he had finished his job he went straight to the Vizier, and again addressed him, "O Vizier, thou dost not in any way get at that Lapidary. Prithee, do thou something to him." 14. The Lapidary took his leave and came to his own house. Said he to these two women, "To-day doth the King demand of me another jewelled bracelet." Then Lālmāl the Fairy gave him her own ring. Quoth she, "Go thou again unto the spring. Close by one side of it thou wilt find a great rock. Show thou my ring unto that rock, and it will arise and stand upright. Thou wilt find a pathway opening at its foot. Descend thou underground by the path and thou wilt find my crony-girl. She will give to thee a jewelled bracelet."

15. The Lapidary went forth and reached the spot. He showed the ring to the rock and it arose and stood upright. Down the path he went beneath the ground, and, deep down below, he saw a certain lady sitting all alone. Quoth she to him, "Whence comest thou?" Saith he, "Lālmāl the Fairy asketh of thee a jewelled bracelet." Then memory came to the lady. It was her mother whose forearm had been pulled off together with the former jewelled bracelet, and who now had but one arm. For that cause cherished the mother wrath within her heart. So the lady thought to herself, "So soon as my mother cometh she will devour this man." Now he was a mighty personable fellow, and her heart was filled with anxiety on his account, for she had determined to herself to marry him. Just then her mother's footsteps became audible, and the place was shaken by an earthquake. Thereupon the lady uttered a spell over him. She turned him into a pebble, and put it into her pocket. Then came to her her mother, "Aha! my girl," cried she, "I smell the smell of a mortal man." But the lady refused to admit that he had been there. When at last her mother pressed her sore, she said, "There is indeed a man. But first swear thou to me by God that naught wilt thou do unto him." So the mother swore to her by God, and she drew forth the pebble from her pocket, and uttered a spell over it, so that it became a man exactly as he had been before. Quoth she to her mother, "This is he who is unto me as God. For him, and only for him, have I been seeking. It is he, and he alone, O mother, whom God hath sent unto me." Then said her mother, "Good. So let it be. Send thou a letter by his hand unto thy two brethren." Quoth she, "My mother, let it be thou that writest." So the mother wrote a letter, and gave it into the hand of the Lapidary. But the lady called him to her, and asked him to give her the paper. She looked at it, and on it by her mother were written these words, "If ye be indeed my sons, on the instant that he cometh to you, must ye kill this man." The mother had written this because she still bore in her heart the memory of the pain of her lost forearm. But the lady tore the paper into little pieces, and wrote herself another, "If ye be indeed my brethren, quickly must ye come. And for why? Because it is my wedding festival."

16. She wrote for him the paper, and by word of mouth gave she him this instruction, saying, "When thou shalt arrive thither, make thou first a bow, and having louted low, give thou to them this paper. They will offer thee dinner made of leathern pease, but these thou must not eat." As a substitute she gave him real pease to take with him, and said, "These be what thou must eat. Drop thou their leathern pease into the fold of thy breast-cloth and eat thine own pease in their stead. Thereafter they will ask thee to give them a little scratching." For that purpose she gave him a set of iron claws, "For," said she, "they are of a demon race, and these iron claws will give them but a pleasant titillation."

17. Bearing these instructions in his memory he set forth, and reached their abode. He made his bow to them and gave to them the paper. They offered him a dinner of leathern pease. He raised a gobbet of it to his mouth, but let it fall into the fold of his breast-cloth, while at the same time he took out his own pease and kept eating them. Thereafter they asked him to give them a little scratching. So he secretly donned the iron claws and with them scraped and scratched them. Then wrote they an answer to the letter after this manner. "We have no time to come unto thee, for we have been summoned by the holy Solomon. Haste ye, in the name of God, and make ye the wedding festival."

18. He returned to the lady and her mother, and showed them the reply. They read it and carried out the wedding between him and her. Then said the lady to him who was now her husband, "Here wilt thou stay, or wilt thou return unto the world of men? Behold I am thy humble slave." So he said that he would return to the world of men, and quoth the lady to him, "Now, when we shall set forth, my mother will tell thee to ask of her a gift. And thou must ask for but one thing, a certain skin mat. Ask thou for it alone, and for naught else." So, as they were preparing for their journey her mother said to him, "Ask thou of me some gift," and he said to her "Give me the skin mat that is called the wutsha prang, or 'flying-couch'." Well, they went forth from there and reached his home. As soon as they arrived she made ready for him a jewelled bracelet, and the Lapidary took it to the King.

19. The barber heard that the Lapidary had come home, and goes to his house to shave him. There sees he the third lady, and straight returns he to the Vizier. Said he to him, "O Vizier, to-day that Lapidary hath a third lady, more fair to look upon than the other two. She is fit for the King. Another is fit for a Vizier, and yet another would suit me. Prithee, do thou somewhat to this Lapidary." Quoth the Vizier to him, "To-day will I tell the King, and His Majesty himself will lay some trap for him. Then he will die, and the three women will be ours." So the Vizier said to the King, "Your Majesty, that Lapidary hath women three, and women like unto them are not in the whole kingdom. Sire, prithee, seize thou upon some fault of this Lapidary, and destroy him. Then will the three women become inmates of thy harem." The King considered a while and said, "No matter what thou mayst ask of him, that all and sundry doth he bring. Now will I say unto him, "Thou must bring me news of my father, whether he be in heaven or whether he be in hell."

20. And saith my Master :—

The Lapidary came to the King and made his bow. Quoth the King to him, "Hitherto hast thou hearkened unto whatsoever command I gave to thee. To-day must thou bring unto me news of my father, whether he be in heaven or whether he be in hell." The Lapidary departed and came to his own house. Quoth he to these three women, "To-day the King telleth me to bring news of his father. What am I to do? How know I even how many years have passed since he hath died?" Then up and spake the lady who had made the jewelled bracelet (now she was a fairy who was obedient unto God), "Let nothing prey upon thy mind. Go thou, and ask of him expenses. Then say thou to the King, 'Thou must gather together for me firewood. In the plain let there be gathered together bundles of fuel beyond count.'"

21. The King assembled and piled firewood beyond count, and the Lapidary ascended thereon. He spread upon it the skin mat, and thereon he took his seat. Quoth he to the King, "What token from thy father shall I bring?" and up and said the King, "First must thou bring unto me a fruit from the garden of paradise, and secondly must thou bring unto me a letter signed by my father." Said the Lapidary to the people standing round, "Set ye the firewood alight on all four sides."

22. And moreover saith my Master :—

When they had set the pyre alight, the Lapidary could no longer be seen for fire and smoke. He uttered a charm to the skin mat, saying, "I would arrive at mine own house, but have a care that no one see it." He closed his eyes, and when he opened them he found himself at home. Then that lady did a deed. Of the seven metals [1] she prepared a fruit, a pomegranate of the Garden of Heaven, and moreover she wrote a letter to which she put the signature of the King's father, and sealed it with his seal. And this was what she wrote to the King: "Thou must come unto me with thy Vizier and with thy barber, just in the same manner as the Lapidary hath come unto me." This paper she made over to the Lapidary, and in his hand she laid the pomegranate.

23. By this time four days had passed and the fire became extinct, leaving naught but ashes. The Lapidary went forth wearing only his loin-cloth, and rolled himself in these ashes. The discerners then discerned, and the newsmen brought the news. Cried they, "Your Majesty, there cometh a sound as of rustling from the ashes. Can it be that the Lapidary is returned?" And while they were yet speaking these words and gazing towards the pyre, there came forth from it the Lapidary, in the one hand holding a pomegranate, and in the other the letter. Having made his bow to the King, he laid the pomegranate and the letter before him. The King opened the letter and read it, and this was its contents, "I, of a truth, am in heaven. Thou must come hither speedily, with thy Vizier and with thy barber."

24. The King considered awhile, "I said unto myself that this Lapidary would come to destruction, and, lo, he hath come to me with news from my father." Quoth he to the Lapidary, "How can I convey myself to that abode of bliss?" Replied the Lapidary, "Thou must gather together three times so much firewood as thou didst gather for me, and then speedily wilt thou arrive in heaven." The King gathered together fuel beyond count. Upon it he made them spread a mat, and upon it he ascended and sat, himself with the Vizier and the barber. They set the pyre alight on all four sides.

25. And my Master saith :—

Burnt up was the King, burnt up was the Vizier, and burnt up was the barber. The three became utterly destroyed. And from his home came to the Lapidary's house that first Vizier, the one who had been eloping with the princess when he met the young Ākhūn. Together held they mutual converse, and the Lapidary told him of his journey, and of all the villainy that the Vizier and the barber

26. And saith my Master:—

The Vizier ascended the vacant throne and ruled right royally, and the Lapidary was appointed by him to the Viziership.

And may the peace be upon you, and on you be peace.

VOCABULARY OF ALL THE WORDS IN GŌVINDA KAULA'S TEXT

[Roman numerals refer to the number of the story, and Arabic numerals to the section. To save space, when several Arabic numerals come together, tens are generally not repeated. Thus, xii, 21, 6, means xii, 21, 26. The order of words is based on the alphabetical order of the consonants, without any regard to the vowels. The latter come into consideration only in cases in which the same consonant or consonants are followed or separated by different vowels. Thus, the different words containing the consonants kn will be found in the succession kan, kàn[1], kani, kina, kōna, kun, kuni, and kun[u]. All words beginning with vowels are arranged together at the commencement of the Vocabulary, their mutual order being determined by their consonants. The letter ñ follows n, and ṭs follows t. For purposes of alphabetical order v and w are counted as the same letter. In other respects the alphabetical order is that of the English alphabet.] postpos. This governs the dative in the case of animate objects, and the ablative in the case of inanimate objects. It also governs pron. suffixes in the dative. Thus :—

A. Animate dative. miñĕ-marĕ pata lārān, running after the hind, ii, 9 ; yiman pata, after these (women came another), xii, 7.

B. Inanimate ablative. ami pata, after this, viii, 13 ; xii, 17 ; tami pata, after that, x, 12 ; xii, 16.

prep. governing dat. path wanan, at the back of the forests, deep in the forest, vii, 10.

pĕṭh, postpos. governing dat., on, upon, in various shades of meaning. Thus :—

on, upon, asmānan pĕṭh, on the heavens, iv, 4 ; palangas-pĕṭh, (lying) on the bed, viii, 13 ; wŏḍi-pĕṭh, (carry) on the crown of the head, iii, 1 ; xi, 12, 6.

on to (with verbs of mounting, etc.), ɣuris-pĕṭh, (mounted) the horse, ii, 11 ; ath$^{i}$ pĕṭh, (got up) on to it (a bed), iii, 7 ; so palangas pĕṭh, (got up) on to the bed, v, 5, 6 (bis), 9 (ath) ; x, 7 (bis) ; baṭhis-pĕṭh, (ascended) on to the bank of the river, xii, 7 ; ath$^{i}$-pĕṭh, (ascended) on to it (a pyre), xii, 24.

down on to, baṭhis-pĕṭh, (put) down on the bank, xii, 6, 7.

With certain words it is used in the sense of "to" after a verb of motion. Thus adālüts$^{ü}$-pĕṭh, (went) to the court of justice, v, 9; kŏli-akis-pĕṭh, (went) to (the bank of) a stream, xii, 2; nāgas-pĕṭh, (arrived, etc.) at the spring, (went) to (the bank of) the spring, iii, 4, 5, 9 (bis); xii, 6, 11, 2, 4.

on, close by, nāgas-pĕṭh chĕh, she is (i.e. lives) close by a spring, iii, 4.

It means "in" in khāwand thôwun ḍēras-pĕṭh, she put her husband in a tent, v, 11.

It means "on", i.e. "with regard to", "towards", in āgas-pĕṭh (infidelity) to a master, viii, 6, 8, 11; nĕcivĕn-pĕṭh, (an order) concerning or against (his) sons, viii, 13.

Forming adv. ath$^{i}$-pĕṭh, thereupon, xii, 7.

pĕṭha, postpos. governing abl. from on, as in guri-pĕṭha, (fell) from on (his) horse, fell off his horse, ii, 6; guryau-pĕṭha, (dismounted) from (their) horses, xii, 2; Kōh-i-Tōra-pĕṭha, (commandments given) from on Mt. Sinai, iv, 5.

from (generally), as in kati-pĕṭha, where from? whence? ii, 2; Landana-pĕṭha, from London, xi, 3; sŏnar-aṭa-pĕṭha, (a cry raised) from (i.e. in) the goldsmiths' market, v, 7.

In special cases it means simply "on", like pĕṭh, as in pĕṭha kür$^{ü}$nas mŏhar, on it she put a seal, x, 3, in which pĕṭha governs the dat. pron. suff. as. Similarly x, 3 (again), and x, 10.

Another special meaning occurs in karin kasam nāga pĕṭha, let her make an oath from on (the bank of) (i.e. by) the spring, v, 9.

pĕṭha-kani, on the top of (it = ath$^{i}$), viii, 1.

pĕṭh$^{i}$, postpos. governing abl., on, above, in various shades of meaning. Thus:—

nawav asmānav pĕṭh$^{i}$, above the nine heavens, iii, 8.

kala-pĕṭh$^{i}$, (leaped) over (his) head, ii, 9.

tami-pĕṭh$^{i}$-kani, in addition to that, iii, 8.

pöṭh$^{i}$ or pöṭhin, adv. used with other words to indicate manner. It may be added either to adjectives or to adverbs, and in the latter case is pleonastic. It converts adjectives into adverbs of manner, and when the adjective is declinable it is put, before pöṭh$^{i}$, into the case of the agent. Thus:—

Added to an adjective, lŏt$^{i}$-pŏṭh$^{i}$ (lŏṭ$^{u}$), gently, xii, 5; pàz$^{i}$-pŏṭh$^{i}$ (poz$^{u}$), really, truly, x, 6, 10.

Added to an adverb, kĕtha-pŏṭh$^{i}$, how? in what manner? iii, 9; v, 8; viii, 5; x, 8; xii, 3, 24; tithay-pŏṭh$^{i}$, in that very manner, exactly so, xii, 23; yĕthay-pŏṭh$^{i}$, in what very manner, exactly as, xii, 22; yithay-pŏṭhin, in this very manner, exactly thus, viii, 3.

We occasionally find this word added to the agent case of a substantive. Thus, from ṭsūr$^{u}$, theft, we have ṭsūri-pŏṭh$^{i}$, theft-like, i.e. secretly, xii, 6, 7, 17; so ṭsūri-pŏṭhin, iii, 1.

pathar, adv. on the flat ground; hence, down, in phrases such as pathar wasun, to fall to the ground, ii, 3; pathar pyon$^{u}$, id., ii, 11; pāwun pathar, to throw down on the ground, iii, 9.

It will be observed that when emph. y is added to yih, the word takes several varying forms. As occurring in these tales they are as follows : yihuy (an. m. and inan.), yihay (an. f.), yihōy (inan.), yuhuy (an. m.), yŏhay (an. m.), yuhay (inan.), yiy (inan.), yīy (inan.), yī (inan.).

yih 2, pron. rel. who, which, what. In construction, the antecedent clause as a rule contains a demonstrative or other pronoun as correlative, but in the following cases there is no correlative pronoun :—

(a) Relative clause preceding antecedent clause, ii, 9 ; xi, 3, 8.

(b) Antecedent clause preceding relative clause, v, 7.

When there is a correlative pronoun it is most usually some form of the demonstrative pronoun tih, q.v., as in—

(a) Relative clause preceding antecedent clause, ii, 4, 7, 8 (bis), 11 ; iii, 1, 8 (ter) ; v, 8, 9 ; vi, 16 ; vii, 1, 29 ; viii, 6, 8, 9, 11 ; ix, 9 ; x, 1 (bis), 6, 12 (bis) ; xi, 1 ; xii, 3, 7 (bis), 20, 2.

(b) Antecedent clause preceding relative clause, ii, 7 ; v, 5 ; vii, 8, 29, 30 ; x, 1, 6, 10, 2 ; xii, 4, 7, 11, 5, 25.

Or the correlative pronoun may be some form of yih 1, as in (in every case the antecedent clause preceding), x, 5 ; xii, 20, 5.

Or it may be some form of the pronoun ath, as in (antecedent clause in each case preceding), ii, 9 ; vi, 14 ; x, 7.

In vi, 14, the antecedent is the genitive of the interrogative pronoun kyāh, i.e. kamyuk$^{u}$, of what ?

Sometimes the correlative pronoun is used twice, once immediately after the relative, and again in the antecedent clause, which in this case follows the relative clause. The repeated correlative is not necessarily the same as the one after the relative pronoun. Thus, yus suh tōta ôs$^{u}$, yüh ôs$^{u}$ phakīras nishĕ, who he (i.e. he who) was the parrot, he was with the faqīr, ii, 9 ; so yus yüh wazīr ôs$^{u}$, suh chuh hāpatas-manz, he who was the vizier, he is (now) in the bear, ii, 11 ; yus yih pātashāha-sond$^{u}$ mor$^{u}$ ôs$^{u}$, yih trôwun, that which was the body of the king, that he abandoned, ii, 10 ; yĕsa yih Lālmāl Parī ös$^{ü}$, tas dyutun rukhsath, she who was the Fairy Lālmāl, to her he gave leave to depart, xii, 25 ; yĕsa yih pata üñ$^{ü}$n zīnith, sa thïv$^{ü}$n pānas, she whom he had won and afterwards brought home, her he kept for himself, xii, 25.

Like the demonstrative pronouns, the relative pronoun has animate and inanimate forms, and either of these may be substantival or adjectival. But in some cases in which we should look upon the relative as a substantive it is treated as an adjective. This is specially the case when the antecedent correlative is an adjective. In such a case the relative, even if not in direct agreement with a noun, also takes the adjectival form. Thus, suh lāl, yus tujyān, xii, 4, that ruby which she had taken up. Here we have the inanimate adjectival form yus, because the antecedent correlative, suh, is an adjective. The inanimate substantival form would be yih. Similarly, yih panun$^{u}$ saphar, yus nöyidan ôs$^{u}$ pēsh on$^{u}$mot$^{u}$, this (yih) his suffering, which he experienced at the hands of the barber, xii, 25.
